Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Mender
702 Ormond Blvd.
Destrehan, La 70047

h_mender@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven Ritter
805 Limestone Cr. Apt. 1
Russellville, Ar 72802

s55ritter@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Wiley
2462 Linker Mountain Rd.
Dover, AR 72837

janetwiley1@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Hayes
58 Mine Road
Westhampton, MA 1027

beesureitsme@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kristy Chiasson
124 Flex Lane
Thibodaux, La 70301

Ktc633@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ralph Barringer
708 Elsmere Circle
Louisville, KY 40223

ralph.barringer@nm.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Berry Detraz
1901 Colony Rd.
Metairie, La 70003

chagee@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amber Wilcoxon
6495 Foster Drive
Riverside, CA 92506

aw2430@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Fred Bogner
9516 Bridlewood Trail
Dayton, Oh 45458

ytdeadelm@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George Eckhoff
2283 Fuerte St
Oceanside, CA 92054

ceckhoff@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cynthia Eckhoff
2283 Fuerte St
Oceanside, CA 92054

ceckhoff@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mike Matthey
211 Carriage Lane
Sergeant bluff, Ia 51054

Mmatthey1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jessie Hayden
2912 Blackwood Road
Decatur, GA 30033

jessie_hayden@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janice George
1415 Piney Branch Circle
Valrico, FL 33594

jmgeorge913@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peter Bowerman
3713 Stonewall Circle
Atlanta, GA 30339

pbowerman@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joyce Johnson
2422 Tamrack Drive
Long Lake, Mm 55356

Joyce2422@gmail.cm

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Price
18615 Double Fork Rd
San Antonio, TX 78258

Buster650@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ginger Pyron
1261 Kingsley Circle NE Apt B
Atlanta, GA 30324

ginger.pyron@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Beauregard
40627 N 6th Ave
Phoenix, AZ 85086

rsbeau2@gmail.co,

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Scannell
1926 Erin Brooke Dr
Valrico, Fl 33594

scan104@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Denise Ward
2418 W. Boston St.
Seattle, WA 98199

demichward@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Michalski
529 Jackson Valley Road
Oxford, NJ 7863

wmichalski@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dawna Bordelon
3501 Peachtree Lane
Schertz, TX 78154

dbordelon_0621@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Helena McFadden
23 Herbert Drive
New Castle, DE 19720

helga394evr@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Mattocks
5056 N Prestwick ave
Wichita, KS 67226

smattocks@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Gagnon
703 S D St
Fairfield, IA 52556

tbigg@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Dodd
95 Creekstone Drive
Corbin, Ky 40701

dldodd55@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Beth Garlick
8620 W 110th Street
Overland Park, Ka 66210

bgarlick@vsrfs.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kaileigh Eddy
337 Hubbard Street
South Haven, MI 49090

kaileigh.eddy@ceterafs.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Freeman
8620 West 110th Street
Overland Park, KS 66210

kfreeman@vsrfs.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brenda Noviello
106 VintageIsle Lane
Palm Beach Gardens, FL 33418

nfg@noviellogroup.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Connelly
10925 W 100th Street
Overland Park, ks 66214

jconnelly@vsrfs.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephanie Noviello
55 Totten Drive
Bridgewater, NJ 8807

nfg@noviellogroup.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bridget Glasscock
1392 Holmes Landing y
Fleming Island, FL 32003

keytoorganize@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eileen Quint
510 SW Holloway Lane
Lees Summit, MO 64081

equint@kc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Keith Boger
125 Wind Forest Ct
Clarkesville, GA 30523

keboger@icloud.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janice Vitale
4474 SW Tabor Street
Port Saint Lucie, FL 34953

jlvpsl@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jo Green
50 West Maple Ave, Apt 17C
Merchantville, NJ 8109

jogreen1021@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christopher Barber
13745 Village Vista Dr
Haslet, TX 76052

barbermania@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

vic basinski
627 forecasle ave
beachwood, nj 8722

vicbasinski@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Raymond Childers
3139 franklin ave. sw
Grandville, Mi 49418

childers3139@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Komara
117 Pond View Lane
Hendersonville, NC 28792

komficon@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Allan Parker
3015 Oak Sprawl
San Antonio, Tx 78231

Parker4justice@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Vincent
5814 117th St.
DElano, Mn 55328

dvincent@wsbeng.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frank Dobnikar
705 Cedar Bark Dr
Aurora, OH 44202

frank@sdcapital.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jay Dings
385 Blue Ridge Drive P. O. Box 329
Canadensis, PA 18325

jdings@ptd.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Mann
411 Hillside Avenue
New Cumberland, PA 17070

candymann@epix.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Katherine Sipperley
303 Massapequa Ave.
Massapequa, NY 11758

kfsipp@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Audrey Perez
4029 W. South Ave.
Tampa, Fl 33614

audrey@mrempanada.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Freemark
20341 Kensington Court
Lakeville, Mn 55044

Jfreemark@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Wold
2121 Williams St
Shakopee, MN 55379

kwold@wsbeng.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan McGinnis
92 Westwood Ln
Kerrville, TX 78028

redeemed4sure@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peter Mullen
118 Honeycroft Blvd
Cochranville, PA 19330

psmullen@sherpafinancial.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michele Prunier
44 Merriam rd
Princeton, MA 1541

Prunier.michele@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wendy Watson
143 U. R. Lost Road
Blanco, TX 78606

wendywatson@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gil Balderrama
440 N Retreat Dr
Show Low, AZ 85901

mrgilb1@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jessie Hayden
2912 Blackwood Road
Decatur, GA 30033

jessie_hayden@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Angela Felknor
4870 Lodge Lane
Excelsior, MN 55331

afelknor@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

kimberly berg 2000 major circle
golden valley, mn 55422

olesmon@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gail Vetter
106 Dome Rock Trial
Florissant, CO 80816

gailvetter@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Nudi
22920 Nowlin St
Dearborn, MI 48124

jnudi@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shawn Walton
36 Bass Lake Drive
Debary, FL 32713

swalton76@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lawrence E. Kaiser, Jr.
6596 Hill Rd
Fayetteville, PA 17222

lkjr@embarqmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dianne Rogers
10613 Big Canoe
Jasper, GA 30143

dhr2573@tds.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen & Jurate Martin
768 N 350 W
American Fork, UT 84074

stephen@fns.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gail Vetter
106 Dome Rock Trial
Florissant, CO 80816

gailvetter@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Francis Ostlund
60564 Elkai Woods Dr
Bend, OR 97702

ostlund@bendbroadband.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Virginia Todd
3031 S 47th Avenue
Yuma, AZ 85364

ctodd3556@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Fay Freed
5201 W. Crocus Drive
Glendale, AZ 85306

freed1944@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wesley Myers
2911 Spring Creek Lane
Pearland, TX 77581

guy.myers@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas Farnell
8450 Moffett Rd
Semmes, AL 36575

farnelld@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shelly Boyle
360 Barbados Drive
Cheektowaga, NY 14227

letters2shelly@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Shumaker
6292 Old Hillsboro Rd
Forest, MS 39074

ami.faith@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Victor Ford
p.o. box 151
Star, Ms 39167

fordvf@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Faith Shumaker
6292 Old Hillsboro Rd
Forest, MS 39074

ami.faith@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerri Kurdila
403 Red Tail Pl
Trenton, OH 45067

jerri.kurdila@duke-energy.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Raines
P. O. Box 8933
Lacey, WA 98509

larryraines@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bethany Holsopple
149 Glenn Street
Johnstown, PA 15906

bholsopple@pfcs.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Carol Meinken
1711 FLORA AVENUE
CINCINNATI, OH 45231

marycarolmeinken@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kelly Fields
3930 Mescal Circle
Lincoln, NE 68516

kafields65@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

LaCresa Bell
7850 Terry Road
Terry, MS 39170

lacresa@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

rich schaufert
PO Box 711
Fairfield, TX 75840

rschaufert@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Terri Burkhardt
305 S Washington Bl
Hamilton, Oh 45013

terri.burkhardt@christianbenevolent.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael and Susan Risse
1516 79th Ave N
Brooklyn Park, MN 55444

rissemike@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Paquin
2040 Hunt Club Drive
Grosse Pointe Woods, MI 48236

pa.paquin@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vicki Teeter
707 Sycamore St
Starkville, MS 39759

Worksalotmore77@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George Johnson
1177 Avondale Court
Frederick, MD 21702

gandcjohnson@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Yeagley
214 Shadow Wood Drive
Clinton, MS 39056

cyeagley13@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Munn
138 N. Morrison Rd
West Branch, MI 48661

jim.munn@cambridgeinvestmentresearch.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vicki Strode
4633 S Evanston Ave
Tulsa, Ok 74105

lindolleys@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Hutsell
1085 S. Lakemont Avenue #202
Winter Park, FL 32792

chutsell43@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Madden
908 Meadowlark Road
De Pere, WI 54115

mike@n-e-w-maddens.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Greer
2877 wheatfield
Cincinnati, Oh 45251

Charlesgreer12@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathy Sweeton
3455 Falcon Ave.
Long Beach, CA 90807

sweeton@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judy Aldrich
11304 E Pratt. Ave
Mesa, AZ 85212

Rvjudy14@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Greer
2877 wheatfield
Cincinnati, Oh 45251

Charlesgreer12@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kurt Winkler
2948 Jamil Court
Hamilton, OH 45011

kwwinkler@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gregory Mortenson
10181 Wild DUck Pass
Eden Prairie, Mn 55347

gmortenson@capstoneadvgroup.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Harry Goodwin
1414 Leahy Dr
Fort Collins, CO 80525

harryg@gfs01.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laurel Gill
22300 Fitzgerald Drive
Gaithersburg, MD 20882

Hhhhgoatfolks@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gregory Delk
2020 Broken Lance Ln
Rockwall, TX 75032

greg@gsdelk.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nicolas L
1514 Rhett Place
Woodstock, IL 60098

bigstrides98@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dennis Brinkman
218 Paulson Road
Harvard, IL 60033

dennisbrinkman121@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel Knopoff
308 Hickory Lane
South Elgin, Il 60177

dknopoff@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

MARK DERESINSKI
1627 VERMONT
ELK GROVE VILLAGE, IL 60007

AGERESHMC@YAHOO.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrea Turner
742 Eletson Drive
Crystal Lake, IL 60014

aturner3550@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sylvia Linares-Williams
2590 Anaconda Trail
Maitland, FL 32751

sylvia@SFMadvisorgroup.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Julie Nestelberger
1165 Grant Street Apt. 101
Denver, Co 80203

Jnjules8@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Rosenfeld
11605 2nd St
Huntley, IL 60142

dnsrosenfeld@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Greenberg
6512 N. Trumbull
Lincolnwood, IL 60712

mgreenberg9918@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judith Duffiney
1402 S. 6th Ave
Des Plaines, Il 60018

Jduffiney@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gwen Vitzthum
272 Daniels Way
Geneva, IL 60134

gvitzthum@ccigreenheart.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jared Silver
28576 West Lindbergh Dr
Barrington, IL 60010

Jared@ataglanceMarketing.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cindy Lark
355 Pembroke Drive
Saline, MI 48176

Cindy48176@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

G William Hubbard
2051 N Bissell St.
Chicago, Il 60614

bill@hubbardbusiness.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Gullick
14 Normandy Ct.
Cary, IL 60013

lgullick@galatte.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ralph troeger
425 W. Ottawa Street
Sycamore, IL 60178

Huggieu@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Dewey
37 Faringdon Drive
Crystal Lake, IL 60014

jdewey@mc.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joe Pfaffinger
3024 Garden Ln
Crystal Lake, il 60012

gothockey@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Camille King
8339 Raptor Trl.
Lakewood, IL 60014

siscakd@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kyle Pfaffinger
3024 Garden Ln
Crystal Lake, il 60012

multisports@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Jane Scott
1618 Union Ave.
Belvidere, Il 61008

cardinal815@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Jane Scott
1618 Union Ave.
Belvidere, Il 61008

cardinal815@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Lehman-Cichy
329 Everett Ave. Unit 1B
Crystal Lake, IL 600147169

bjsjoy@icloud.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Jane Scott
1618 Union Ave.
Belvidere, Il 61008

cardinal815@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Strein
16124 85th Court
Tinley Park, Il 60487

dstrein@gls55.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Pfaffinger
3024 Garden Ln
Crystal Lake, IL 60012

Kpfaff1722@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Pfaffinger
3024 Garden Ln
Crystal Lake, il 60012

ourhockey@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jacob Cichy
7920 Ridgefield Road   Lot 27
Crystal Lake, IL 60012

jcichy1@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Jarvis
621 Kendallwood Court
Crystal Lake, IL 60014

rjarvis@perfectShutters.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathryn Bonner
100 Shady Oaks Court
New Bern, NC 28562

msbonner@suddenlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Carpenter
123 S Hanover st
Hummelstown, Pa 17036

rbcarp123@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ruby cannon
4526 Don Felipe Dr.
Los Angeles, CA 90008

rcannon3262@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Rowett
186 E. Hulls Ridge Ct.
Boise, ID 83702

govandals78@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Schmidt
2832 Overdale Dr
Cincinnati, OH 45251

tschmidt@zoomtown.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Katherine Mitchell
8159 Doral Lane
Hemet, CA 92545

Tokaymitchell@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Gipe
125 BROOKSIDE AVE
HERSHEY, Pe 17033

s125gipe@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Gipe
125 BROOKSIDE AVE
HERSHEY, Pe 17033

s125gipe@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Dickson
67 West Walnut Road
Vineland, NJ 8360

micsan47@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Dickson
67 West Walnut Road
Vineland, NJ 8360

micsan47@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Dickson
67 West Walnut Road
Vineland, NJ 8360

micsan47@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Dickson
67 West Walnut Road
Vineland, NJ 8360

micsan47@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Kennedy
1010 Margaret ct
Hazlehurst, Ms 39083

jkk70@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Rybka
1699 Brookwood drive
Akron, Oh 44314

Cheryl.Rybka@valmarksecurities.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eric Tingom
1610 E. Campbell Ave
Gilbert, az 85234

etingom@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michelle Hoffman
326 Spruce Street
Emmaus, PA 18049

Hoff475@ptd.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Ward
14007 Newgate Court
Orland Park, IL 60462

sandyward60462@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Emily McGinnis 9303 S Richmond
Evergreen Park, IL 60805

elmcginnis@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Josephine Coursey
10837 Auburn Ave. S
Seattle, WA 98178

courseyhj@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eva Downs
PO Box 1778 12 Pearl St
Kennebunkport, St 4046

evadowns18@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Van Hallman Jr
240 W.Stanford Ave
Gilbert, Az 85233

vanhallmanjr@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patty Moran
6058 Meadow Falls Dr
Liberty Township, OH 45011

patty@dekramer.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marilyn Visakay
19 Catan Drive
Flanders, NJ 7836

mbv9654@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Darlene Kinnan
162 Mormon Trail
Lincoln, Ne 68521

dkinnan@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dennis J. Bassett
290 Woods Road
Barre, Ma 1005

dbeb346@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kimberly Teira
196 Village Green Ave
Saint Johns, Fl 32259

kteira123@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eileen C. Bassett
290 Woods Road
Barre, Ma 1005

dbeb346@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Keer
202 E. High St.
Coaldale, PA 18218

oldlad@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wendy Zbieranek
3317 S. Burrell St.
Milwaukee, WI 53207

wzbieranek@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Henry Brown
682 Savage Road
Mt. Airy, Ga 30563

henryabrown@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Allison Higgins
4 Elizabeth Terrace
Neptune, NJ 7753

bangaleft@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dennis J. Bassett
290 Woods Road
Barre, Ma 1005

dbeb346@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Reinhardt
280 Kendal Drive
Kennett Square, PA 19348

