I confess that I was not aware that financial advisers were not ALREADY required to act in the best interest of a client. While I do not use the services of a financial adviser, I am shocked to learn that before these rules are established, people remain at the mercy of their financial advisers. This is legislation that is way past due. Thank you yet again, President Obama and Senator Warren!

It just makes sense right? Don't let the people trying to give you a plan to help you save money for your retirement end up stealing a portion of that money you are trying to save. Not everyone will be able to work when older and it feels ethical to save as much money as you can for when you can't do what you could when you were young. Think of this. Would you steal a portion of your Grandmothers check, or any elderly person, every month just to get yourself a couple extra bucks? It's just wrong.

We are now retired and fortunately have checked each and every handling of our money along the way...yet, in being careful over 35 years a number of times we lost money due to false information. We wholly support what might be called law driven ethical financial honesty and a needed acumen for advisors to deal ALWAYS in the best interest of the client.

As one of those who lost a significant amount of his 501k investment in large part due to faulty financial adviser to stay the course advice during financial crisis, I support this petition. I might add during this period, what I assume was not a uncommon thing, my financial adviser was replaced three times. This hardly is conductive to building a trusting relationship by either party.

We need to protect American's retirement, and not make them the victim of greedy Wall Street financial advisers. The system has not protected the interest of common individuals, we can't put American's retirement at risk to greedy thieves who have everything to gain by cheating their clients out of their hard earned savings.

I am 70 yrs. old, retired public school teacher, who has tried to be knowledgeable about my modest financial investments in IRA's to be self-sufficient through my retirement years. However, I find I am needing to have almost a blind trust in my financial adviser. Initially, the company was not affiliated with a specific investment company, but not long after I signed on to an ING IRA, they became affiliated with ING. I have no reason to suspect my adviser has done anything but to act in my best interest, but how would I know for sure? Sharon Guber, Ames IA

In the 1980's my wife and I were victims of an unscrupulous financial advisor. American Express did provide minor financial compensation, but we lost quite a bit of our investments. Our new advisor proved himself to be a very ethical man and competent financial advisor. This proposed change in rules would have saved us the unnecessary headaches of our former advisor. Thankfully, we recovered well only out of good luck in finding meeting our current advisor.

401Ks are killing middle America and a poor excuse for old fashioned retirement pensions (and I get that this is what big business wants) anything we can do to protect teh ability of hard working Americans to have a retirement that will actually provide not just income, but income that honors the hard work so many have put in for so long is a GOOD thing.

Just like other professionals we go to for help: doctors, lawyers, dentists, mechanics, etc., it is their job to do a good job for us, that is why we hire/pay them. This should be especially true for financial advisors since this is such a complex and complicated area that the majority of people have no experience or knowledge about. We rely on them to help us, their clients, not themselves.

Help protect Americans' retirement security by supporting new rules that would require financial advisers to act in the interest of their customers rather than for their own financial gain. Join the president's call to the Department of Labor to issue these rules, and don't let congressional action undermine this commonsense effort.

Let's do this! It is about a time to gang up against birocracy and protect people of America.. Bravo President Obama! Being in late 50s, closer to my retirement I am very scared n insecure what is going to happened to me and others when time for that come. Now we have at least something to fight for! America wake up and let this became reality!

It just took me 4 days to help a friend remove a block on her bank account because BOA said she was overdrawn $884,000 but would not give her any more info because THEY could not identify her. After 4 days, we learned that the exorbitant amount was a trick the bank used to ascertain a fraudulent attempt to get into one's account. Why doesn't this happen with real hackers instead of a poor widow woman?

I know how utterly irresponsible "financial advisors" can be. Some of them are ethical but those driven by the commission only are disgusting. I know because I started to work in that business back in the 1980's. It took me less than a year to realize how dishonest some of my "managers" were. I walked out. Too bad too - we had a great view of the San Francisco Bay from our offices. These new rules really matter. I support them 110%.

PLEASE make this the law!! I had a financial investment adviser talk me into an investment about which he either outright lied or lied by omission. The following year, I got a tax bill for $7,000. I'm a struggling divorcee with a lousy paying (female industry) job, and was shocked. He was lining his own pockets by making my investment switch and to heck with my pockets!

I'm signing the petition because I believe in the cause, but I doubt that the GOP will be swayed. In fact, gerrymandering, voter suppression & the manipulation of public opinion by well-funded disinformation campaigns would seem to ensure that there really is no way to keep the Republicans from turning the country into the United Serfs of America in which 99% of the citizens will labor away in the increasingly dark financial shadow cast by an entrenched 1%.

