General Comment

As a long time Texan I have always thought the stock market was a good place to learn about money. What I have learned is there are way too many loop holes that companies can use to push the market into a fictitious direction. The fact that a company can buy and sell stock they don't own is amazing to me since they have not been arrested yet for fraud. Naked shorting is not the stock market it is a way that those companies can fool retail into thinking they are investing but they aren't. It is a ruse and needs to be set straight.