Cfreinhardt1@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Darrel Kinnan
162 Mormon Trail
Lincoln, Ne 68521

dkinnan@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dolores Krenke
5327 West Luebbe Lane
Milwaukee, WI 53223

dkrenke@wi.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barry Dembrowski
504 Emma Street
Mount Holly, NJ 8060

georgiamutt@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Dembrowski
504 Emma Street
Mount Holly, NJ 8060

jennifer.dembrowski@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

roger nolte
7330 KNOX CT
LINCOLN, Ne 68507

rnolte1@neb.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Pamela fagundes
9113 Acorn Ridge Circle
Elk Grove, CA 95758

pjfrch@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Lundstrom Cook
1504 tulip tree lane
West Des Moines, Ia 50266

Llcookfamily@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Randall Stage
4600 Lamont Street 4-223
San Diego, Ca 92109

stagers@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Curtis Brookins
4725 Marie Lane E
Golden Valley, MN 55422

curtbrookins@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michelle Murphy
13195 W Scarborough Drive
New Berlin, WI 53151

mmburant@prodigy.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Wever
4 Brookhaven Circle
S. Barrington, IL 60010

kevin_wever@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tonia Dyas
2710 Little Oak Lane
Rescue, CA 95672

tonia@tbase.biz

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Todd Stonesifer
115 N State Street
Dover, DE 19901

todd@toddstonesifer.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Renee Meade
411 Bleeker St Apt 207
Delafield, WI 53018

reneejmeade@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

john snyder
14572 greenover lane
jacksonville, fl 32258

john228tina@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Barclay
6115 Old Orchard Road
Indianapolis, IN 46226

barclaysb@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

PETER NELSON
2773 DOUBLE EAGLE DRIVE
BEAVERCREEK, OH 45431

flyerprof@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Matthew Jones
530 E 106th Terrace kansas city, mo 64131

mwsrjones@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeanne Myers
205 West Heritage Drive
Friendswood, TX 77546

JeanneO31@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ron Mester
3339 Mester dr
Wesley Chapel, Fl 33543

rhmester@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gerald Hoffman
18 Crest Circle Matawan Matawan, NJ 7747

wolfman5@optonline.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debra Biosca
1101 Valley Stream Dr.
Wheeling, IL 60090

debbiebiosca@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brett Poirier
PO Box 972
Point Reyes Station, Ca 94956

brett054@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ARTHUR CONNOR
201 WHITEFAWN TRAIL
DOWNERS GROVE, IL 60516

connor.a@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tim Hufstedler
145 Molina
Kerrville, TX 78028

timhufstedler@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roy Klein
8406 Wickersham St
San Antonio, TX 78254

doctor.roy@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Kafka
3712 Briar Path
Sioux City, IA 51104

kafkamt@cableone.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nathan Boonstra
O-11520 Woodgate NW
Grand Rapids, MI 49534

nboons0317@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

DIANE POKRYFKE
10208 SONG SPARROW LANE
HIGHLANDS RANCH, CO 80129

diane.pokryfke@natplan.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Braun
8819 W Laurel Ln
Peoria, AZ 85345

dbozo49@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patrick O
5707 Undine Dr
Louisville, Ky 40216

oflynn1982@twc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tiffany Gordon
12558 Bellingham Rd
Caledonia, Il 61011

tiffany.gordon5@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Clayton Sanders
731 Creekwood Drive South
Fairview, TX 75069

csanders@iag-usa.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynn Kafka
3712 Briar Path
Sioux City, IA 51104

lakafka523@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jaime Westenbarger
2589 Black Horse Ct NE
Grand Rapids, MI 49505

jmwest77@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Mullin
20 Valley stream parkway suite 280 malvern, Pe 19355

wbmullin@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

fredrick eichstaedt 345 delano rd
au gres, mi 48703

eichstaedt38@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peter Banus
21907 Seminole Oaks
San Antonio, Tx 78261

pbanus@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gail Vetter
106 Dome Rock Trial
Florissant, CO 80816

gailvetter@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sovannary Thien
2184 Park Manor View
Snellville, GA 30078

Sovannaryt@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rose Dempsey
2451 Rollingview
Beavercreek, Oh 45431

Rosie2451@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peter Marmaras
2092 Delabole rd
Pen Argyl, Pa 18072

pmarmaras@frontiernet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Maryann Johnson
26 Red Tail Dr
Litteton, Co 80126

auntmame@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marianne Becker
14626 Grenadine Drive #5
Tampa, Fl 33613

Beckermsb1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Emily Schmidt
805 Pinetree Drive
Decatur, GA 30030

Schmidt.emily@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Adams
10266 W. Waterway Ct.
Boise, Id 83714

twacka6@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ray Walls
62650 Nottawa Road
Sturgis, MI 49091

shetypes@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Deborah O
18606 Little Star Lane
Germantown, MD 20874

Debaoneill59@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lenore Reeves
19934 Hickory Stick Ln
Mokena, IL 60448

lerves@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Baroni
576 Sutton Rd
New Milford, PA 18834

pa18834@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Deborah Green
9057 Rich Amethyst Ct
Las Vegas, NV 89149

greebdebl789@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Siano
4900 N Ocean Blvd
Lauderdale by the Sea, Fl 33308

msiano23@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rosanne Morrison
6482 Barrick Dr
Rockford, IL 61114

rosans4@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Keith Bryant
1816 Wedowee Court
Rock Hill, SC 29732

Keithcb@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Martha Siano
4900 N Ocean Blvd
Lauderdale by the Sea, Fl 33308

msiano23@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nicholas Myers
3911 plains ave sw
Fort Payne, Al 35967

Nandcmyers@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

paul maggiola 1102 radson ave
sun city center, fl 33573

pmaggiola@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Philip Jackson
58 Trent rd
Turnersville, NJ 8012

pjax72@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Keith Bennion
5761 S SURREYRUN RD
SALT LAKE CITY, UT 841076610

mildred2454@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Green
9057 Rich Amethyst Ct
Las Vegas, NV 89149

poolvacman@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Doris Hillman
1265 Foxcroft Drive
Aurora, IL 60506

dhillman04@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lewis Layton
1416 Sedro St
Las Vegas, NV 89144

lhlayton@interact.ccsd.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel Ail
420 Royal Terrace
Hummelstown, PA 17036

dan.ail@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gena Schaffer
1220 Callista Ave.
Valrico, Fl 33596

schaffergl@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Faith McCoy
340 Old Post Lane
Strasburg, PA 17579

femccoy@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jose Benitez
3808 Edinburgh Drive
Virginia Beach, VA 23452

jetasb@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Constance Litchko
1712 W Wood St
Coal Township, PA 17866

martysgirl@ptd.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carole Arcoleo
14 Weathervane Way
Dix Hills, NY 34952

carcoleo@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Vonasek
PO Box 5969
Auburn, CA 95604

dvonasek@foothill.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kristen Fuchs 9253 Yorkridge Rd.
Guilford, IN 47022

kristen.m.fuchs@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alice Neary
14202 Swiss Hill Drive
Houston, TX 77077

alarie96a@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edna Overton
3912 HILLWOOD ST
PORTSMOUTH, VA 23703

egoverton@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Teresa Whorton
12527 Still Harbour Dr
Houston, TX 77041

Teresa@rebarsupplyco.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patrick Keller
3734 Purdue St
Houston, Tx 77005

Patrick.r.keller@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Oko
416 Huckleberry Trail
Jacksonville, FL 32259

soko@davisfamilyoffice.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Glen Raab
201 Rainbow Dr #10123
Livingston, TX 77399

willtravel48@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Landis
2211 SW 1st Ave. Unit 504
Portland, OR 97201

chasland@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

GARY LUNDEEN
4121 BERKSHIRE RD. S.W.
ROCHESTER, MN 55902

bjlundeen@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Zebrowski
358 Newport Way
Little Egg Harbor, NJ 8077

susanroy.zebrowski@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara W McKinley
2255 Braeswood Park Drive #326
Houston, TX 77030

barbara.w.mckinley@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marilyn Macha
704 NE Shoreline Drive
Lee, MO 64064

marilyn@marilynmacha.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margaret Walsh
115 Dorsett Dr
Fayetteville, GA 30214

wals9251@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Emelyn East
115 Dorsett Dr
Fayetteville, GA 30214

wals9251@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Herman Heine
1176 Village Circle
Erie, Co 80516

Hweh1176@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Bonito
8aspetuck dr
Oxford, Ct 6478

Rrbtrumpet@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Weller
13206 W. Alderny Cir
Wichita, KS 67235

jonwel13@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janne La Foy
5964 Baypointe Blvd.
Clarkston, MI 48346

jlafoy734@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Weller
13206 W Alderny Cir
Wichita, ks 67235

amweller1@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Carter
277 William St
Stoneham, MA 2180

jcarma53@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Chad Ruot
858 County Highway 15
Tower Hill, Il 62571

clruot@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Chad Ruot
858 County Highway 15
Tower Hill, Il 62571

clruot@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Chad Ruot
858 County Highway 15
Tower Hill, Il 62571

clruot@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jonathan Blair
1111 11th Street NW #804
Washington, DC 20001

blairjo@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Poole
59 Pine Street 1
Franklinville, NY 14737

amypoole37@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Keith
2890 East Maple Road
Milford, MI 48381

copple.ek@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Carr
102 Wick Willow Rd.
Montgomery, Tx 77356

jlcrak@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judith Mewes
2903 Dove street
Rolling Meadows, il 60008

Judym2903@wowway.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Embach
84 S. Caroline St
Crystal Lake, IL 60014

Nancy_embach@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gloria Anzalone
2707 hawk ln
rolling meadows, Il 60008

craftykitty2@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Hamm
9229 Bekemeyer
Wichita, KS 67212

garyhamm@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Fred McNatt
619 Picadilly Lane
Antioch, IL 60002

fmcnatt@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Giallanza
238 Rudy York Rd
Cartersville, GA 30121

connectswires@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Earleen Thomas
18874 Maverick Ranch Rd E
Magnolia, TX 77355

earleent@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Courtney Little 6725 W Sunset Rd
Tucson, az 85743

court_little@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Weller
13206 W Alderny Cir
Wichita, KS 67235

amweller1@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marianne Swanner
137 Whitcomb Dr
Geneva, fl 32732

mkswanner@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michelle Peckham
316 Stanton Rd
Andover, ks 68002

Thepeckhams@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Julie Canfield-Shandy
8009 W 17th
Wichita, KS 67205

jacs_yba@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Metzcar
1376 Ft Jefferson Ave
Greenville, oh 45331

billm@bqiquality.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judith Austin
3138 Berridge Lane
Orlando, FL 32812

jdamrc@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Victoria Linares
11141 Prairie Hawk Drive
Orlando, FL 32837

linaresvicky@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Mullen
9901 Fox Shores Dr.
Algonquin, IL 60102

mullen520@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Williford
228 Convention Drive
Virginia Beach, VA 23462

GW-VAB@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

robert johnson
603 west baylor ennis, tx 75119

rrjjr1950@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mallory heimlich
722 Mohawk street
turnersville, nj 8012

msdheim@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lorian Roethlein
1500 N Farview Dr
Payson, AZ 85541

lorian@ics-partners.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dawn Farlow
247 Kohler Hill Road
Hamburg, PA 19526

windsorprof@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Chloe Farlow
247 Kohler Hill Road
Hamburg, PA 19526

windsorprof@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Steindorff
11807 Dover Street
Houston, TX 77031

steindorffamy@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lloyd Overton
3912 HILLWOOD ST
PORTSMOUTH, VA 23703

bqjansvc@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Musial
3814 North Nordica Ave.
Chicago, IL 60634

tommusial@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donah Claudette Rogers
1223 Cheshire Ln
Houston, TX 77018

donahclau@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Roethlein
1500 N Farview Dr
Payson, Az 85541

john@ics-partners.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Clem
19235 Skyline
Roseville, MI 48066

buddy_toall@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Hardesty
704 NE Shoreline Dr.
Lees Summit, MO 64064

john@johnhardesty.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sue Schroeder
2780 Cravey Forest Lane NE
Atlanta, Ga 30345

Sschroeder1111@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Farlow
247 Kohler Hill Road
Hamburg, PA 19526

windsorprof@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Mallett
141 East Holly St.
Milliken, CO 80543

rondmallett@centurylink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Gifford
26102 Alizia Canyon Dr. Unit C
Calabasas, Ca 91302

augiekona@twc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wilbur Catoe
25 Hillside Circle
Lexington, SC 29073

wcatoe2@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Nielson
4221 S. 6th Street Lot E-C
Milwaukee, WI 53221

pattie700@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Tollman
818 Rumford Court
Fort Collins, CO 80525

tomtollman60@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laura Connolley
4124 SE Bavarian ln
Olallo, Wa 98359

Ldconnolley@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Juliber
45 vista lane
Levittown, Ny 11756

Sq1361@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeffrey Swanson
183 Hickory Lane
Mount Clare, WV 26408

jwswanson1@frontier.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dirk Gifford
26102 Alizia Canyon Dr. Unit C
Calabasas, Ca 91302

augiekona@twc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Latimer
9101 Steilacoom Rd SE Unit 169
Olympia, WA 98513

pslatimer@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Connolley
4124 SE Bavarian ln
Olallo, Wa 98359

Mdconnolley@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Renee Best
317 Fulton St
Williamston, Mi 48895

rbest416@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ananias Montague
16621 Capitol Plz #6
Omaha, NE 68118

ananiasmontague@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Luebcke
10952 W. Bellwood pl.
Littleton, Co 80127

Pitilin@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Yvonne Costin
3840 S. Helena St.
Aurora, CO 80013

grandmashandymanservice@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JOHN EMERY
4636 MUSTANG CREEK CT
FORT WORTH, TX 76126