There are financial advisers with true professional conduct and unwavering integrity. Sadly, there are many more that are unscrupulous and lack the integrity that should be mandatory. It seems that this is the time for The Department of Labor to man up and take the lead on this issue and protect the people who are in need of advise. Respectfully, RkR Miami

It is amazing that a "rule" to act ETHICALLY, to actually help the person who is paying for your services, is required for financial advisors to 'do the right thing'! This speaks volumes about the morality of our financial institutions and WHY we need to protect the public from 'too big to fail' banks and Wall St. corporations! IS THE DEPARTMENT OF LABOR CAPABLE OF ACTING IN THE INTEREST OF THE ELECTORATE? We shall see.

The criminals have taken over. They are against transparency. They hate whistle-blowers. They bribe the lawmakers to enact laws that are NOT in the interest of their clients. They are the lawyers that always win even when their clients lose. Good luck in getting the US Congress to protect the consumers! They are mostly self-serving attorneys that work to distort reality in order to steer investor clients into unethical investments that aren't in their own best interests.

Wall Street is powerful enough! As a Professional Firefighter and an EMT I work for my community like they are family. Why shouldn't our retirement Financial Advisors do the same? My parents are forced to keep working past their "retirement" age due to the Wall Street "crash". What happens when they can't work? They become my responsibility, tax payer's responsibility or destitute. They worked their entire adult life, even served our country, saved, and invested....for what? Please protect our investments! Thank you.

THIS SHOULD BE MADE LAW<IT SHOULD GO WITHOUT SAYING THAT FINANCIAL ADVISERS SHOULD BE REQUIRED TO ACT IN THE INTEREST OF THEIR CUSTOMERS INSTEAD OF PUTTING THEIR MONEY WHERE THEY CAN PERSONALLY BENEFIT THE MOST> I have been the recipient of a financial adviser that was acting in his personal interest instead of mine and it really hurts to lose hard earned money to a creep like that. Wow, an action to help the avg person! Amazing ! YOU KNOW EVERY TIME I GO OUT FOR LUNCH/DINNER I SEE MEN AND WOMEN THAT WOULD AND SHOULD BE RETIRED BUT THEY LOST THERE LIFE SAVINGS AS WELL AS THE CO. PENSION PLAN, AMAZING WHILE THOUSANDS GET TERMINATED AND GET SQUAT, THE CEO IS ASKED TO LEAVE AND THEY GIVE THEM MILLIONS TO ENJOY. AT SOME POINT A LOT OF THESE THINGS HAVE TO CHANGE OR OUR NATION IS DOOMED!

most workers are not sophisticated investors, if a person has the apparent knowledge. but after working for securities firms for over 20 years. most salesperson sell what makes them the most money not what is best for the client. i know from first hand experience. my mothers life insurance proceeds after my father's death. the bond salesman put my mother in high interest junk bonds. A person seeking advice from a financial advisor should not have to worry that the confidence he or she places in the soundness of the advisor's recommendations has been subverted by a conflict of interest that amounts to a con game.

As a former financial services agent, it appalled me when I was in the business to see clients who clearly had suffered financially due to this of this type of misdirection, in spite of the fiduciary responsibility and ethics under which we were supposed to be operating. I am glad to see this issue gaining attention and hope that the new rules will indeed better protect the future life that Americans have worked so hard to achieve.

I beg Elizabeth Warren to run so that I would be able to vote once again with a party that has some possibility to win. i did not vote with Obama the first time because I disagreed with his surge going into Afghanistan while the second time I was even more against the overthrowing of the Libyan government. I hope I have the opportunity to vote for senator Warren.

By keeping the advisors on the honest track it could possibly lift some retired people out of strained economic circumstances. As a retired senior whose income is partly funded by previous investments, I would be in much more difficult financial straits if those with whom my funding were gouging and leaving me with much less. This makes me an even more enthusiastic supporter of these proposed new rules. Thank you for taking this action.

These kinds of unethical practices are becoming the standard with Wall Street and people are getting tired of the greed we are seeing. (not to mention the Anger over having to bail out the last fiasco) Instead of taking care of your client's, you look to line your own pockets first, and at their expense. Your client's retirement security is not a Ponzi scheme to be exploited for profit.

Why does it have to be a "bold proposal" that investment brokers be required to act in the best interests of their clients. It SHOULD go without saying, and it is SHAMEFUL that it does have to be said! Anyone who is against this proposal is against honesty, against integrity, and against ethics. It was the Regan government that started the movement of business providing their workers pension to making the worker save for their own retirement. For the most part Americans retirements are in 401k / in the stock market. Those who manage these account need to be held accountable. The government put us in this position it is the government that needs to protect us.

Protect the people of the USA! We elect you - we pay your salaries - we keep our end of the bargain. Now - it's time for you to keep yours. Protect the hard earned dollars we've made to last through our lives. It's our money, not yours or Wall Street's. We deserve it, and as our elected officials you need to protect us by protecting our investment savings. Got it? Good.

Conflicted investment advice leads to large costs for Americans' retirement savings. Even a very "conservative estimate of the investment losses due to conflicted advice, such as half of a percentage point, would yield annual losses of more than $8 billion."

