General Comment

I am vehemently against the government interfering with how I use my 401K. It is my life, and how I choose to spend the money I have saved for retirement should be solely at my discretion. The government has no reason or right to be mandating how or when I withdraw, spend or invest my money. I am smart enough to save and invest my money, why would I need a government bureaucrat telling me anything about how or when I can use it? I strongly suggest this rule be rejected and allow those who have 401Ks the benefit of choosing for themselves how to spend, invest or use them.

Thank you for your consideration in this matter,