Jemery4636@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rita Kimball
102 Wick Willow Rd
Montgomery, Tx 77356

jlcrak@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nell Poole
10953 Broad River Rd.
Irmo, SC 29063

nellpoole@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nell Poole
10953 Broad River Rd.
Irmo, SC 29063

nellpoole@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Morlachetta
17 Holly Place
Gibbstown, NJ 8027

pmorlachetta@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Philip Scott
7144 Fox Paw Trail
Roxborough, Co 80125

sleepy22hollow@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George Poole
10953 Broad River Rd.
Irmo, SC 29063

gbenpoole@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carolyn montemarano
248 SPRING VALLEY RD
ORADELL, NJ 7649

carolyn@bkctcpa.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carolyn montemarano
248 SPRING VALLEY RD
ORADELL, NJ 7649

carolyn@bkctcpa.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathy Davis
733 W Hubert Avenue
Lancaster, OH 43130

kathy.davis@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margaret Dascoli
505 Cumberland Court Smyrna, GA 30080

peggyd29@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

RACHEL ROBINSON
4971 LANCASTER HILL DR APT 208
CLARKSTON, MI 48346

BIG_RED4567@YAHOO.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christie Gabriel
816 North Broadway
Yonkers, NY 10701

cgabr@optonline.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Matthew Spieler
19 Kohl Court
Brentwood, NY 11717

leracms@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Melinda Rappold
206 Wanda St
Luling, LA 70070

mrappold1@stcharles.k12.la.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rick Hostetter
10 Stearrett, Dr.
Newark, De 19702

rickhost@hotmaill.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

gregg burrell
16619 E lake Dr
Lakeville, mn 55044

greggburrell@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kerri-Ann Genzel
232 Centre St
Haddonfield, NJ 8033

Kagenzel@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diana Trevino
11943 White Birch St.
San Antonio, TX 78245

choonghilee@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nickolas Cappolina
308 Anthony drive
Bellmarw, Nj 8031

N.cappolina@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anita Tygett
2010 Sara Dr
Cape Girardeau, MO 63701

atygett@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Bacon
38 E Oleander Drive
Mount Laurel, NJ 8054

Nocab13@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brenda SmithNixon
92 Brearly Drive
Sicklerville, NJ 8081

blsmithnixon@ymail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roy Duvall
119 glacier circle
Vacaville, Ca 95687

Gamblerkid@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Erics Williams
24 Picardy Place
Southampton, NJ 8088

ericawilliams44@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Damon White
1103 Lindley Ave Apt 2R
Philadelphia, Pa 19141

damonsterling@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven Scarpello
130 Woodland Drive
Warminster, PA 18974

scarp825@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marguerite Maines
202 Douglas Court
West Deptford, NJ 8086

mmaines@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Salmonsen
22 Sandpiper Drive
Voorhees, NJ 8043

Scottykenneth79@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dale Adams
771 Dutchess Turnpike Poughkeepsie, NY 12603 dsadams421@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Miriam Lisser
510 Haverford Ave
Narberth, Pa 19073

Mltrip99@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Howell
705 Sandy Hill Road
Wyndmoor, PA 19038

hbmickey@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

MONICA CRUZ
826 MARLYN RD
PHILADELPHIA, PA 19151

m.l.cruz654@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Randall Veal
275 Hilltop Dr. SW
Atlanta, Ga 30315

rbveal@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Ward
5564 Coastal Lane South
Jacksonville, fl 32258

mikemag9397@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margaret Ward
5564 Coastal Lane South 5564 Coastal Lane South
Jacksonville, fl 32258

mikemag9397@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Scott
809 Kirkwood Cr
Camden, SC 29020

saddleguy@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joan Gautreau Seagraves
10 Walnut Place
Palm Coast, FL 32164

jo422ga@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thelma Jones
8420 Cross Timbers Dr W
Jacksonville, FL 32244

goldrockkid@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa Hahn
1505 Astronomy Circl
Las Vegas, NV 89128

lisaha@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Hanks
842 sunny slope circle
Camdenton, Mo 65020

ndh1943@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Juliet Spreen
1201 State Park Rd.
Lockhart, Tx 78644

grannyjulie@earthlink.

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debra Gellert
3253 Kinross Circle
Oak Hill, VA 20171

dcgellert@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sheldon Bieri
117 West Main Street
Laurens, IA 50554

5somewhere@laurens-ia.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Victoria Sefranek
568 Vera Circle
Bethlehem, PA 18017

Vsgsbeth@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Bieri
117 West Main Street
Laurens, IA 50554

bierisl@pionet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dan Kennedy
152 Castle Wynd
Loves Park, IL 61111

dkennedy@rockvalleyglass.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephan Dundas
515 Buckingham Pl.
Tyler, TX 75701

hapepair@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Della Booth
175 Kings Hwy #427
Punta Gorda, FL 33983

djbooth@time-realty.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Victoria Sefranek
568 Vera Circle
Bethlehem, PA 18017

Vsgsbeth@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Victoria Sefranek
568 Vera Circle
Bethlehem, PA 18017

Vsgsbeth@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Moses
6901 Portobello Rd. NW
Fort Payne, AL 35967

kemoses@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynn Scott
1946 White Birch Drive
Vista, CA 92081

sgte4usmc@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Biggs
1321 Southridge Dr.
Fort Collins, Co 80521

Gmabbiggs@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Hudson
463 Riverview Drive
Totowa, NJ 7512

hudson67492@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dean Lahren
5532 Aldrich Drive N
Brooklyn Center, MN 55430

dblahren@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rolf Windhorn
3145 Stage Coach Rd West
Palmerton, Pa 18071

windhorn@ptd.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dolores Brandell
17826 North Willowbrook Drive
Sun City, AZ 85373

dbrandell@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marilyn Estrada
711 Mahogany Dr.
El Cajon, CA 92019

Marilyne1@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Aurora Evans
68002 Encinitas Road
Cathedral City, CA 92234

emikee42@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Faye Nelson
251 Treeline Drive
Pen Argyl, PA 18072

Nelsonf1129@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jess Shirley
245 Beaumont Farms Drive
Sharpsburg, Ga 30277

Jshirley28@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roger Brandell
17826 North Willowbrook Drive
Sun City, AZ 85373

roger.b.brandell@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bob McCarthy
1760 Kelly Drive
Golden Valley, MN 55427

Rmccarthy555@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Maureen McCabe
6565 N Alberta Ct
Glendale, WI 53217

maceto1@wi.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph DegliObizzi
245 Peoples Way
Hockessin, De 19707

joseph@degli.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Ann Burckhardt
2903 Valley Manor Drive
Kingwood, TX 77339

bluegemini522@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Melinda Thompson
4706 Wilde Pl
Colorado Springs, CO 80916

melinda.spurlin@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bradley Roberts
9910 Chesney Road
Knoxville, TN 37931

bsr82864@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Chavez
520 Abbeywood Dr
Roswell, Ga 30075

robertchavez813@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Allen
P.O. Box 2095
Cumming, Ga 30041

kcallen77@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara McMahon
607 W 59th St.
Kansas City, Mi 64113

bjmcmaho@swbell.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bernadette Erickson
362 Kristin Ct E
Brookfield, W 53045

bericksn@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Curzon
1820 Manistique Avenue
South Milwaukee, WI 53172

klcurzon@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Ham
W180 N8071 Town Hall Rd
Menomonee Falls, WI 53051

daid.ham@phci.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Trejbal
14366 W Alvarado Drive
Goodyear, AZ 85395

bmtrejbal@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gideon Thompson
4706 Wilde Pl
Colorado Springs, CO 80916

gideon.thompson@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Terre Flomer
6929 Windwood Trl
Fort Worth, TX 76132

flomer@flash.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Cole
132 Evergreen Street
Mount Holly, NJ 8060

robert.cole132@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven Huebbe
12320 Robley Road
Manitowoc, WI 54220

steve.huebbe@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Winkels
314 5th st sw
Eyota, MN 55934

mwinkels@hbci.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Iulia Platte
108 Woodfield Ln
Saint Johns, FL 32259

froxxx@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dayna Winkels
314 5th st sw
Eyota, MN 55934

dwinkels@hbci.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Baer
2008 N. 52nd St.
Milwaukee, WI 53208

artbaer@tds.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Carpani
346 Summit Dr.
Dahlonega, Ga 30533

rcarpani@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Robinson
1613 Tree Crossings Pkwy.
Hoover, Al 35244

moocat16@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Dyas
2710 Little Oak Lane
Rescue, CA 95672

john@tbase.biz

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janice Poorman
80 E Broad Oaks Dr
Houston, TX 0

fandmpoorman@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrea Taylor
425 Exeter Court
Maryville, TN 37803

anditen1@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gregg Kreielsheimer
709 Presnell Ct
Raleigh, NC 27615

kreiel@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lori Kraft
1007 N. Marshall St. Apt. 206
Milwaukee, WI 53202

Lkraft74@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet White
4642 Brook St
Medina, Mn 55359

Janet.white3@mchsi.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Fogel
6 Attenbury Pl.
Freehold N.J., NJ 7728

wallierich@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sonia Johnson
2918 Palace Place
Murfreesboro, TN 37129

soniasu@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jonny Pridgen
117 Cedar Drive
Riegelwood, NC 28456

jonnywp@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margaret Goldstrohm
220 Oak St
Indiana, Pe 0

mrgold0@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

kalie walker
9 Trahan ave
Worcester, MA 1604

kwalker@avcollaborative.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Samantha Johnson
303 Landsburg
College station, Tx 77845

skjohnson821@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Lewis
240 Spring St Suite B
Jeffersonville, IN 47130

annlewis5625@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kim Nordsiden
31774 279th Street
Winner, SD 57580

lilac@gwtc.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carl Reddick
4550 NE 205th Ave
Williston, fl 32696

carlbreddick@embarqmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ellen Donovan
1131 Arnold Drive
Endwell, NY 13760

ellen-ad@live.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Celia Eshtary
1641 Blackstone Dr.
Carrollton, TX 75007

seshtary@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Colberg
1239 S. Parkside Dr
Palatine, Il 60067

Linda.colberg52@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Habitzreuther
10421 Breckinridge Lane
Fairfax, VA 22030

khabitzreuther@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Kleiner
127 West Sedgwick Street
Philadelphia, PA 19119

kleinerpr@kleinerprweb.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Share
14 Telford Ln
Mount Laurel, NJ 8054

itzashare@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alex Quinzon
1821 Venice Dr.
Concord, CA 94519

Rick@Quinzon.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michelle Embry
170 Crown Prince Drive
Marlton, Nj 8053

mlollipop21@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Quinzon
1821 Venice Dr.
Concord, CA 94519

Rick@Quinzon.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anne Ream
7242 Bryan St.
Philadelphia, Pa 19119

aream777@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Musser
1507 Moore St Unit 303
Bristol, Pa 19008

Ressum6@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elizabeth Mottershead
35 White Oak Trail
Medford, Nj 8055

Mhead5657@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

dale ranieri
142 greyhorse rd
willow grove, pa 19090

ranida1@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert A Ross
21 Russett Lane
Levittown, Pe 19055

Bossross46@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Omea
348 Gosling Way
Glassboro, NJ 8028

Barbara.bishop2@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marlene Stern
108 Yew Road
Cheltenham, PA 19012

mgstern2000@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mario Berlanda, Jr.
190 Sturbridge Ct.
Sellersville, Pa 18960

Boberlanda@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jen Oettel
397 Essex Court
Perkasie, PA 18944

jloettel@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Sciscio
37 West Brookline Drive
Laurel Springs, NJ 8021

Ksciscio@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vincent Bizzarro
1270 Quarry Hall Rd
Norristown, PA 19403

vpmaggie@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jane Lee
214 Cowbell RoadW
Willow Grove, Pa 19090

janecen@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Henderson
320 Portsmouth Rd.
Cherry Hill, NJ 8034

bonhen@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Henderson
320 Portsmouth Rd.
Cherry Hill, NJ 8034

bonhen@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roseanne Mulherin
2748 S. Kent Rd.
Broomall, Pe 19008

rmulherin@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Philip Weiser
7242 Bryan St
Philadelphia, PA 19119

philweiser@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathryn J Ross
21 Russett Lane
Levittown, Pe 19055

KATHYJROSS@GMAIL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Ann Redfield
631 Charette Road
Philadelphia, PA 19115

redfieldma@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bonnie Henderson
320 Portsmouth Rd.
Cherry Hill, NJ 8034

bonhen@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roseanne Mulherin
2748 S. Kent Rd.
Broomall, Pe 19008

rmulherin@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mendy Blumberg
1346 Glenview Stret
Philadelphia, PA 19111

feline47@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elizabeth Mottershead
35 White Oak Trail
Medford, Nj 8055

Mhead5657@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Kennedy
1353 Slayton Drive
Maple Glen, PA 19002

Takkon111@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Arline Amoroso
66 Letitia lane
Media, PA 19063

arlineamoroso@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alan Dempsey
802 Franklinville Rd
South Harrison Township, NJ 8062

adempsey802@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Tewes
1138 Temple Drive
Pacheco, CA 94553

ktewes@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dawn Walsh
1130 Calvin Road
Huntingdon Valley, Pa 19006

dawn1130@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Hunt
1960 Hwy 469
Florence, MS 39073

carolhunt@azz.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Yeagley
214 Shadow Wood Drive
Clinton, MS 39056

cyeagley13@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rick Johnsen
2641 Tabor Street
Lakewood, CO 80215

rjwoodchip@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stan Yeagley
214 Shadow Wood Drive
Clinton, MS 39056

candsyeagley@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Strahan
8075 Woodlark Lane
West Chester, OH 45069

mike.strahan@duke-energy.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sarah Mccloud
3824 Thompson Mill Rd
Buford, GA 30519

sjmccloud@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Hannah Bauer
3818 Jarrettsville Pike
Jarrettsville, MD 21084

Hannahrbauer@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christopher Dillard
112 Prospect Street
Middletown, MD 21769

chris.dillard@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Teresa Griesemer
512 Mercury Dr
Godfrey, IL 62035

teresa@mcgarveybrown.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

DANA NONNENMOCHER
100 BLOSSOM HILL DRIVE
LANCASTER, PA 17601

dananonnenmocher@bssf.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Terry James
2330 Wellington Green Drive #210
Wellington, Fl 33414

tjames@legendgroup.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Schulte
15911 Ridgemont Dr.
Urbandale, IA 50323

pschulte@bearence.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

carol hindman
3801 kenilworth avenue 606 west bladensburg, md 20710

jeanne01080108@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michelle Grove
1622 Long Run Road
Mill Hall, PA 17751

chatterboxpa@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vicki Stone
10119 S Evanston Ave
Tulsa, Ok 74137

Vstone1@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christie Linnell
10228 SW 280th
Vashon, Wa 98070

justdandyisl@centurytel.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JAMES ELLIOTT
27534 WEST SHORE RD
LAKE ARROWHEAD, CA 92352

IM.JIM@VERIZON.NET

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ethel Aubrey
924 Linda Av
South Lake Tahoe, Ca 96158

ethelaubrey@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Stoudt
312 Orchard Ave
Langhorne, PA 19047

cndstoudt@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Doris Kilthau
110 Donegan Ave
East Patchogue, NY 11772

obugem@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michelle Greco
7390 e 106th ave
Crown Point, In 46307