Please require Congress to mandate that the Financial Consultants, Brokers in the financial community to have Fiduciary Responsibility for all their clients. It is unconscionable that they are under handed, unethical in their dealings. Also would like to strengthen the reforms that were suppose to prevent the foreclosure & near global meltdown of the global financial order in 2008-2009. We uphold & applaud your efforts to level the playing field. I was almost a victim of a financial VP in a major brokerage company who tried to take advantage of my grief for my Mom's passing.s verbal assurances & promises were contradicted by the Disclosure Agreementwhich he said was an Enrollment Form. It pay to read everything with a find tooth comb. Do not allow the lobbyists & their Congressional lapdogs to sabotage your noble efforts. Sincerely,
Bobbi Mendelson

In 2008, Wall Street Financial Advisors were kept from bankruptcy by use of taxpayer funds. A few of those survivors paid out large bonuses the following year. Due to the Subprime load failures, banks across the nation faced closing, yet they too were rescued by funds from American taxpayers. The banks retained those funds not to improve Home Financing, but to earn interest for profit on these same taxpayer funds. I for one want to see stronger federal enforcement on Wall Street and Financial Advisors using American retirement - Pension funds in large blocks to create market fluctuations that benefit their own financial gain. This is an issue that requires non-partisan oversight and federal enforcement with severe penalties for non-compliance.

We common folks need someone to have our backs. We have built this country and keep it going yet have less and less to show for our efforts while we are still able to work. It stinks being scared of retirement or not being able to retire due to finances.

Thank you for this - I have often felt it is very reasonable to protect the efforts of the average person to save for retirement. The "game" has certainly been rigged... We are told to save for retirement on the one hand, and many of us recognize that we don't have the wherewithal to make safe investments without the help of supposed "professionals". Hard - I am supposed to "trust" the investment professional has my best interests at heart while at the same time having the ability to discern if they are doing a good job (which is what I have "hired" them to do in the first place!).

Get ultra rich to see their upper income should in all fairness to save democracy put back to pre Reagan. 70% they have gotten rich and richer and started the deficit and it is staggering how much has been made over 30 years by ultra rich. With it and everyone paying into social security On.all income. Was started so rich could see that seniors could survive better.

Congress: This should have been in place years ago. Why should people on Wall Street be able to take advantage of their trusting clients, many of whom are Senior Citizens, and make unethical millions off unsuspecting clients? Please stand up and pass new rules to prevent brokers and agents from continuing these practices. Beverly Jansheski

If rules have to be made for financial advisors to act with the best interests of their clients in mind, then such rules should be made. Otherwise, why bother? An advisor is sought (and paid) with the expectation that they will act in a client's best interest. Please support such rules. It is only ethical and honest.

This shouldn't even need regulating or legislating. This really shows how far out of ethical and moral behavior our country/business community/Congress has strayed. The fact that we need 'new' rules is truly disgusting, but also enlightening to see how low we have come. We can do so much better; perhaps now is the time at last.

It is absurd that all brokers do not need to follow the rules of certified financial advisors/planners. Especially less-sophisticated investors assume that this is already the case, leaving them vulnerable to predatory salespeople. That, in turn, combined with pressure for generating sales of proprietary products, puts honest brokers in a bind. Let's ensure that those who are advising people about their investments give advice based on the client's interests, not their own.

This is a strange thing to need a rule about. You would assume a financial advisor would naturally have the best interest of clients at heart but experience shows they often do not. The fact that we do need this rule shows how very much it's needed.

At last! Legislation to protect the little guy/gal from the excesses of bigness: Big Lobbyists, Big Financials, Big Oil, Big Pharma, Big Insurance, Big Health Care; in general, Big Business and Big Corrupt Politics. Any professional who acts outside of the best interest of his/her client is not a professional. If financial advising is actually a REAL PROFESSION, it must be unethical and illegal for financial advisers to not act in the best interest of their clients. Putting the client's best interest at the center is what makes a profession professional: doctors, teachers, lawyers, counselors, mitigators, mediators, and so all have legal obligations to serve the best interest of their clients. Allowing financial advisors to to serve their own interests ahead of their clients is to say: "Financial advising is not a real profession; it's a legal scam."

Get rid of each and every congressional member that is unable to show compassion for the poor and working class individuals living within the United States. They probably got the silly idiots to believe their garbage and vote them into office. Mmmmm! Maybe, these poor jerks will be getting exactly what they deserve for supporting the tea party, conservative ideology that omits them out of the one percent.

In view of the fact that many of the protections afforded the public against wrongdoing by banks, financial service companies and investment advisors were substantially weakened and banks and investment firms were the recipients of taxpayer funded bailouts (the true cost of which has never been fully repaid), it is only appropriate that appropriate regulations be imposed upon investment advisors to curb their abusive, exploitive practices.

