General Comment

I am a single female supporting myself. I am unable to purchase a new car at this time because my health insurance is $690.00 each month. In fact that amount is more than a car payment would be. I am not sure how anyone can afford to live with this kind of a cost each and every month. Being a Realtor does have its benefits but health insurance is definitely not one of them. Unfortunately there are no other choices for me. I am 51 years old healthy and take good care of myself. Not sure I will even be able to afford health insurance after this year because it goes up $150 or more every year and I have to continue to increase my deductable just to be able to afford my monthly payment... Something has to be done about this cost or no one will be able to afford Health insurance coverage.