Mick312001@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diane Harris
22111 Edgewood St
Saint Clair Shores, MI 48080

drharris413@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David DiLoreto
22111 Edgewood St
Saint Clair Shores, MI 48080

wacky2729@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marie Griffin
12613 Magna Carta Road
Oak Hill, VA 20171

mgriffin43@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Panczyk
900 S. Owen St.
Mount Prospect, IL 60056

kp416kp@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Gumbs
110 Donegan Avenue
East PAtchogue, NY 11772

my12eyes@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ethel Cabry
32 Cherokee Drive
Richboro, PA 18954

ecabry@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Taylor
8322 Michener ace
Philadelphia, pa 19150

cook2raw@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marcia Hoyt
7713 161 Place
Tinley Park, IL 60477

hoyt.r558@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

richard casey
4761 lakeshore terr fort gratiot, mi 48059

richardcasey@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christina Giglio
114 York Bay Trail
West Henrietta, NY 14586

christinapgiglio@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brandon Rose
27529 N. 18th Ave
Phoenix, AZ 85085

bringles@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

McCay Bowdoin
280 South Shore Dr.
Newnan, GA 30263

mccay@j-binc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Broome
75 Broome Rd.
Bassfield, MS 39421

tonybroomeww@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cherry Fyke
452 Annandale pkwy
Madison, Ms 39110

cfykejam1@concast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jacqui Katool
158 Hartfield Drive
Madison, MS 39110

jacqui1313@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Phyllis Murray
108 Denwood Trl
Englewood, Oh 45315

fyllizz@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James M. Bonifas Jr.
346 South Pitchers Court
Andover, KS 67002

jmbonifasjr@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Savitzky
3708 Pitzen Rd.
Johnsburg, IL 60051

teacher3708@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nicole Perron
3718 Pelican Bay Ct
Wellington, Fl 33414

nmperron19@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kimberly Gaxiola
15930 La Escuela
Morgan Hill, Ca 95037

kim@techgirlfinancial.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerry Plunkett
34782 Valley Forge Drive
Farmington Hills, MI 48331

jplunkett@mi.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Savitzky Sr.
3708 Pitzen Rd.
Johnsburg, IL 60051

m.savitzky@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Glenda McCullough
5244 S. Holland Ave 5244 S. Holland Ave
Springfield, Mo 65810

agmccullough@mediacombb.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Willie L Bridgeman Jr
314 Lynwood Lane
Jackson, MS 39206

theghostmaster49@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eden Brock
949 Meadow View Road
Hanford, CA 93230

edenkid4@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Williams
3587 Farmer Rd
Azle, TX 76020

robert.j.williams@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roger Seefeldt
5417 Tiger Bend Lane
Morrison, Co 80465

rseefe;dt@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Helene Tish
3473 Santos Circle
Cameron Park, Ca 95682

tish@directcon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kimberly McCarthy
203 E 50th Street
Savannah, GA 31405

Mccarthykimberlya@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Danielle Brock
949 Meadow View Road
Hanford, CA 93230

edenkid4@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Evans
1301 Nixon Court
Chesapeake, Vi 23321

bae2011@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JOHN EMERY
4636 MUSTANG CREEK CT
FORT WORTH, TX 76126

Jemery4636@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ross Brock
949 Meadow View Road
Hanford, CA 93230

edenkid4@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Helene Tish
3473 Santos Circle
Cameron Park, Ca 95682

tish@directcon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Helene Tish
3473 Santos Circle
Cameron Park, Ca 95682

tish@directcon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Dukat
2301 Lake Tahoe BL STE 14
South Lake Tahoe, CA 96150

j_d.2301a@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Schu
3379 Colonial Circle
Huntingdon Valley, PA 19006

jschu@lincolninvestment.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Mount 147 Landsdowne Loop
San Ramon, Ca 94582

mountr@ceteranetworks.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jack Garbo
3505 Gardenia Drive
Arlington, TX 76016

jackgarbo@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Oliva
51 Clinton Street
Malverne, NY 11565

ROliva45@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

EDWARD ABPLANALP
11 HURON AVENUE
WAYNE, NJ 7470

appleeddie@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roger K. Turner
111 Pawnee Place
Clinton, Ms 39056

ken2035@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bobby Ingram
1480 Ashley Rd
Brandon, MS 39042

sprinterb1@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roberta Stonoff
2144 Meekers Landing Road
Oakville, Ia 52646

bnstoney@mepotelco.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bernadean Porter
3344 Emerald Lane
North Port, FL 34286

bernporter@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Magidson
555 Church St
Nashville, TN 37219

bob08823@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Huff
10834 Wyscarver Rd.
Cincinnati, OH 45241

Janety47@cinci.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janice Pursell
1219 river Rd
Upper Black Eddy, PA 18972

jpursell4@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephanie Squires
43622 Fleetwood Dr
Canton, MI 48187

squiressteph@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas Schiltz
5447 Sandstone Dr.
West Des Moines, IA 50266

schiltzdouglasa@johndeere.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Teresa Butcher
1915 Airport Road
Bridgewater, Va 22812

tbutcher@dairymen.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robin Bell
1027 Cherrystone Ct
Madison, Ms 39110

robbell4289@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles McAdams
5507 Fran Court
Louisville, KY 40291

chasmc@iglou.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Troy THIE
818 Vandalia Street
Saint Paul, MN 55114

troythie@tbrothers.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

GERY HAGERTY
2228 HWY E 64
TAMA, IA 52339

gery.hagerty@vanwall.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Seth Farlow
247 Kohler Hill Road
Hamburg, PA 19526

windsorprof@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Snyder
232 Country Trace Dr
Harrison, Oh 45030

nancysnyder1960@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Reans
2103 Avenue K
Danbury, TX 77534

agreans@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Reans
2103 Avenue K
Danbury, TX 77534

agreans@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peter Marabella Jr.
2255 Braeswood Park Drive #324
Houston, Tx 77030

petermarabellajr@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brad Gammons
57 Old Philly Pike
Kempton, PA 19529

windsorbay@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

selma streich
13519 willow hts ct
houston, tx 77059

selma.streich@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Acuff
3900 Brisban St.
Harrisburg, PA 17111

linda.acuff1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Suellen Waddell
18 Hilltop Drive
Cartersville, GA 30120

csuellen@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lori Gile
149 Wilson Pond Road
North Monmouth, ME 4265

lori@auburnconcrete.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tim Mohan
248 Talbot Drive
Broomall, PA 19008

stpc@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

walter spearman
3621 E Stratford Rd
VA Beach, VA 23455

wspearman@camber.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marvin Martin
10706 Cortland Ridge Lane
Cypress, TX 77433

marvin@themartins.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Dammer
14111 Swiss Hill Drive
Houston, TX 77077

rdammer@jebcoseis.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tim Marshall
27100 Rieff Rd Pbx 39
Lower Lake, Ca 95457

tim@riopena.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brenda Buckner
5642 Yarwell Drive
Houston, TX 77096

brenda_buckner@swett.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wes Herndon
1203 W. Twin Circle
Richmond, TX 77406

wherndon@charterbrokerage.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joan Polk
801 Swamp Picnic Road
Gilbertsville, pA 19525

jpolkcsn@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joan Hemple
387West Park Dr.
Bridgeton, NJ 8302

jchemplr@comcast.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Natalie Garrett
9218 Indian Lodge Lane
Humble, TX 77396

natalie654@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Denise Gabel
416 Gabel Rd
Callicoon, NY 12723

wooddenise@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Quillman
38W195 McDonald Rd
Elgin, Il 60124

lipnana@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Teusink
146 Manor Lake Estates Drive
Spring, Tx 77379

kteusink@sunbelttexas.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sondra James
28875 Modjeska Canyon Road
Silverado, CA 92676

sonjjames@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Malkin
510 bluegrass dr
Wilmington, De 19808

Rondowade@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mindy Spitz
2283 Sheraton Place
San Mateo, CA 94402

mindelas@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Keagy
365 Blue Oak Ln
Clayton, CA 94517

ckeagy@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janice Koehler
507 Abbeywood ct
Oak brook, IL 60523

Jancypants22@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Betty Henderson
107 honeybee LN.
BRUNSWICK, GA 31525

sweeperlady34@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Altaf Bora
22 Madera Blvd
Corte Madera, Ca 94925

altafbora@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Barnes
35 Powers Landing
Brunswick, GA 31525

thomasbarnes2@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael More 560 Thornmeadow Rd.
Riverwoods, Il 60015

chicagorep@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jose Cabal
17614 Sunset River Ln
Houston, TX 77084

jgcabal@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

TOnya Bongiovanni
17 Buckingham St. Apt. 3
Rochester, NY 14607

tonyabon@buffalo.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vanessa De Vere
1379 Oak Trail St
Newbury Park, CA 91320

vdevere@zephyrim.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Butler
322 W 6th St
Houston, TX 77007

smbutler74@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gwen Tokar
1919 Post Oak Park Drive 4107
Houston, TX 77027

gct0703@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Blackburn
110 Jadewood Drive
Williamston, SC 29697

sanner50@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roslyn Waldron
16702 Glamis Ln
Houstn, TX 77084

roslynwaldron@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Cambra
8 Bogey Lane Bogey Lane
Coto De Caza, CA 92679

mikecambra7005@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sujan DasGupta
7 Fletcher Drive
Montville, NJ 7045

sujandasgupta@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laurel Campbell
3642 Paradise a Ranch Road
Victoria, Tx 77905

ldmcampbell@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Trofe II
5218 Deford Rd.
Virginia Beach, VA 23455

jtrofe@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Zafar Shariff
729 Summerfield Drive
Murphy, Tx 75094

Zhshariff@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sabiha Shariff
729 Summerfield Drive
Murphy, Tx 75094

Sabihashariff@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Justin Williams
3209 SE 2nd St
Lees Summit, MO 64063

yamz1@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William R Hall III
2908 Heron Ridge Drive
Virginia Beach, VA 23456

Beachmoma@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sumit Roy 1401 PALLEY CT
BRIDGEWATER, NJ 88073549

sumitroy@sumitroy.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas Cheves
7714 Betty Jane Lane
Houston, TX 77055

designwc@wt.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Kowalski
3687 Hill Breeze Road
Virginia Beach, VA 23452

carjo3@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Billy Breeden
5057 Thatcher Way
Virginia Beach, VA 23456

slkbilly@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Erik Essendrop
10945 Double D. Rd
Fountain, CO 80817

breese0918@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eileen Cirillo
35 Jamestown rd
Somers, Ct 6071

ldocirillo@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jana` Rinehart
875 N Eldridge Parkway Apt 258
Houston, Te 77079

rinehart.jana@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Riesenberg
3016 Village Dr.
Edgewood, KY 41017

riesenbergjohn@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gwen Tokar
1919 Post Oak Park Drive 4107
Houston, TX 77027

gct0703@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Melanie Blackburn
445 Holly Berry Cir Apt/Suite
Blythewood, SC 29016

bablackburn@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rita A Coates
2908 Heron Ridge Drive
Virginia Beach, VA 23456

Beachmoma@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jose Torres
5409 Inglewood Dr.
Corpus Christi, Tx 78415

jtorres80@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Hicks
1485 Falcon Valley Heights #305
Colorado Springs, CO 80921

jenniferh@purposeplanning.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cher Anderson
501 Natalie court
Piney flats, Tn 37686

Cherfit@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cynthia Breeden
5057 Thatcher Way
Virginia Beach, Va 23456

Cjbreeden@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joyce Taylor
1242 Mickey Way
Houston, Tx 77055

JPRLT@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brook Crichton
2711 Silverhorn Dr
Katy, TX 77450

bpcrichton@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jane Sheerin
3114 Jennifer Drive
Norristown, PA 19401

jsheerin617@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bruce Van Dusseldorp 8566 E Girard Ave.
Denver, CO 80231

vandussel@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Waring
4127 SW Kenyon St
Seattle, WA 98136

urbandoc@hotmailcom

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bethany Essendrop
10945 Double D. Rd
Fountain, CO 80817

breese0918@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diana Colaizzi
1612 Branning rd.
Pittsburgh, Pa 15235

dianacolaizzi@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judith Flesher
5 Peregrine
Littleton, Co 80127

juflesher@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Zabo
205 Rivershire LN #411
Lincolnshire, IL 60069

mrz@iname.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kristen Gilligan
2108 broadacres ct
Va beach, Va 23453

Gilledwriter@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Finne
6900 W 105th St
Bloomington, MN 55438

finne003@umn.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Glynis McBean
335 ASHTON AVENUE, APT 3
LINDEN, NJ 7036

glynismcbean@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gerrard Ablin
671 Checker Dr
Buffalo Grove, Il 60089

repxmas@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lewis Laird
422 Cornell Ave.
Swarthmore, Pa 19081

Lairdjeff523@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nat Greenfield
3710 Melody Street
Mundelein, Il 60060

ngreeny1@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Macon
4273 Sebring Walk
Decatur, Ge 30034

macbacon2012@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Allen Ebner
14429 S. 40th Place
Phoenix, AZ 85044

adebner@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Hagelberg
318 Ashley Way
Pharr, TX 78577

hagelb@swbell.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

darryl polasek
106 bear path trail
fort worth, tx 76126

dpenhancedservices@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

LINDA NEAL
2407 LARKSPUR LANE 252
SACTO, CA 95825

TOADGIRL64@GMAIL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Macon
4273 Sebring Walk
Decatur, Ge 30034

macbacon2012@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Gainsberg
2837 Manor Drive
Northbrook, IL 60062

bobgain1@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Gainsberg
2837 Manor Drive
Northbrook, IL 60062

bobgain1@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sarah Ross
102 Greystone Lane apt 10
Rochester, NY 14618

jetsetblonde@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Kessler 210 Ashley Road hopkins, mn 55343

stevealmn@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ellen Hartnett
522 E. Chestnut Apt 4
Bloomington, IL 61701

ekhartn05@icloud.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ellen Hartnett
522 E. Chestnut Apt 4
Bloomington, IL 61701

ekhartn05@icloud.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JERRY SMITH
3986 KY HWY356
CYNTHIANA, KY 41031

ritasmith230@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Bowles
2436 S Krameria St
Denver, CO 80222

sbowles@ix.netcom.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ray Chilton
314 Indian Bayou
Houston, TX 77057

ray1112@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ray Chilton
314 Indian Bayou
Houston, TX 77057

ray1112@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Camilla Merrick
3919 North Road
Geneseo, NY 14454

cfg_merrick@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Miglio
13014 Sandburg Ct.
Palos Park, IL 60464

jmiglio@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Raymond Barr
5943 Winchester Isle Rd
Orlando, FL 32829

ray@raybarr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Tong
3035 Radiance Road
Louisville, KY 40220

chink47@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Pierce
20 Sage Way
Napa, Ca 94559

thomaswpierce@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jogeswari Sarkar
7109 Bettis Dr.
Fort Worth, TX 76133

jpsarkar@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Everett Randlett
913 Aglaia Dr
White Lake, Mi 48386

ranvette@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anthony Chiachetti
878 Garfield Ave
Lansdale, Pa 19446

anchetti@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Mullen
4S570 Karns Rd
Naperville, IL 60563

jmullen179@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Webb
3531 Sun Valley Dr
Houston, TX 77025

martywebb7@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eugene Webb
3531 Sun Valley Dr
Houston, TX 77025

martywebb7@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Garima Test
888 16th Street NW
Washington, DC 20006

jain@bipac.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dev Mishra
274 Park Avenue
Westbury, NY 11590

drdmishra@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sherry Santana
112 Ragsdale Rd
Dallas, GA 30157

sherrysantana@ymail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

elizabeth gorecki 11 boulevard cold spring, ny 10516

efgmcs2009@optonline.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steve Kyles
733 Baker RD
Rosenberg, TX 77471

steve@thekylesteam.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Marie Sielski
720 Vance Drive
Glenside, Pe 19038