If they dont allow this or fight it im sure americans will soon be fed up and will finally fight for there rights and livley hood resulting in americans coming together its truly just a mattet of time cause like it or not people can only be pushed so far until they snap and enough is enough and then our so called government is going to wish they did the right thing by the people instead of doing things for just themselves so with that being said i am all for this and protecting my retirement

The primary reason the country had an economic collapse in 2008 was the irresponsible financial advisors who were working for themselves and not their clients. It should not have been able to happen even once and if it happens again their are some policy makers that need to be out on the street without their huge pensions.

I hope that Congress is able to support this modest and long overdue proposal, even if it isn't yet perfect. I have always assumed that financial advisors do have their client's best interests at heart and was quite shocked to learn that this isn't always so. I hope my assumptions about Congress having the citizens interests at heart isn't another of my naive beliefs.

Under the 1974 Employee Retirement Income Security Act, anyone designated a pension fiduciary must act solely in the interest of plan participants. With workers relying more on 401(k) and IRA accounts instead of defined benefit pensions in recent years, the goal must be to expand the fiduciary requirement to more advisers, such as broker dealers, who offer advice on such accounts. I've worked with a financial advisory company and seen how they try to push employees into rounding up all their relatives to bring their assets over to the company, how they have no idea what they are really doing, other than toeing the company product line. It's disgusting and I was glad when I left the industry. My branch manager was just another slick talker.

My late wife didn't have the advantage of having a particularly adept or honest financial adviser. While my 401k rose in value, her IRA kept losing money. Despite my advice, she kept investing with that adviser, who I think was creating wealth for herself and not for her clients. My wife's brother had the same results with the same adviser, who used her position as an old family friend to continue abusing those who trusted her.

I agree with this petition. In fact, I was surprised that acting in your client's best interests wasn't already what financial advisors are required to do. At the very least, it's what they SHOULD do without needing any legislation to force them!

Now that pensions are few and far between and workeres are on their own to build a retirement and Governors are putting public pensions at risk with politically connectd financial advisors/hedge funds etc. It is critical that financial advisors/consultants be legally bound to represent the interest if the client above all else and be liable and accountable if they fail in that duty.

Want them to act ONLY in the interest of their clientele. (will just go through shadow banks unless this is very specifically outlawed.. then they will set up in-house ghost client accounts to 'short' the clientele investments).. and must also include severe punishment for the attempt of thwarting not only the letter of the law but also it's inherent INTENT.

If anyone wants to go on record opposing this common sense protection for middle class retirement savers who have been forced into the market by Reagan and Bush era changes promoting defined benefits over defined contributions let them do so at their peril. We've just about had it w/ the bought and paid for corporatist (Fascist?) government. It's gonna be a hard rain that's gonna fall and the elitist shills will not be able to hide in their gated communities from justice. Know justice, Know Peace No Justice? = no Peace

Just like doctors, insurance agents, and other specialists in the service industry, financia advisors should be required to act in the best interest of their clients. This fiduciary responsibility is necessary to protect clients who are on the weak end of a significant information disparity and power dynamic that has a long history of abuse. No more making money by taking folks money by placing it at significant risk without that risk being born by the persons making the bet. We need this reform.

I support this. This is extremely important. I've watched my parents struggle with this issue. I would like to encourage the President and Politicians also consider helping people like myself. I graduated with an advanced degree (MFA in Fine Arts) in 2002 and my student loan debt keeps growing. I have no retirement because I can barely make ends meet. I'm now spending more money on a trade school so that I can pursue another passion that will hopefully bring me more income. Again, I am almost middle aged with no retirement and tons of debt. Please help people like myself who work so hard and have no security. It's a heavy realization to wake up to every day, knowing that I've worked so hard all my life and will likely never have the luxury of retiring. I even have an auto-immune condition and still wake up every day pushing myself at the expense of my Health. I volunteer with my dog as a therapy team for my local Vetran Hospital because it brings me such joy, however, this too is emotionally draining. But worth it. There are such good hard working people of my generation that have been forgotten. The division of wealth is astounding. With that said, I support this Petition. Thank you everyone for all you do to maintain equality and justice.

Since more people have no money invested it's more important to protect and increase ssi and ssdi to make up for the robbing of the American people's retirement funds. Now that we've got corporate America making everthing toxic and making people sick with toxic food, air, water, medicine psychological manipulation through mass media, they should take those names of the offshore tax havens they've uncovered and take the full taxes owed and put it into paying for Healthcare for those baby boomers and elderly whom have sickness forced on them by the very people whom are hiding their profits from perpetrating this on the world community.

This should have been the common sense thing to do at the start. My own mother was 'robbed' of her investment money. She was going in a negative direction due to fees, etc, from her financial advisor.

We have a spiritual war with those in heavenly places, and we are winning the war against these selfish, greedy and lovers of money. They had their day in the sun with there shady business deals. I believe Jesus is soon to return to earth. He won't be as docile as he tried to teach us how to take care of our mind, body and spirit. I recall the lyrics of a song money can't buy back you happiness when your growing old. "What profits a man if he gains the whole world, but loses his soul.

