General Comment

It is not the government's responsibility to tell anyone how to use their hard earned money. In fact, there are many more capable and responsible individuals than our present government, who live within their means, manage their own finances and by doing so are NOT burdens on society. Until Washington itself and all the ridiculous bureaucracies it has established practice what the impose on contributing, law abiding citizens, it has no credibility at all.

Furthermore, leave our money, investments, retirements, and everything alone.

I and many others like myself are fully capable of managing our own retirements and lives.

Please stay out of it and respectfully drop all proposed regulations on how we spend our money invested in IRA's, 401K's and otherwise.

We fully expect action in favor of investors.