Sielski819@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Leroy Dunn
1018 Putnam Place
Turnersville, NJ 8012

ljdirish@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Raymond Lucci
3201 W. Queen Lane East Falls
Philadelphia, PA 19129

rplucci@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joju Sebastian
11628 Tall Pines Dr
Germantown, MD 20876

Jsebastian@infoleadsyatems.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Calabrese
9 clara dr
Pedricktown, Nj 8067

Mike5785@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cindy Moeller
397 Essex Court
Perkasie, Pa 18944

Moellerbrat@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Celia W Braverman
7301 Coventry Ave. #710
Elkins Park, Pa 0

celebrav@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Forbes
136 Hailey Drive
Marlton, NJ 8053

morehbob27@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Brisco
123 Midway Drive
Woodland, CA 95695

knbrisco@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frederick Pratta
18 Mansion Drive
Swedesboro, NJ 8085

fab36@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Bochanski
6 Spencer Ct
Medford, NJ 8055

Jgbnj57@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Fred Locke 9802 n 49th ln
glendale, Az 85302

hunterfredjl@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stamatoula Bastas
1046 W. Olney Avenue
Philadelphia, PA 19141

tbastas@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Annette Gittelman
2133 Ripley street
Philadelphia, Pa 19152

annettegittelman@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bette Conover
135 Zane Ave
Jenkintown, Pe 19046

bet1101@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Desiree Hollomon
6025 Sansom st.
Philadelphia, Pe 19139

desireehollomon@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Matthew Wood
3080 NE Sunburst Ave
Hillsboro, OR 97124

woodjunk2007@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peter Armitage
5109 Aurora Dr
Leesburg, Fl 34748

pnarmitage@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tim Thomas
1501 Truman Drive
Ames, IA 50010

Tim.ann.thomas@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Henry 103 Persian Drive
Oakdale, PA 15071

prhen@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charlene Petzing
11333 N 92nd Street Unit 2050
Scottsdale, AZ 85260

charlene_petzing@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara VanGelder
36 Lincoln Ave
Lynnfield, MA 19401816

babs81357@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Rosas
18981 Farallon Rd
Madera, Ca 93638

Kuljaz@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frances Welsh
1609 Delmar Drive
New Lenox, IL 60451

welsh.t@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janine Cowell
342 Perley Road
Francestown, NH 3043

dcowell1340@comcast.et

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donn Arnold
26109 St. Croix Tr.
Shafer, MN 55074

donnarnold@frontiernet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Campanelli
1168 Queets Drive FI
Fox Island, WA 98333

susancampanelli@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary North
130 N. 16th Ave
Pocatello, ID 83201

grnorth@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrea Smith
5021 River Bluff Dr
Fort Worth, TX 76132

andismith127@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peggy Fry
1432 Hounds Hollow Ct
Lutz, Fl 33549

memefry@live.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandi Cooksey
2244 Marcel Dr
Orange Park, FL 32073

shortlegs47@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Krajnik
134 n. Middleton rd 143
Nampa, Id 83651

Pstlmom@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Timothy West
109 Warrior Road
Smithville, MO 64089

timmyrw@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

mark williams
205 Mosier St
Nanticoke, PA 18634

markwilliamsx3@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eugene Wetzel
10217 Carlton Place Ct. S.
St. Louis, MO 63123

maryageno@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mike Young
8709 Glen Havrn
Shreveport, LA 71106

Myoung123@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

brian marshall
24114 laytonsville rd.
Gaithersburg, Ma 20882

bcmgonefishing@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Leonard Burger
4905 SW 9th Place
Cape Coral, FL 33914

Lenchrisburger@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christine Burger
4905 SW 9th Place
Cape Coral, FL 33914

Lenchrisburger@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Cubitt
2371 SE Highway 31 - Lot 59
Arcadia, FL 34266

sharon8744@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Anthony
1020 Old Mountain Road
Dillsburg, Pa 17019

Anthonyranch2@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diane Alatorre
24795 Daphne E
Mission Viejo, CA 92691

boxblondie@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jack Hodges
5976 Waterford Drive
Grand Prairie, TX 75052

jack_hodges@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Juan Te Dailey
3886 W Cindy St
Chandler, AZ 85226

Assrtv2u@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carl Anthony
1020 Old Mountain Road
Dillsburg, PA 17019

canthony@neagri.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Kirksey
11519 S. Emerald Ranch Lane
Forney, TX 75126

mdkirksey@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Johanna hempel
5855 N Kolb Road 10209
Tucson, AZ 85750

jshempel@ail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Rhodes
3074 N Thames Ave
Meridian, Id 83646

dsrhodes7@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kelley Stobaugh
11 Beachside Dr #114
Santa Rosa Beach, FL 32459

kelleykks@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Colin Reilly
507 Evergreen Dr
Mandeville, LA 70448

colin.reilly@anytimefitness.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rita Soule
12 Wilson Hill Road
Merrimack, NH 3054

Soulerita@icloud.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Wong
1535 Lidstrom Pl E
Port Orchard, WA 98366

dim_sky@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathlyn Steel
7271 W. Cascade Dr
Boise, ID 83704

cdakat@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Galloway
8425 Spring Creek Way
Middleton, ID 83644

Gallowaycd12@yayoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeffrey Carter
4714 N 77th Place
Scottsdale, AZ 85251

jeffreydcarter@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Pinkham
225 Baker
Mountain Home, Id 83647

johnpin225@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patrick Downey
7840 Mary Eve Road
Shreveport, LA 71106

PDowneyCRNA@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Fisher
2 Mountainview Drive
Clifton, NJ 7013

kenneth.fisher52@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Casson
1525 Greenleaf rd
Faribault, Mn 55021

rgjscass13@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Floyd Sanders
5707 Old Place Road
Arlington, Tx 76016

floydieboyy@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judy Curtis
1146 Romaine Cir E
Jacksonville, FL 32225

judybooscurtis@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Bush
908 Nicklsus Drive
Newport News, VA 23602

bushr@visi.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kelley King
5396 Courtney Pl
Columbus, Oh 43235

Kingfin@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Hinton
13445 FRANK LARY RD
NORTHPORT, Al 35475

jimhinton419@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jill LaDuke
1238 South Grand Street
West Suffield, CT 6093

jladuke1@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kelley King
5396 Courtney Pl
Columbus, Oh 43235

Kingfin@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sarah Loper
4608 Lawndale Drive Benton, La 71006

brownsc@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janice Johannesen
1051 Racimo Drive
Sarasota, FL 34240

jfjohann@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

pammie schaefer
3719 clifton way
nampa, id 83686

pschaefer6@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Josef Penner
12229 Danielle Christina Ct
Charlotte, Nc 28216

Penner@carolina.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Beverely Young
1035 Sherman Dr
Cedar Hill, Tx 75104

Beverelyy@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard D
8510 n. park ave.
Indianapolis, In 46240

dickdalton@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lois Burgher
401 Skipper Ct.
Union, Oh 45322

bartend35@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Skroch
W26001 Screamin Independence, WI 54747

ron.skroch@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Clyde Johnson
5326 Sunderland Dr.
Boise, Id 83704

clyde.johnson4245@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert C Gernert
36 Capp lane palmyra, PA 0

gerny@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Koenig
1 Danforth Rd
Merrimack, NH 3054

Tompkoenig@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Marshall
24114 Laytonsville Road
Gaithersburg, MD 20882

nancy_l_marshall@mcpsmd.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dawn Denig-Scott
16701 Norwood Drive
Tampa, FL 33624

dawn_scott1@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Desiree Hollomon
6025 Sansom st.
Philadelphia, Pe 19139

desireehollomon@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judith Block
311 Ramona Ave
El Cerrito, CA 94530

jodylblock@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Delony
843 Krissy Dee
Medford, OR 97501

p_delony@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Brisco
123 Midway Drive
Woodland, CA 95695

knbrisco@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sara Lee Langsam
424 Conway Avenue Apt. 2
Narberth, PA 19072

saraleelangsam@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elizabeth Thomas
4606 Water Mill Dr
Buford, Ga 30519

Eviolagirl@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Estella Kristiniak
662 Hulmeville Ave.
Penndel, PA 19047

LionEstella@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Bernheimer
790 London Bridge Road Winter Garden, Fl 34787

pmbrni@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Denise Anastasi
1823 Gladstone Street
Philadelphia, PA 19145

NAnas20723@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia McGrath
513 Cumberland Road
Havertown, PA 19083

mcgrath4482@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Clarke Stoneback
2744 Arrowhead Dr
Langhorne, Pa 19053

Clarkestoneback@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephanie olson
2661 Fernwood place
Broomfield, Co 80020

steph32prn@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Custodio
3200 Da Vinci Drive
Philadelphia, Pa 19145

Custiii@comcast.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marilyn Carr
7800B Stenton Avenue Apt. 202
Philadelphia, PA 19118

mcarr7800@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Mottola
226 Winding Way Rd.
Stratford, NJ 8084

jomottola2004@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joann Custodio
3200 Da Vinci Drive
Philadelphia, Pa 19145

Joann527c@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sue Salyer
12754 Deer Flat Road
Nampa, ID 83686

Sdktsalyer@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Greg Hopfe
13943 Sound Overlook Drive N
Jacksonville, FL 32224

ghopper16@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Darryl Beals
19135 Green Valley Drive
Noblesville, IN 46060

bealsdl@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debbie Parks
8719 w. Carol Abe.
Peoria, Az 85345

Dparks@legaltypedocuments.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ian Cundall
2811 Manchester lane
Grapevine, Tx 76051

golddesigns@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Dowd
14774 Waco St NW
Ramsey, M 55303

Chuck@dowds.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

maureen ricci
51 hobson street saugus, MA 1906

moricci3@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Milton Edgerton
150 N Blackcat Road
Meridian, Id 83642

medgekey@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wendy Ketchman Horovitz
1632 W Plymouth St
Broken Arrow, OK 74012

on_bypass@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Horovitz
1632 W Plymouth St
Broken Arrow, OK 74012

horovitzb@mail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wendy Ketchman Horovitz
1632 W Plymouth St
Broken Arrow, OK 74012

on_bypass@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lewis harding 4106 N Ashland
Chicago, Il 60613

lewandsallyh@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Croschere
104 w Turner ave
Spokane, Wa 99224

Tcroschere@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Hryhory Koba
1105 S Grade Ct SW
Hutchinson, MN 55350

htkoba@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel Mosco
5 Crestline Circle
Beverly, ma 1915

danmosco@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kris Koenig
1 Danforth Rd
Merrimack, NH 3054

151koenig@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elva Ketchman
1632 W Plymouth St
Broken Arrow, OK 74012

on_bypass@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Ann Crease
132 Euclid Street
Middletown, OH 45044

macrease@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Harold Greenlee
2443 E Manhatton Dr
Tempe, Az 85282

gcr-xc@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margaret Buccola
P O Box 326
Stonewall, LA 71078

Maggiebuccola@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Piazza
419 Water Street -Rear Danville, PA 17821

wheelnut@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vicki Mitchell
7150 Hilltop Way
Boise, ID 83709

vicki_mitchell_2000@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

mary abbatessa
4 brentwood dr peabody, ma 1960

abba60@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Richard
19996 Priest Point Rd
Glenwood, M 56334

jerichard9@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sally Becklin
2377 Dels Drive
Muskegon, MI 49444

becklin54@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Becklin
2377 Dels Drive
Muskegon, MI 49444

becklin54@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Williamson
2726 Round Hill Ct.
Katy, Tx 77494

rwilliamson50@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anthony Massa
184 Somerworth Circle
Surfside Beach, SC 29575

amassa4888@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Ketchum
246 Camono de Vida
Mimbres, NM 88049

nanketch1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eric Simon
3426 Morning Star Lane
Garland, TX 75043

es8999@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marilyn Smith
224 Grove Street
Melrose, MA 2176

mesat224@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Scherber
1 Grandview Rd
Danvers, Ma 1923

kscherber@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Green
4605 BRANDINGSHIRE
Fort worth, Tx 76133

tgaco@swbell.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Morris Detmar
184 Holiday Dr
Garden Valley, Id 83622

Mdetmar@hotmail.con

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Deborah ReFalo
8015 Angelica Lane #101
Charlotte, NC 28277

refalo2000@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Barron
180 Whippoorwill Way
Fayetteville, GA 30215

sbarron180@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Ness
950 Beach Breeze Drive
Orlando, FL 32835

jasness@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Martin Sorensen
914 S. Charlotte St.
Lombard, IL 60148

welovemaui@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Bull
401 Zachary Lane North Plymouth, MN 55441

john@abscreenonline.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

arlen krause
po box 404 406 sw 4th st morristown, mn 55052

arlynsuz@bevcomm.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Henry Goers
142 Heather Drive
Crystal Lake, il 60014

Henry@serviceprintingcorp.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Denise Smith-Hardy
B8 Southfield Apartments
Auburn, NY 13021

dshardy07657@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Angela DeRosa
12959 E. Corrine Dr.
Scottsdale, AZ 85259

angeladerosa@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Hissick
575 Harvest Drive
harrisburg, PA 17111

Hissick@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathy Hicks
25 Mariner Cove
Buena Park, CA 90621

kdhicks99@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dan Tucker
1008 Chasemore Ct.
Mansfield, TX 76063

dptucker@tucker-associates.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alice Grover
15 LInwood Ave
Warsaw, NY 14569

Nagrover@frontiernet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

william matarese
1009 cedarbrook road
cherry hill, NJ 80343760

billmatarese@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roberta Brotherton
3418 Sunnyside Avenue
Philadelphia, PA 19129

brotherworth3@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gaeton Lucibello
5 Gardenia ct
Sewell, Nj 8080

Gaeton406@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

david howard
664 Mc Allister Drive
Benicia, Ca 94510

fdhcons@sonic.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gwendolyn Dudley
5239 w Berks Street
Philadelphia, Pa 19131

Gwendud@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol McClendon
PO Box 647 1906 Old Annetta Road
Aledo, TX 76008

Crlmclendon@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peter Reynolds
132 Watergate Dr.
Langhorne, Pa 19053

Ptreyn132@netscape.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Iva Coleman
7924 Pickering Street
Philadelphia, PA 19150

yellowlittlebee@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Blazer
3412 Nantucket Dr
Fairfield, CA 94534

mbblazer@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steve Heitner
11 cottonwood Ave port Jefferson Sta. Ny
PJS, NY 11776

stephenheitner7@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anthony D. Lepore
18 N. Jasper Ave
Margate City, Nj 8402

adlepore@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dorothy Voss
306 Canterbury Rd.
Havertown, PA 19083

wgjewel@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Justin Thames
2854 Spicewood LN NW
Kennesaw, Ge 30152

justinw.thames@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marie Lockwood
4a Pristine Place
Sewell, NJ 8080