It's about time something that helps regular citizens not be forced into poverty has been proposed. How much Wall Street thievery do we have to endure? I find it shameful that unethical and immoral behavior is rewarded in the financial realm.

We earned it. We paid into it .We were promised it. We qualified for it. It is an American right. It needs to be geared to true inflation-which has not been true in the past. People that are receiving double or triple-dipping retirement benefits need to be cut back to acceptable levels. CEOs need to be put on reasonable %s of what the average worker in the corporation receives. The playing field definitely needs to be leveled so the rich 1% don't bankrupt the middle & lower classes.

Personally, I should have known better. BA in Economics, BA Bus. Admin. But, I tried to keep my kids in a stable environment during high school and lost $200,000 in IRA's because of bad advice and crooked housing lenders. No, I paid 20% down, conventional loan. But, the regional housing market went so far under my wife and I -both teachers lost everything- and now, at 71 years of age I should be retired but still working to pay off IRS and other debt.

Financial institutions would not exist without people. When the people lose faith in those institutions, they no longer will do business with them. I join thousands upon thousands who strongly support new rules that will require financial advisers to act in the best and honest interest of their clients without whom they will cease to exist. For far too long, Wall Street has quite literally raped the unwary public. What's worse is that they have legally been allowed to do so. Now is the time for our government to act for the good of the public and put strong legislation in place for our collective financial protection. Congress must not undermine President Obama in his efforts once more to look after the nation that has twice elected him.

Help protect Americans' retirement security by supporting new rules that would require financial advisers to act in the interest of their customers rather than for their own financial gain. Join the president's call to the Department of Labor to issue these rules, and don't let congressional action undermine this commonsense effort.

As a Daily Money Manager, I work with seniors and regularly fear for their financial security as they lose the ability to discern among the onslaught of ads and mailers that trick or frighten them. That's enough of a crime. Surely financial advisors, who have been allowed more access to the finances of these often vulnerable citizens, should be required to act ethically and honorably. Please tighten the rules for these professionals so that unethical behavior can be punished and higher standards upheld.

As a fairly new retiree, I feel strongly that fellow retirees and I would benefit greatly from this kind of protection. Most Americans are not knowledgeable enough about finances and what we don't know makes us susceptible to making mistakes we can't afford and/or to being misled. Please support retirement security for Americans by issuing these rules. Thank you.

I had the experience of a financial advisor, a female who I liked. (I had just re-located and transferred my IRA and individual investment club funds over to her) I thought I was doing great until a co-worker of my husband, also a teacher was astounded at my portfolio and the tactics she was using and the fees she was charging to add to her own coffers and Wall Streets. He showed me where I was losing $$ left and right. He was surprised how unethical but "legal" her transactions were. My portfolio had indeed plummeted during 2001 to 2007, but she assured me we were in "unusual times" and to hang in there. She had been in business for years in the same location but actually "disappeared" 2 months after I transferred my accounts. I learned the hard way....but many didn't. I'm not rich by any means, but it was quite dis-heartining to realize that I had lost over 9 months of TOTAL income (as an Emergency Room Nurse) due to her "investments". That was a wake up call. And actually a pretty big deal.

Thankful to have a president now who (at least some of the time) works to change things for the better in the interest of the people as opposed to working for his own gain through the pockets of the disgustingly wealthy. Unfortunately all the good he has done will unravel quickly once he steps down. By the time I'm old and need someone to fight for me i doubt there will be a heartfilled soul left.

If financial statement auditors are required to act in the interest to protect the shareholders and users of financial statements, if the doctors and nurses are required to act in the interests of their patients, if the teachers are required to act in the interest of their students, if parents are required to act in the interest of their children, if bus drivers and even train operators are required to drive safely as a way to act in the interest of their passengers....shouldn't the financial advisers have to act in the interest of their customers?

Congress and our Government should PROTECT their constituents!!! Also they should NOT RECEIVE RETIREMENT BENEFITS FROM TAX PAYERS, their benefits should be based same as any tax paying citizen and pay into Social Security, IRA's, 401K's etc that way they would WANT to AGREE with this petition!!!!

I have been a victim of very bad advice that was motivated by fees for the advisor. I've seen terrible suggestions for IRA investments in risky ventures that only produce tax write offs which are of no value in IRAs. There are suited monsters out there. Our typical low information retirees (who are also low information voters) need any help that they can get even though they continue to vote for healthcare elimination, silly wars and low wages.

The way this reads, then if you're a Congressman or Senator, especially a Republican, then you should be on board, especially as a Tea Party elected official, then you should want to make sure that every taxpayer who "INVESTS" in a retirement fund of some sort, be allowed to keep more of their money, and even be able to earn or invest more of their retirement income, without the penalties or restrictions that are incurred because of either more taxes, regulations or lack of fiduciary controls. Therefore, you should be behind this Action in particular, no matter what party you are from.

