General Comment

It's extraordinary that in this fabulous country we are debating limiting health care to people who are in real need how is possible that in a civilized society that had the ability to care for it's population medically that this is an issue. My whole life i've been a citizen that has done the right thing for my health, and been respectful of the medical society am still paying so much money for health insurance and have always done so. I've earn this care at this stage of my life and I fully expect all officials to support a physician and patient decision as to what the best course of care should be without having to worry about running out of insurance or money! This is humane and in the long run costs less than all the short cuts because arthritis is a disease that is best managed early and attention paid as to stop any progression if possible -