Milock@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dan Tucker
1008 Chasemore Ct.
Mansfield, TX 76063

dptucker@tucker-associates.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christine Perkins
13150 S Morrow Cir
Dearborn, MI 48126

cperky1@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Riley
27527 Los Olas Dr.
Warren, MI 48093

kevriles1@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jane Carpenter
2759 N Lancaster Drive
Boise, ID 83702

Janecarpenter2759@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Quayle
8235 Weatherford Ave 8235 Weatherford Ave
Brooksville, Fl 34613

quaylej@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ROBERT EPPERLY
212 DUNLAP PL
SCHAUMBURG, IL 60194

epperly5@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bruce Fisher
46 Coolidge Drive
Berkeley Heights, NJ 7922

bsfisher3@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jay & Rhonda Schulz
2210 75th St. E.
Inver Grove Heights, MN 55077

jfschulz@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ellen McAllister
558 E Merrimack St Unit 34
Lowell, MA 1852

emmc1@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

June Elotmani
PO Box 443
Alexandria, AL 36250

mdc-jkc@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Shields
1626 Lago Mar Drive
Centerville, Oh 45458

donshields@ameritech.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Newman
306 Blanca Ln
Tampa, FL 33606

newmannw@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Newman
306 Blanca Ln
Tampa, FL 33606

tnewman@tampabay.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Lotti
8692 Masters Drive
Huntington Beach, CA 92646

tlotti@socal.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Delong
21909 King Henry Ave.
Leesburg, FL 34748

cpastorswife@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kimberly Hissick
575 Harvest Drive
harrisburg, PA 17111

Khissick@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ed Hansen
3995 old mill rd
Stanley, NY 14561

Ehjr56@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kara Washington
327 Kennedy Street
Ama, La 70031

karawashington@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Robinson
2280 Clark St
Eagan, Mn 55122

patrob05@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brooke Wiersma
2705 Constant Landing
Marietta, GA 0

brookewiersma@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Craig Baugous
3316 Crestridge Rd
Lincoln, NE 68506

baugous@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Miller
5530 Election House Road
Carroll, OH 43112

jsmiller000@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Miller
5530 Election House Road
Lancaster, OH 43130

jsmiller000@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ernie stefely
15820 w 66th pl
arvada, co 80007

ernst@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patrick J. Centimole, Jr.
7450 NW 12th Street
Plantation, FL 33313

patc_diane@bellsout.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James culbertson
43 McCoord Woods drive fairport, NY 14450

culberts@frontiernet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Leslie Erickson
213 Engle Drive
Wallingford, PA 19086

leslie.lerick@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Blumenthal
1852 Kentwood street
Philadelphia, PA 19116

Blumfam@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Upshaw
4 Sagebrush Lane
Sicklerville, NJ 8081

rchrdupshw@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Magna Diaz
464 Woodhaven Plaza
Philadelphia, PA 19116

magnadiaz@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eleanore Burdett-Leuliette
13West Fifth Street
Pottstown, PA 19464

eleuliette6@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margaret Johnson
167 W. Walnut Park Drive
Philadelphia, PA 19120

mar.jo@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laura Kunka
2249 welsh drive
Pottstown, Pa 19464

Llkunka@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janice M West
29 W Azalea Lane
Mount Laurel, NJ 8054

janrn6@aol.cm

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Eisenstock
6845 E Grandview Dr
Scottsdale, AZ 85254

Meisen3246@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Blazer
3412 Nantucket Dr
Fairfield, CA 94534

mbblazer@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paula L Jones
1534 Roosevelt Drive
Sharon Hill, PA 19079

pljones1534@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shirley Ziegler
770 Freemansville Rd
Reading, PA 19607

szieg8082@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Virginia DiMedio
501 Red Coat Lane
Phoenixville, PA 19460

ggdimedio@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karin Kull
8902 Brous Avenue
Philadelphia, PE 19152

karinkull@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tommy Johnson
1605 Ashton Dr
Virginia Beach, VA 23464

tommyjj4@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Feola
24 Meade Street
Buckhannon, WV 26201

nfeola27@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Norma Ledvina
1010 Hall Street
Tama, IA 52339

nledvin@mchsi.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John VanDenburgh
1201 Crete Court
Riverside, CA 92506

John.vandenburgh@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sidney Grobman
281 Capri F
Delray Beach, FL 33484

amgrobman@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dan Conn
14929 Honey Locust Ct
Woodbridge, VA 22193

vmiconn@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Henry Atencio
1222 Owyhee Ave
Nampa, ID 83651

hdjatencio@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shelley Melber
625 South St
Jim Thorpe, PA 18229

melbersj@ptd.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jacqueline Graham
734 Isleton Drive
Brandon, FL 33511

TTGRAHAM2003@YAHOO.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Bair
4444 E. Redfield Ct
Gilbert, AZ 84234

drgriz53@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Derrick Hamilton
84 Baker St
Somerset, NJ 8873

runningriver1@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jacqueline Graham
734 Isleton Drive
Brandon, FL 33511

TTGRAHAM2003@YAHOO.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephanie Passalacqua-Betz
21217 Washington St Space 4
Walnut, CA 91789

shibalover@mssoftwarela.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ron Hosp
5350 S. Ferguson Ave
Springfield, MO 65810

Ron.hosp@philips.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Henrickson
1738 W Angel Fire Terrace
Phoenix, AZ 85027

nthblessed@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

irene bairan
8116 n Grady ave
tampa, fl 33614

ibairan@tampabay.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Yamada
1676 El Camino del Teatro
La Jolla, Ca 92037

jlyamada@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ellen Carroll
9845 N. 16th Street
Phoenix, AZ 85020

thecarrolls51@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brad Neves
11454 S 3420 W
South Jordan, UT 84095

brad.neves@voyafa.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Anne Caporale
1306 Islamorada Blvd
Punta Gorda, FL 33955

nightcap4@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Reed
2704 Maria Luiza
Edinburg, Tx 78539

michael.reed@utrgv.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Ellen Mitch
19 Stoner Drive
Valparaiso, IN 46385

deme70@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

chris huss
82 Aladdin Circle NW
Buffalo, MN 55313

cahuss@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James King
351 Refugio Hwy
Victoria, TX 77905

betteyk@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Bartella
19970 N 110th Lane 19970 N 110th Lane
Sun City, Az 85373

b1c3m2@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Colston
370 Woodfield Way
Cornelia, GA 305351

scolston88@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Basil Winsor
6721 S Taylor Dr
Tempe, AZ 85283

bazwinsor@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Carrier
51323 cr 215
lawrence, MI 49064

rjccarrier@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JOAN HANSON
1110 KILBOURN AVE
TOMAH, WI 54660

hansonje2003@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peggy Wyke
3846 W Cactus Wren Dr
Phoenix, Az 85051

cpwyke@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Villagomez
3555 W. 150th. Pl.
Crown Pt., In 46307

Tatu1954@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carl Baver
5063 Clay Creek Lane
Plainfield, IN 46168

clbaver@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carl Baver
5063 Clay Creek Lane
Plainfield, IN 46168

clbaver@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jim Conn
8520 Watson Circle
Crystal Lake, IL 60014

connc14@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jean Tarabek
1703 Educational Drive
White Oak, Pa 15131

rudyjeanjr@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

STEWART TRITT
144 WHITEHEAD ROAD
BROWNSVILLE, TN 38012

stritt@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JOHN MATHENY
348-B COLUMBIA AVE
LEXINGTON, SC 29072

MEDMARTLEXSC@WINDSTREAM.NET

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Zvi Glasman
1658 9th street
Manhattan Beach, CA 90266

zvig@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael McCabe
6565 N. Alberta Ct.
Glendale, WI 53217

mmccabe99@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dianne Davis
241 Oberlin Road
columbia, SC 29212

diannedavis511@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sheldon Spiegel
5190 brookview dr.
boynton beach, Fl 33437

fuzz2639@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Davison
7351 S. Wellington St.
Centennial, CO 80122

lmdxx44@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Kalkbrenner
1307 West Avenue
McHenry, IL 60051

surfer022dave@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Baker
422 Byron Rd
Columbia, SC 29209

noelaustinmolly@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Mansueto
304 Del Sol Avenue
Davenport, Fl 33837

Barbmansueto@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Mansueto
304 Del Sol Ave.
Davenport, FL 33837

joeymann17@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joan Rosen
453 Copper Beech Circle
Elkins Park, PA 19027

jgrosen98@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Berardinucci
7 Spring Mill Court
Sewell, NJ 8080

mowgli304@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Franklin Smith
17 Jensen Drive
Fallsington, Pa 19054

fsmith1966@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynne Spearing
653 Wyndamere Road
Lewisberry, PA 17339

jacke653@ptd.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lauren Kemble
2 Hawthorne Rd
Broomall, PA 19008

Udcookie@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephanie Stockton
1919 Conver Avenue
South St. Paul, MN 55075

steppinwithsteph@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laura Kunka
2249 welsh drive
Pottstown, Pa 19464

Llkunka@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JOHN WISEBURN
418 PEPPER MILL COURT
SEWELL, NJ 8080

JOWISEBURN@YAHOO.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paula Talese
3001 N Oakland Forest Dr. #201
Oakland Park, Fl 33309

PTalese@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Keen
27501 Fisher Rd.
Halsey, OR 97348

pakeen@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Burns-Lacey 1112 Perry Ln
Collegeville, PA 19426

balacey@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roger Johnson
2159 Hock Road
East Greenville, Pa 18041

skeetergolf@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Angelo Milicia
5 Eyres Place
Somerdale, NJ 8083

a_milicia@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Yvonne O
308 Fox Trail
Royersford, Pa 19468

Vonodea@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Feels Emerick
1029 Arbour Lane
Quakertown, Pe 18951

Dickens948@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Hoerner
522 Highland Ave
Middletown, Pa 17057

Choern@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

jeannette ingram
63 dillmont drive smithtown, ny 11787

jeanne0624@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Chris Cook
1504 Tulip Tree Lane
West Des Moines, IA 50266

ccook@gilbertcook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Heist
113 Redstone Drive
Warrington, PA 18976

russellheist@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Sharp
5101 Ilchester Woods Way
Ellicott City, MD 21043

mbwsharp@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Pamela Butz
3352 Nagawicka ave
Delafield, Wi 53018

tbutz6@wi.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kani Nichols
6859 Willow Oak
San Antonio, TX 782491511

klnichols@firstcommand.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dennis Ross
323 highgate drive
Slingerlands, NY 12159

daross@nycap.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frederick Diekmann
31 Dorothy dr
Syosset, ny 11791

FredyD01@optonline.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Hooper
4 keen Ave
Kittery Point, ME 3905

pshoopster@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Hooper
4 keen Ave
Kittery Point, ME 3905

pshoopster@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Hooper
4 keen Ave
Kittery Point, ME 3905

pshoopster@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Suzanne Huss
6114 Fairwood Drive
Minnetonka, MN 55345

shusshouse@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tyler Huss
6114 Fairwood Drive
Minnetonka, MN 55345

tylerhussy@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

PAUL KAERCHER
563 Cindy Ln.
Smyrna, De 19977

paul@dspc.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Hervold
115 Chapel Road Ext.
Gettysburg, PA 17325

shervold@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Ertel
202 Sellersville rd
Chalfont, PA 18914

jertel32@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Dunn
201 Overlook Drive
Chalfont, PA 18914

jdunn956@gail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Louise Pierce
510 Strathmore Rd.
Havertown, PA 19083

mlspierce@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dennis Dool
227 Cornerstone Drive
Newtown Square, Pa 19073

Dennydool@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anne Bonn
201 W. Evergreen Avenue #207
Philadelphia, PA 19118

chanib1@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jim Berecka
2834 Canyon Drive
Grapevine, TX 76051

flint123j@mail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joanne Goldstein
108 Park Drive
Doylestown, PA 18901

jogold094@gmai.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Wolfinger
1328 Meadow Lane
Perkasie, Pa 18944

Suzieslickster@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

kathleen clements 4508 vista st
philadelphia, pa 19136

suehpae@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robin Monteleone
1435 Lawndale Road
Havertown, Pa 19083

Rknrbn510@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Ryan
228 Prince Frederick St
King of Prussia, PA 19406

patryan47@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margaret Emerick
1029 Arbour Lane
Quakertown, Pa 18951

Peggyem1@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jamie Spohn
117 Winged Foot Ct
Limerick, PA 19468

jfisher17@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jamie Spohn
117 Winged Foot Ct
Limerick, PA 19468

jfisher17@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Culbertson
818 Lakeview Ave
Laurel Springs, NJ 8021

bobculbertson@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Pete Falcone
2595 Natures Way
Palm Beach Gardens, FL 33410

pete.falcone@jpse.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Spiwak
1570 Dreshertown Road
Dresher, PA 19025

bspiwak88@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Hughes
2245 Meadowlark Street
San Pablo, CA 94806 voldog72@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Salkin
357 Peachtree Drive
Jenkintown, PA 19046

Drsalkin@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa Gray
102 Hartford Lane
Newtown, Pa 18940

graylv@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Jane Perkins
316 Evans Ave
WillowGrove, Pa 19090

Perky22@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Adiletto
716 Gilbert place
Trappe, Pa 19426

Chip2321@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roxanna Wright
83 Holland Ave
Ardmore, Pa 19003

Ralright@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dale Perkins
316 Evans Ave
WillowGrove, Pa 19090

Perky22@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Klug
826 widener road
Elkins park, Pa 19027

Billmary826@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara McCleary
PO Box 220 StoneCroft apt. 5302
Honey Brook, PA 19344

btmccleary7@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Earl Bowers
5707 Stone Mill Road
Waxhaw, NC 28173

bchalkline@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Leonard
7548 New Second Street
Elkins Park, PA 19027

Robertdavidleonard@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

susan erick
523 beecher ave
Cheltenham, Pe 19012

kerick523@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John J Krol
3308 Danley Road
Philadelphia, Pa 19154

john@krolevents.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James King
131 Prominence Court Suite 230
Dawsonville, Ge 30534

Jim@kingconsulting.info

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Harry Kesse
4800 Highland Oaks Drive
Cincinnati, Oh 45248

goosebeck76@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brent Shimman
601 Park Way E
Oregon, oh 43616

brent@sdcapital.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Deborah Edford
59572 Twin Pines Rd.
New Hudson, MI 48165

deb_edford@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Stottman
39557 Via Temprano
Murrieta, Ca 92563

tom.k.stottman@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stan Ledvina
7100 Dorval Rd
Kalamazoo, MI 49009

ledvinafamily@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Plunkett
34782 Valley Forge Drive
Farmington Hills, MI 48331

jplunkett@mi.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jamie Hughes
1526 Camino Linda Dr
San Marcos, CA 92078