Feb 25, 2015

I don't have money hidden off-shore or under my mattress. All I have for end-of-life (which isn't much—only 5 figures), is vulnerable to mistakes of greed by financial advisors. Please protect my interests over the interests of those who are being paid to look out for mine.

Marta Tomlinson
Frederick, MD 21701
Feb 25, 2015

Financial advisors usually try to assure their clients that they (the advisors) are working in the client's best interests -- but too often they are acting in their own interests. There should be rules that encourage them to keep their word.

We must stop the egregious and common practices by financial advisors and their industry, that are clearly NOT in the best interests of their clients. We pay them in good faith, but the record shows that they do not respect that. We need the legislation that the President is proposing.

Protect citizens rights. Wall Street & Congress

RECIPES FOR THE BOOK: COCINARTISTAS # 1 MATUS DELICIOUS, NUTRITIOUS COOKIES FOR SUPER HEROES & FRIENDS (This is an original, formally secret, family recipe from Grandma Cookie, circa 2012 AD) 1 1/2 cups of whole oats, blended to flour 1/2 cup of raw almonds blended to meal or finer, as you like 1/4 cup of flax seed, ground 1/2 to 1 cup of shredded coconut, as you like 1 teaspoon of baking powder 1teaspoon of cinnamon 1 pinch pf salt Toss all the dry ingredients together, artfully. Mix seperately: 1 large egg, beaten Add 1/2 to 3/4 cup of sweetener, to taste, in liquid form: Pure Maple syrup is a fabulous choice Agave syrup is pretty good runner up. Tapa Dulce*in liquid form will work very well indeed. 1 teaspoon of vanilla 1/2 cup of good quality, (preferably cold pressed oil) such as safflower oil *Tapa Dulce is raw, unrefined sugar, commonly found in Costa Rica and used in many traditional & non traditional recipes. In a bowl, pour hot water to cover, over dried fruit, to plump it up. 1/2 to 3/4 of a cup of the following suggestions are supurb: Goji berries Cranberries Dried apricot, diced, Cherries For a tropical touch, Costa Rican style, try dried mango, pinapple or banana. Feel free to mix it up or choose the fruit according to your mood or color preference. When the fruit is nicely plump, add the sweetner and egg and oil. (Keep the liquid from soaking the fruit handy.) Now mix the dry ingredients with the wet ones, to a thick, pasty consistancy until every part of the mixture is moist. (here is where the extra liquid from soaking the fruit comes in handy). Line two cookie sheets with parchment paper, eliminating the need for greasing the pans. Plop spoonfuls of the mixture onto the parchment paper, flatten each cookie with a fork, because this cookie dough does not spread or change shape during the cooking. Bake @ 375 degrees F. Until browned on the bottom.n remove and cool on a rack. Yields 24 to 36 cookies, depending on the spoon size you use. Note: these cookies are magical and you will want to bake them for your grandchildren, friends & family, knowing you have made a Happy Healthy Treat with Wholesome ingredients. Enjoy! With love from Grandma Cookie # 2 POWERFUL VITAMINICA MORNING SHAKE: Fill a blender with 1/3 to 1/2 of a freshly chopped pinapple Add 2 or 3 leaves of kale, or a handful of fresh spinach, and/or some parsley. Add 2 large fresh basil leaves or more, to taste Add raw ginger root to taste, (tip: go gingerly here). Blend well, drink and stand back to receive the full effect. RECIPES FOR THE BOOK: COCINARTISTAS # 1 MATUS DELICIOUS, NUTRITIOUS COOKIES FOR SUPER HEROES & FRIENDS (This is an original, formally secret, family recipe from Grandma Cookie, circa 2012 AD) 1 1/2 cups of whole oats, blended to flour 1/2 cup of raw almonds blended to meal or finer, as you like 1/4 cup of flax seed, ground 1/2 to 1 cup of shredded coconut, as you like 1 teaspoon of baking powder 1teaspoon of cinnamon 1 pinch pf salt Toss all the dry ingredients together, artfully. Doctors, lawyers and other professionals are expected to act in the interest of their consumers -- why aren't financial advisors? Every single year, an estimated $17 billion dollars is transferred from Main Street retirement accounts into Wall Street's coffers—because brokers and financial advisers are allowed to steer investors into unethical investments that aren't in their own best interests. DO THE RIGHT THING FOR THE AMERICAN PEOPLE!!

Tho' my income retirement is very modest & need my SS benefits to make it even workable, I am nonetheless VERY luck. Many aren't. If I hadn't been lucky enough to have a defined pension benefit, I would scarce be knowledgable to do it on my own; having a fiduciary who had MY best interests at heart would be, at least, the minimum & even that would be very, very scary. So many folks are being hung out to dry....after sucking them dry of their modest funds....do the right thing here, please.

