General Comment

I am against the very existence of this waiver. If you're a criminal or suspected criminal under investigation you should be prevented from have access to managing or advising on ANY other persons money. If the person is included in the investigation and innocent perhaps not having access to such an absurd exemption would incentivize the innocent to be a whistleblower against criminal corruption, or to find a workplace that isn't infested with criminals that put your ability to work at risk. Get rid of this exemption entirely.