Jamie.hughes1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kearsten Shepherd
1049 57TH St
Sacramento, Ca 95819

kearstenshepherd@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jonathan Michael 1600 Calvert Rd
Chester, MD 21619

jonemichael1111@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Denise Chlouber
256 S C Street
Exeter, Ca 93221

denise.chlouber@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Danielle Addison 5208 Jacobs Road
Oregon, Oh 43616

danielleaddison3@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sherry Ochsner
3930 Mescal Circle
Lincoln, NE 68516

slochsner57@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alva McCullough
5244 S. Holland Ave 5244 S. Holland Ave
Springfield, MO 65810

agmccullough@mediacombb.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Monica Ward
19058 Mills Choice Rd # 1
Montgomery Village, MD 20886

monicacward@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Becky Wells
13 Spring Lake Point
Pearl, MS 39208

centralmedicalso@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judith Hanson
932 Driftwood Place
Lady Lake, FL 32162

Judiebug@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Christmus
841 Tara Trail
Columbia, SC 29210

tchristmus@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margaret Frushour
321 Vanness Avenue
Ottumwa, IA 52501

ourgtx@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Antoinette Baca
9515 De Vargas Loop NE
Albuquerque, NM 87109

bgang4@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roger Petrilli
425 Ashford Drive
Lancaster, PA 17601

rpetrilli@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Slezak
7 Newton Circle
West Grove, Pa 19390

Slezakbp@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karl Wolfe
5739 eden prairie rd.
Minnetonka, M 55345

ckwolfe@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Frushour
321 Vanness Avenue
Ottumwa, IA 52501

ourgtx@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kitt McMaster
2616 pine lake drive
West Columbia, SC 29169

kmcmaster@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheri Wolfe
5739 Eden Prairie Rd.
Minnetonka, M 55345

ckwolfe@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alice Hartman
4033 clarendon
Bel Aire, KS 67220

alicehackett21@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Catherine Schmidt
10 W. Spors
Le Center, Mi 56057

caschmidt60@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerry L
737 McKay Lane
Salado, TX 76571

jerrys@geneosadvisors.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

carmen elia
6336 milestrip rd orchard park, ny 14127

cne74@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Suzanne Grisso
2940 Ivanrest Ave S.W.
Grandville, MI 49418

suzig1@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Christoffel 16150 Ridgewood Ct.
Punta Gorda, Fl 33982

nancychri@embarqmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Ashline
232 Garfield Ave
Angola, Ny 14006

Lservant@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frank Rogers
11349 Big Canoe
Jasper, Ga 30143

jfrjrjd@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frank Hutsell
1085 S. Lakemont Avenue #202
Winter Park, FL 32792

fhutsell@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Culver
9636 Versailles Plank Rd
Angola, Ny 14006

Lservant@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Fabritiis
19701 E Julius Rd
Queen Creek, AZ 85142

Epfab@hr-1source.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Devon Hubbard
836 Stonebridge ln
Crystal lake, Il 60014

Dhubbahubba@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Willeumier
104 Superior Ct #N2
Schaumburg, IL 61093

david.willeumier@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Gillespie
5627 woodhaven dr
cincinnati, oh 45248

joe4806@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jack Ulm
7868 Tucson Ct
Cincinnati, Oh 45239

jbrulm@fuse.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Hawbaker
1170 Burkettown Rd.
Roaring Spring, PA 16673

MariJH7@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sara Darling
1526 Camino Linda Dr
San Marcos, CA 92078

Darlings80@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michele Weaver
908 9th Street
Saxton, PA 16678

mdweaver00@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kimberly Larson
10527 S. Westnedge
Portage, MI 49001

cyneburh@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kristy Graham
132 Fairfield Circle
Madison, ms 39110

serviceteamllc@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Armstrong
9151 W. Lake Dr.
Pound, WI 54161

oldarmy519@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bradley Sweetser
5320 La Crescenta
Yorba Linda, Ca 92887

Ksweetser@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Guy Frix
2804 South Boulder Ave.
Russellville, AR 72802

gfrix@entergy.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bobby Davidson
13140 Miller Rd
Azly, TX 76020

cjdavidson46@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rosalie DeStefano
7805 Manor Forest Ln
Boynton Beach, FL 33436

rosalie@almawealth.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Leo B Goodin
51 Hemlock Point Dr
Coventry, CT 6238

bart@taxesplusllc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Norma Pickard
1711 N. Roberts Rd.
Muskegon, MI 49445

rnpickard@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Preston
8393 Cherry Blossom Drive
Windsor, CO 80550

jim.preston@cambridgesecure.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rosemary Magee
21 Barstow Road Apt. 4E Great Neck, NY 11021

magee5@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Monte Hazelbaker
502 Elizabeth St
Cincinnati, OH 0

mrhazelbaker@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Russell Allen
2018 Dwight Mission Rd
Russellville, AR 72802

blessedsuz@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Monica Pareja
PO Box 6165
McKinney, TX 75071

moni529jean@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gail Crossen
1711 N Woodlawn St
Wheaton, Il 0

gailcrossen@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jim Crossen
1711 N Woodlawn St
Wheaton, Il 0

jimcrossen4140@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ANDREW KNUTSON
871 MT VIEW ROAD
EL CAJON, CA 92021

acknutson@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paulette Burns
324 Federal Street
Philadelphia, PA 19147

pauletteburns324@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marianna Goldenberg
1705 Newtown- Langhorne Rd Suite 5
Langhorne, PA 19047

marianna@curowm.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Ahern
3425 W Berteau #3
Chicago, IL 60618

patty.ahern@cterafs.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christy Burrows
525 Ivy Road
Tea, SD 57064

momto4girls@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christy Burrows
525 Ivy Road
Tea, SD 57064

momto4girls@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christy Burrows
525 Ivy Road
Tea, SD 57064

momto4girls@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Leslie Beard
2918 Duncan Street
Columbia, SC 29205

lbeard@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Tolson
4 Eagles Ridge Court
Blythewood, SC 29016

Mikeytolson@icloud.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karon Cappaert
6690 cardinal Curcle
Maple Grove, MN 55369

karoncap@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christy Burrows
525 Ivy Road
Tea, SD 57064

momto4girls@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bob Huston
7898 Highlander drive
Anchorage, AK 99518

BobHuston907@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joyce Wollenburg
104 Linda Drive
Sikeston, MO 63801

joycewollenburg@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynn. B. Scott
2500 Fripp Street
Beaufort, SC 29902

lbscott@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lee Powers
20523 472nd Ave
Brookings, SD 57006

powers@itctel.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven St. Sauver
795 Germain St.
St. Paul, M 55106

steve4949@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Phillip Brown
105 Pond Ridge Rd
Columbia, SC 29223

Pwaynebrown@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeffrey Martin
564 Magnolia Parkway
Benbrook, TX 76126

jeffrey_m62@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Bergeron
186 Ponderosa Dr
Ladson, SC 29456

sharonsoss@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Hannah James 1799 Jennings Rd
Millerton, PA 16936

hannaemily@npacc.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WARREN WORTHLEY
1025 LUCIA DR
PUNTA GORDA, FL 33950

paradisefla@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lawrence Oliver
120 West St. Johns Terrace
East Palatka,, Fl 32131

lawrence_l_oliver@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

karen stroud
114 bee creek court georgetown, tx 78633 klstroud@suddenlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gregory Morrissey
48373 265th St.
Brandon, SD 57005

morris582@alliancecom.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

kent stookey
2313 E. 8th St.
Anderson, In 46012

kstookey57@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Dotta
30 Timberlane Dr
Bangor, PA 18013

md73cuda@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Walter Bacon
119 Walnut Grove Circle
Irmo, SC 29063

frank_bacon@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Balsom
9705 foxglove court
Clarence center, Ny 14032

Jbalsom@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeannine Brown
7408 Palgrave Court
Fairview, TN 37062

brownwjm@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frankie Easterby
314 golden Ingot Land
Columbia, SC 29229

Frankieeasterby@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Anne Tindall
2234 Peachtree Lane
Northbrook, IL 60062

tindallm41@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gene Hildman
4002 Kingswick Dr.
Arlington, Tx 76016

Gene@GeneHildman.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeffrey Balsom
9705 foxglove court
Clarence center, Ny 14032

Jbalsom@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rebecca Horn
2675 Lancaster St
West Linn, OR 97068

r.m.horn@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debra Ketterhagen
7101 Big Bend Road
Waterford, Wi 53185

dketterhagen6@wi.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Deborah Bartmann
1521 Morey Lane
Waukesha, WI 53188

dbartmann@wi.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

philp forman
4984 s.e. mariner village lane
stuart, fl 34997

larryshadow2000@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

lawrence maher
4984 s.e. mariner village lane
stuart, fl 34997

larryshadow2000@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Monica Baumgarten
13101 Briar Forest Dr. Apt. 6412G
Houston, TX 77077

monicakay256@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Casault
17162 Dragonfly Lane
Fort Myers, fl 33967

roncasault@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sheila Mugabi
209 W 16th St
Wilmington, DE 19802

sheilam@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Singleton
1465 Ukiah Way
Upland, Ca 91786

jsingleton100@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rhonda norton
826 Spring Brook Dr.
Winona, MN 55987

rannnorton@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Hooper
4 keen Ave
Kittery Point, ME 3905

pshoopster@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Hooper
4 keen Ave
Kittery Point, ME 3905

pshoopster@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Mc Donald
155 W 81st Street #2D
New York, NY 10024

Jamesnewy3@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Mc Donald
155 W 81st Street #2D
New York, NY 10024

Jamesnewy3@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Pellegrino
14 Ashview Dr.
Spencer, Ma 1562

Jrpell43@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeffrey Sager
1013 6th st
West Babylon, NY 11704

jsager55@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa Davis
8626 Independence School Rd
Louisville, KY 40228

lisasdavis@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gilbert Spinnell
733 Verona Drive
Melville, NY 11747

gilspinn@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kristyne Hall
3 Millhouse Circle
Columbia, sc 29223

Kristynehall@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cynthia McDaniel
125 Circleview Dr
Lexington, SC 29072

cmcdaniel8@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Christie
4813 E 36th St
Sioux Falls, SD 57110

sjrmchristie@sio.midco.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Clyde Baker
422 Byron Rd
Columbia, SC 29209

evaharveylilly@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lenore Lapin
7754 Glendevon Lane
Delray Beach, FL 33446

lenorel@fastmail.fm

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rhonda Towlerton
4708 S Sundance Cir
Sioux Falls, SD 57105

rhont@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Arnold Lee
9605 Crayford Ct
Burke, VA 22015

arnold-lee@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Phillip Keller
5108 Greenway Dr.
Fort Collins, Co 80525

pkeller04@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Sorrell
1844 Harvest Dance
Leander, TX 78641

revjohnsorrell@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jamie Ziarek
5102 Buena Park Road
Waterford, WI 53185

jziarek0624@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Royer
3001 Parkwood Dr.
Richmond, IN 47374

proyerster@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Whitecotton
833 Boatswain Loop
Chapin, S 29036

Mmmcotton@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Tolson
1318 Loner Road
Blythewood, SC 29016

rtolson1@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Garner
147 W Birch Lane
Alexandria, In 46001

Jmgarner72@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Phillip Brown
105 Pond Ridge Rd
Columbia, SC 29223

Pwaynebrown@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marie Peacock
7695 W 23rd Pl
Lakewood, Co 80214

marie@gardenz.biz

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Winkler
91 brookview drive north haledon, nj 7508

tom@wklawn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Brown
7408 Palgrave Court
Fairview, TN 37062

tombrown.tlb@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Craig Loewenberg
12226 Beverly Street
Overland Park, KS 66209

berglar54@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George Blann
1527 Lejack Circle
Forest, VA 24551

geo.blann@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Plezia
347 Chairfactory Rd
Elma, NY 14059

bplezia@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ross Gamble
7817 Loch Lane
Columbia, SC 29223

rossbarb63@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Mosman
255 Thomas Lane
Tappahannock, VA 22560

Themosmans@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Earl Jones
6136 Winding Bridge Dr
Jacksonville, FL 32277

kevin_jones@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

paul barnett
7415 coachmaker rd
columbia, sc 29209

barnett7415@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Hans
3368 Wilderness Circle Middleburg, FL 32068

fourhans@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Abelson
1683A Maple Road
Williamsville, NY 14221

babelson@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kristyn Carney
2943 W. Riverwalk Cir. Unit G
Littleton, CO 80112

Kristyncarney@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Blake Lotzer
7335 big stone circle
Roscoe, Il 61073

Blakelotzer@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Eden
8626 Independence School Rd
Louisville, KY 40228

peden1123@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sheila Hawk
170 East Hill Road
Brimfield, MA 1010

hawks@tantasqua.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jim Skach
728 18th Fairway
Andover, KA 67002

jskach@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marvin Whitson
3816 E. Haven Dr
Derby, KS 67037

mar3ab6@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vicki Willenborg
4705 Mitchell Mountain Rd
Westcliffe, CO 81252

Vawkch@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shauna Weil
20507 N William Avenue
Prairie View, IL 60069

Gr8brit56@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tom Tarczon
11712 Rosemont Court
Denton, TX 76207

tom@tarczon.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Mullen 9901 Fox Shores De.
Algonwuin, IL 60102

mullen520@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dominique Wakefield
13020 oulton circle
Orlando, fl 32833

dopolanen@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kim Wagner
3217 Cardington Way
Johnsburg, IL 60051

kwagner85@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Ruffner
40557 N Minena St
Antioch, IL 50002

ruffnermb@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

barbara troeger
4025 Harleston Green Lane
Mount Pleasånt, SC 29466

barb83189@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Clifton L Kay Jr
!600 Beaverdam Road
Williamston, SC 29697

leonkay6388@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vanessa McLean
520 W. Huron # 307
Chicago, IL 60654

foghornleghorn10@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Herb Walter 2831 Stewart Ave.
Winthrop, Ia 50682

hcquasky@netins.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Price
7 Glen Echo Court
Swedesboro, NJ 8085

jprice925@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Victor L
194 Lakeshore Dr
Crystal Lake, IL 60047

viclheureux@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Murr
77 Old Brook Road
Levittown, PA 19057

rdkill311@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Pamela McConnell
3305 E Palomino Ln
Tucson, AZ 85739

pammcconnell@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Frazar
3403 Pedernales Trails Lane
Katy, TX 77450

sfrazar@ymail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Maryanne Ciullo
3704 Gatlin Place Circle
Orlando, Fl 32812

Mciullo@cfl.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mike Rood
20 West Monroe
Villa Park, IL 60181

ekimdoor@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeffery Beyer
481 Melrose Ln.
Crystal Lake, IL 60014

jbeyer100@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Ray
190 Course Drive
Lake in the Hills, IL 60156

RER@bobray.US

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Phares
4720 N Salina Ave
Wichita, ks 67204

jlp191@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alice Hellgeth
397 Talisman Dr.
Crystal Lake, Il 60012

Hellgeth@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Schardein
1019 S. Cypress
Wichits, Ks 67207

barbara.schardein@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alice Hellgeth
397 Talisman Dr.
Crystal Lake, Il 60012

Hellgeth@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alice Hellgeth
397 Talisman Dr.
Crystal Lake, Il 60012

Hellgeth@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ralph troeger
4025 harleston green lane
mount pleasant, SC 29466

huggieu@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Fletcher
9222 W. Central Park Court Wichita, Ka 67205

davidmfletcher72@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Zeh
1472 Loch Lomond DR
Crystal Lake, Il 60014

tomzeh@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Curt Reilly
957 Wilkinson Ln.
North Aurora, IL 60542

crcars2@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Loita Phillips
54123 Lisa Dr
Callahan, FL 32011