What ever happened to "The customer is always right" or the concept that business competition means competitors strive to make their products better than their competition in order to draw customers away from their competitors? Some times, not always, the old definition of competition (between businesses) for the customer is better than what it has devolved to. Today if you're the customer you are often told, by implication, "take it or leave, that's the way we operate".

A very good friend of mine lost her entire retirement fund and had to go back to work because of a so-called financial adviser's malpractice. It seems hard to believe that I need to sign a petition to ask that such "financial advisers" be held accountable, but there it is. Please make it so.

protect the right to age gracefully and with dignity, without the need of my grandmother to be cleaning houses at 85 or the uncertainties my parents face after retirement. Dear senators, congress men and women, yourselves and your families are forever entitled to your pension, which comes out of every tax payer's pocket. Pass laws that protect the rest of us, let me remind you, it is your duty.

for decades the Financial Advisers have been under fiduciary responsibility to protect and act for the benefit of the clients. The fact that we have to sign a petition asking congress to enforce this is showing how corrupt Congress has become with the Wall Street Money and hedge fund managers paying a maximum of 15% tax on short term speculative gambling with other people's money, a lower rate than the long term capital gains. Senator Shcumer of NY a Democrat has acknowledged this inequity like tens of Senators and Reps, but they all including Schumer refuse to change it, because they are addicted to the Wall Street money feeding their corrupt governing.

ALL professions have Codes of Ethics outlining the applicable elements of the fiduciary duties required for the particular tasks performed by that profession. We had naturally assumed that financial planners operated with the same sets of rules as the rest of us. How foolish to just assume. This one is a no brainer, and the opponents, or those foolish enough to stake out the territory of an opponent, will be placing the mark of imminent retirement upon themselves. David C. This is long overdue. This should be the law of the land and should have been 50 years ago. I'd call it ethical behavior with integrity. No one should be allowed to knowingly sell pigs with lipstick to people saving for their retirement. It's not that hard to do and it's in the best interests of the country over the long term.

it is better to have sincerity, fairness and common sense in any government body including the Department of Labour because many people as in majority of people detest deception, cheats, charlatans, unfairness and halfwits who lack common sense in governing bodies who do not care for their constituents. People demand justice and they want the Department of Labour to be fair, ethical, pragmatic, and use their common sense for crying out loud.

One small step towards equality (of the many that need to be taken) in the CEO/Wall Street compensations/paychecks are outstandingly out of control and totally unrealistic in terms of middle case survival. There greed will bring them down with ultimate and obvious revolution. What a devastating end to the American dream.

We are getting to the point where France was before the Revolution.....Wall Street may be able to afford cake.....the rest of us are having to make decisions between eating ...or heating our homes....or doing without a car....while having a job. The Corporate greed in this country has got to stop.....protect my retirement securityI have worked for 44 years FOR my retirement security.....and can't afford to retire because of these guys that walk around in thousand dollar shoes and continue to rob the working poor.

I find it hilarious and tragic that financial advisors are not ALREADY required to act in their clients' best interest. Can you imagine other professions without the same rule? A lawyer who doesn't advocate for their client? A car mechanic who fixes non-existent problems? A doctor who recommends unnecessary, expensive, dangerous procedures? Those are all already illegal, just as false financial advising should be.

My retirement savings evaporated in 2008. My 401(k) options were limited by my employer's choice of a management company. All the available options tanked, there were no "safe" investments. At 63 and disabled I face a new life in poverty.

My last financial advisor made sure she got paid as soon as I retired and rolled over my 401K! She sold dividend paying stocks in order to buy $200K of mutual funds that paid her a bonus!!!! I found out much too late, and because she didn't have to disclose what she was doing, she made out better than I did for over 3 years! That's not right!!!! Demand that these thieves take care of retirees, and not themselves first!!!!

I expect that anyone who uses a financial advisor expects that advisor to work for the client's best interests already. It's a sad commentary on the financial industry that we have to pass a law at this stage of our civilization to require financial advisors to do what they should have been doing all along.

I absolutely support legislation requiring financial advisers to act in the interest of their customers rather than for their own financial gain. I am 65 years old and yes, I vote. And, the public is sick and tired of legislators who support the interest of their contributors rather than the population at large.

The disasters of 2008-'09 might not have happened had that been the rule. PNC was able to take my 89 yr. old mother's home - enen though she had been asing for a new mortgage for over a year when she could not longer pay the mortgage due to loss of income from the bursting real estate bubble. It remains a huge crime.

It's time! greed is blinding these corporate run puppets, against the fact that the more hopeful and invigorated the middle class is the better they can rig the system again to steal from them!they're missing the opportunity to be leveraging way more money out of the middle class if they let them get a little bit better off before they rob them with their corporate rig in the Wall Street systems that funnel in upwards to the rich. What's stupid about this Congress and the corporate greed is that there strangling the hand that feeds themthey could be making way more money than they are doing now by keeping the middle class so downtrodden. They could be making the middle class better paid happier better workers so they have more to steal from them! Raise the wage raise the gap?

