General Comment

I am not happy with having to pay extremely high personal premiums on health care; and not having a say in what I am paying for. I do not believe in a "free" society that I should have to care for "the pill" or "abortion rights" for individuals that cannot control themselves. "Themselves" being the key. If the "government" wants to work that into their ordaining verbage...perhaps they should ask if the person paying for the personal health care is ever intending to use "said services".

I am not at all a citizen that would volunteer to pay for someone else's lack of self control. Although I am forced to do just that!

My personal monthly healthcare premiums are already astronomical due to other people not taking care of themselves; and rising health care costs because of it.

It already makes me sick that this is even an issue, when there are so many hungry, or homeless in our country.