Financial advisers make quite enough money without having to make even more off the backs of the middle-to-lower class. Saving for retirement is hard enough when many of us are living paycheck-to-paycheck. Please don't make it even more difficult by acting in your best interests instead of ours.

Financial firms and banks that handle retirement accounts need to declare a fiduciary standard in relation to their clients. A fiduciary standard means that by law the investment firm must place its' customers' interests first. Currently, these firms and banks are not bound by law to put their customers' interests first, which means they are probably going to peddle their proprietary "products", usually mutual funds of middling quality that are larded with hidden fees.

Wall street is purely driven by greed at the expense and detriment of working class Americans. The system is rigged. Working class Americans should and MUST have better protection. Wall street should act as true capitalists and take risks equal to their potential gains. Make capitalism work for everyone and not just for the already rich and overly greedy.

Academic studies show that financial advisors will not lose business if they become fiduciaries. In fact, they would attract more clients by increasing their level of trust.

As defined contribution plans continue to supplant defined benefit plans, this legislation is critical. Few Americans are skilled enough to evaluate financial professionals. This time they need government help.

Congress must act with integrity to protect investors and financial planner need to see the example of acting in the best interest of constituents so that they will be encouraged to act with integrity as well. Honesty, truthfulness, and integrity can't be legislated; Congress can lead by example.

This should be a no-brainer. My father lost most of his life savings to unscrupulous financial advisers. That money would have been used to care for him with Alzheimers disease. His children have to supplement his care and we had to sell his home to pay a part time caregiver. I am so glad that his dementia keeps him from knowing the depths that our government "of the people, by the people and for the people" has sunk! Congress, if you have any sense of morality, ethics and decency left protect Americas retirees.

The draining of wealth from the middle class over the past few decades has been a deplorable and destructive act. We need to do what we can to protect and develop a stronger middle class. The top 1% cannot sustain our great nation by sucking the blood out of it.

I've been reading several comments about this proposal. One comment was that if people get screwed by their financial advisor, it's their own fault for not doing their own research. Another commenter suggested that this should go under the Treasury department and not labor. Investing is so complicated these days, that it is very difficult to know what to do, and there is a lot of conflicting advice. So it makes sense that one should have a financial advisor, whose living depends on his or her expertise. Furthermore, this should be under the department of labor. Treasury is too friendly with Wall Street. Labor is friendly to... well... labor.

My parents and I have all been steered into bad investments (bad for us; good for them) by financial advisers who claimed to be working on our behalf. And we know of numerous other hard-working people who have been misled by 'their' advisers--who turned out were acting on behalf of themselves & their firms--often in cahoots with Big Banks, Big Insurance, etc. Our economic system grows weaker as those at the very top grow ever wealthier and stronger. Vast inequality leads to ruin for All.

Financial advisors are paid explicitly to guide the decisions of their clients toward the client's financial goals, not that of the advisor. The client has no independent means, by definition, of independently verifying the advice given, and advisors who abuse this trust are committing theft via sales fraud. DOL should have rules that prohibit such fraud by specifying a fiduciary interest to the client.

Savings should be encouraged and protected, from high fees and taxation, because saving require sacrifice and caring about the future and the ability for families to earn and be productive, responsible citizens. It's an investment where the returns are incalculable and the value critical to the survival of the country.

Some people don't seem to realize that working Americans pay for the benefits and protection thqt later get when they retire. And, right now, there's approximately $2.8 Trillion in assets in the two main trust accounts for Social Security and Disability Insurance. Now, Republicans want to steal that money away from Americans, who worked hard to earn it.

The new rule to protect consumers is just common sense. As an architect, I am obligated to protect my clients. Why shouldn't my financial adviser be similarly bound. My first experience with an financial advisor resulted in his legally misappropriating my $25,000 in saving and eliminating it completely in a matter of months. What took me years of hard work, he could legally take in a matter of minutes. This is wrong. There should be a law.

I support this legislation in an effort to hold financial advisers accountable and require that they perform services for their customers that are in fact in the best interest of these customers. Let's ensure that this industry makes acting ethically and transparently a top priority.

Thank you. This should have happened years ago. Once again the Baby Boom generation is being blamed for not saving enough for retirement when their financial advisors (if they could even afford to hire one) have been steering them in the direction that mainly benefitted the financial advisor. The fees on their investments have been way too high; their IRAs (Reagan's grand Individual Retirement Account) have underperformed and been mostly useless except to Wall Street, which has boomed. Republicans now are upping the perennial war on Social Security, the last protection the elderly, disabled and widows and orphans have against total poverty.

We need to regulate financial transactions and how bank operate for profit as their first priority. Requiring our financial advisers to act in the interest of their customers should not even be needed in legislation, but it clearly is a huge need, as they have gone ahead to enrich everything they could for themselves in many cases and have not been prosecuted. Take this action and pass the new rules on financial advisers!!!!