Ajsnana935@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Loita Phillips
54123 Lisa Dr
Callahan, FL 32011

Ajsnana935@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

RONALD MOUNT 11 STONEGATE COURT
GILFORD, NH 3249

MARMOUNT@METROCAST.NET

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gautam Misra
74 Gallinson Drive
New Providence, NJ 7974

GmFinDoctr@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Connie Page
9141 E. 33rd Avenue`
Denver, CO 80238

conniedpage@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Johnny Copeland
17692 county road 137
wellborn, Fl 32094

johnnyjcopeland@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joyce Wollenburg
104 Linda Drive
Sikeston, MO 63801

joycewollenburg@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Adams
902 6th Ave No.
Jacksonville Beach, Fl 32250

nancy1beach@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lanny Burr
4061 I Road
Syracuse, NE 68446

lanny@cpaburr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cecelia Lucas
5218 Cleveland ave
Pittsburgh, PA 15122

Celylu709@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cecelia Lucas
5218 Cleveland ave
Pittsburgh, PA 15122

Celylu709@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kramer Lawson
2279 Fieldstone Curve
Woodbury, MN 55129

Kramer.Lawson@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Burr
4061 I Road
Syracuse, NE 68446

mary@cpaburr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nathan Burr
381 Locust ST.
Syracuse, NE 68446

nate@cpaburr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lanny Burr
4061 I Road
Syracuse, NE 68446

lanny@cpaburr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lora Holton
756 Monterey Trail
Dakota DUnes, SD 57049

bojilo@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lora Holton
756 Monterey Trail
Dakota DUnes, SD 57049

bojilo@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Fixen
20619 469th Ave
Brookings, SD 57006

pfixen@itctel.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas Gold
206 N. Trenton St. Apt 4
Arlington, VA 22203

douglasgold@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wes Cochran
306 Loring Circle
Brandon, MS 39042

wcochran@copelandandjohns.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Simpson
1220 S Monroe St
San Angelo, TX 76901

rms84@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Knudson
2813 Williams Ave
Sioux City, Ia 51106

knudsonite@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Matt Guagliardo
1695 broad st bloomfield, nj 7003

mrguags@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debra Williams
15500 Irene Court
Clinton Township, MI 48038

debra.williams610@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ERICA VOREIS
403 E. Kirkwood Ave.
Fairfield, IA 52556

erica.voreis@cir2.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Holmes
7342 New Paris-Gettysburg Rd.
New Paris, Oh 45347

greendevil71@embarqmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Clements
2925 20th Street
Vero Beach, FL 32960

patti.clements@homeinstead.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Schnell
529 Caduceus Lane
Hurst, TX 76053

susan@alltexinsurance.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerry Chapman
11126 Slay Rd.
Summit, MS 39666

cjerryl@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Reed
6 Fieldhedge Lane
Lopatcong, NJ 8865

davidr.reed@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George Bentas
697A Union Street
Manchester, NH 3109

gbentas@myfairpoint.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephanie Hallock
101 Roland Road
Coatesville, Pa 19320

fairytale2001@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joanne DiGiuseppe
15 Davis Avenue
Broomall, PA 19008

jubilee324@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JoAnn Mazzocchi
736 Cheston Avenue
Tullytown, PA 19007

mazzocchi5@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

R. Bruce Moyer
1016a Diamond Street
Sellersville, Pa 18960

jodyandbruce@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John DePugh
P.o. Box 2151
Philadelphia, PA 19103

Jrdepugh@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lorraine Ruffino
26 Old York Road
Turnersville, NJ 8012

lorruffino@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bernice Ziehm
113 Anytrell Drive
Webster, NY 14580

rziehm@frontiernet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John DePugh
P.o. Box 2151
Philadelphia, PA 19103

Jrdepugh@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Burns
1826 Packer Ave.
Philadelphia, PA 19145

Caterino1826@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Hawes
201 E. Decatur St.
Broken Arrow, OK 74011

bahawes@valornet.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joan Thurman
531 Village Circle
BlueBell, PA 19422

Thu531@Verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Schuster
1412 Redmond Ave
San Jose, CA 95120

rrobt@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Ryan
228 Prince Frederick St
King of Prussia, PA 19406

richryan@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janice Palachick
236 Belair Rd
Warminster, Pa 18974

Jp12647@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Hartman
1536 Aspen drive
Pottstown, Pa 19464

Hartman.thomas.1766@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Binder
1612 Colima Road
Philadelphia, PA 19115

nbinder@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Sabol
404 20th St
Saint Augustine, Fl 32084

m_sabol@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rebecca habitzreuther
10421 Breckenridge lane fairfax, va 22030

rhabitz@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Valerie Jerrils
313 E 1000 N
Alexandria, IN 46001

vjerrils@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gerald Verdi
45 Lenora Dr
Hamburg, NY 14075

gverdi1@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Walker
315 E Broadway St
Alexandria, IN 46001

cjwalker2656@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Walker
315 E Broadway St
Alexandria, IN 46001

lwalker2656@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Victor King
2910 S Jonathan Ct
Springfield, MO 65807

vkingconsulting@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Burns
1010 E 157th St
Burnsville, MN 55306

sburns1010@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Herbert Sellers
6063 Kingsley Lake Drive
Starke, FL 32091

herb@casjax.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrew Sabol
5016 River Point Road
JAcksonville, Fl 32207

eagle53@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeannie Nye
3415 Ravencreek Lane
Oviedo, Fl 32766

jeannie@winchesterinsurance.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ben Carlson
2209 Connelly Circle
Burnsville, MN 55337

benjaminjoshuacarlson@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Hollis
13650 W Purdue Ave
Morrison, CO 80465

kevkev36@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jane Armstrong
605 N 6th St
Sauk Rapids, MN 56379

barmstr@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Annie Morrison
227 Sacred Heart Ln
Reisterstown, MD 21136

annie@zumafinancial.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sheldine Runyan
13650 W Purdue Ave
Morrison, CO 80465

sheldinekevin@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Timothy Rouen
3039 Becket St.
Pearland, TX 77584

trouen@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shirley Rhinehart
565 Peachtree St NE unit 1502
Atlanta, GA 30308

srhinehart@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shirley Foster
709 Chestnut Oak Dr N
Jacksonville, Fl 32218

8559sf@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frank Held
527 N University Drive
Plantation, FL 33324

jeffheld@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gregory Maier
2312 East 5th Street
Anderson, IN 46012

tlmaier@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Leko
9920 cloman path
inver grove heights, mn 55076

saleko48@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Leann Donovan
903 Independence Dr. NW
Big Lake, MN 55309

mnleann@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Annetta Pozzuto
1113 Schweitzer Road McKeesport, PA 15135

fishjfp@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shirley Leko
9920 Cloman Path
Inver Grove Heights, Mn 55076

saleko48@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tracy Maier
2312 East 5th Street
Anderson, IN 46012

tlmaier@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

jeff johnson
2622 sw talbot road
portland, or 97201

hongsons@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

BARBARA O
6262 Masefield Court Alexandria, VA 22304

olearyb@ceteranetworks.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kimberly Baver
5063 Clay Creek Ln
Plainfield, IN 46168

kkbaver@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Zimmer
2807 Carriage Way
West Linn, OR 97068

zimmrezs@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dennis Horr
3793 Neidich Lane
Goshen, OH 45122

dennish@faithfin.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Betty Sanders
90 Woodgate Drive
Brandon, Ms 39042

bettyjeansanders@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Coduri
7 Bayview Drive
Westerly, RI 2891

jbcoduri@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Welcome W. Adamson
578 E. Werner Ln.
Meridian, ID 83642

wlcmwy@cableone.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diane Thornton
23 48th St
Gulfport, MS 39507

Dithornton@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian & Ina Matz
7511 Jamie Lane SE
Byron Center, MI 49315

briananandina49@netzero.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Boedeker
337 E 600 N
VALPARAISO, In 46383

j042173@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Hoffman
120 E. Summer Street
Appleton, WI 54911

william.hoffman@st-therese.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Boedeker
337 E 600 N
VALPARAISO, In 46383

j042173@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donnie Green
839 county road 536
Groveoak, Al 35975

degreen@farmerstel.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George Lupiba
153 S Roslyn St
Denver, Co 80230

glupiba@live.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Russell Shaffer
4214 Ironwood
Wichita, KS 67226

rgssad@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon LaRowe
11766 Carriage House Dr
Silver Spring, Md 20904

fairysherri@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Bapst
1904 Windfield Drive
Munster, IN 46321

bapst@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Allen Conder
2655 East 11th Street
Casper, WY 82609

conderalc@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Juan Rosado
2 Mintwood Pt.
Homosassa, Fl 34446

phonedoc@tampabay.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bettey King
351 Refugio Hwy
Victoria, TX 77905

betteyk@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Curt Reilly
957 Wilkinson Ln.
North Aurora, IL 60542

crcars2@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Dragan
31 Cragmont Way
Woodside, CA 94062

pdragan@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeff Lake
25 Palmetto Cove Ct.
Bluffton, SC 29910

Jslake76@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judy M. Willard
405 E. 29th St. sanford, Fa 32773

jwillard6@cfl.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Eversman
979 Wesley Drive
Crystal Lake, IL 60014

donna.eversman@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laura Hammond
3781 Raccoon Run
Marietta, GA 30062

laura.mckee@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bob Dwyer
4529 S Nancy Drive
Crystal Lake, IL 60014

bob@bilmarcompany.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wayne Ferrari
34 Lothrop Street
Beverly, MA 1915

ferrariw@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joslyn Grasser
Po box 200
McNabb, Il 61335

Joslyngrasser@yaho.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Grasser
Po box 200
McNabb, Il 61335

Drakeg_7@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Salvaggio
1510 Glen Lake Rd
Hoffman Estates, IL 60169

mikesalvaggio@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Klementina Rodriguez
4501 S Paseo Don Carlos
Tucson, AZ 85757

SMIELYFACE3@YAHOO.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Clifford Scott
5161 S Paseo Gemelos
Green Valley, AZ 85622

cliffs520@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Maria Pilar Colon
8607 Prairie Manor Drive
Richmond, TX 77406

mpcolon1961@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Don Upton
1260 39th
Downers Grove, IL 60515

upton18@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Fiorentino
332 Fairview Ave
Ambler, PA 19002

rfiorent@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrew Hechtman
18 Chatham Woods Court
Cheshire, CT 6410

ahechtman@snet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dora Gourley
1239 Bernard St.
Woodburn, OR 97071

dboes1949@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Bock
8877 A SW 96th Street
Ocala, Fl 34481

kbock1234@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cyndi Markis
72 Tifton Way N
Ponte Vedra Beach, Fl 32082

ckcameo@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

paula harris
4150 No 252nd Street waterloo, ne 68069

fharris123@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amie Hood
401 N. Walnut St
Alexandria, IN 46001

amiehood15@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jody Holt
1435 Marigold
Borger, TX 79007

jodyholt@cableone.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Penny Neil
16723 SW Rogue River Terrace
Beaverton, OR 97006

plneil@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marie Licata
159 Findlay Avenue
Tonawanda, Ne 14150

salandmarie@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Micaela Chase
950 Laurel Street
Waukee, IA 50263

chase_micaela@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Shepherd
4600 East Park Drive Suite 300
Jupiter, Fl 33410

compliance@legendgroup.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Francis Traufler Jr
2005 Woodtrail Dr
Columbia, SC 29210

Usmc8387@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

hunter herring
6619 Christie Road
Columbia, SC 29209

hhunterherring@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen James 13936 Blanca Ave.
Rosemount, MN 55068

kjkarenannjames@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frank Virno, Jr. CFP
7 Bay Rd.
East Patchogue, NY 117726201

frank.virno@wfafinet.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carolyn Stump
400 S Scouller
Wichita, KS 67209

sstump3@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Scott
1709 Tower Drive
Ardmore, OK 73501

jms_86@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Johnson
2405 archer Blvd.
Orlando, FL 32833

mtj5728@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Zicko
10 Catamount Rd
Tewksbury, MA 1876

kingzog1st@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George Meyer
622 Hingham Lane
Schaumburg, il 60193

hottubkid60193@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Casey
235 Peterson Pkwy
Crystal Lake, Il 60014

suecasey333@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alan Moler
22 Hawthorne Dr.
Valley Center, Ks 67147

captaindougmoler@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrew Hansen
13128 County Lane 228
Oronogo, MO 64855

andy.hansen@ciy.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Felix Dupre
3048 Promontory Peak Dr
Colorado Springs, CO 80920

solutionsfd@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bill Durkin
21800 Wingfoot Ct
Broadlands, VA 20148

durkiwe@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kennetha Gaebler
5449 Pinon Valley Road
Colorado Springs, CO 80919

kennetha.g@ix.netcom.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Gaebler
5449 Pinon Valley road
Colorado Springs, CO 80919

gabes2@ix.netcom.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

joan st.onge-meder
14412 n alamo canyon dr oro valley, az 85755

joanmeder@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Russell Fuller
903 Ambridge Drive
Louisville, KY 40207

fuller985@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sarah Witmer
6624 Commodore Court
New market, Md 21774

aprilrain04@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gretchen Compton
159 Sheridan Ave
Fort Thomas, KY 41075

gretchen.compton@duke-energy.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dale Kucerak
13404 Roma Ave NE
Albuquerque, NM 87123

dakucerak@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dorothy Campbell
6118 Gray Rd
Fairfield, oh 45014

deedle51047@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

donald sheridan
1628 west second street cresson, Pe 16630

bear.sheridan.47@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeff Nall
2071 Horse Haven Trail
Nixa, MO 65714

Jnall@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Endter
6683 Capitol Place
Rancho Cucamonga, CA 91701

homemag@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Brownlee
12194 Hwy 28
Hazlehurst, MS 39083

brownlee16@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Verna Wong Hsueh
19946 Esquiline Ave
Walnut, CA 91789

vernawwong@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Maurer
43585 Simsbury
Canton, MI 48187

purduegary91@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Johnson
517 Arbor Drive
Madison, MS 39110

johnsm8@icloud.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jacob McGaugh
3043 Tidewater Cr,
Madison, MS 39110

jacobmcgaugh@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Claiborne
24056 West 121st St Olathe, KS 66061

jclaiborne4@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lucio Garcia
3659 E. Pomegranate st.
Mesa, Az 85215

elgarzon@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gretchen Brown
4664 N Skyline Drive
Eagle, ID 83616

browngr5@live.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Fowler
406 Camellia Lane
Ridgeland, MS 39157

Bfowler1161@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Buni Cocar
84 Wilton Ln
Mundelein, il 60060

nadejdea@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynn Sroda
38 melberry trail
Orchard park, Ny 14127

Lsroda@netscape.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Caroline Davis Carbone
1189 Bramble Drive
Breinigsville, PA 18031

cj2379@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lola Downs
703 Northside Drive Enterprise, AL 36330

lola@freedom2dream.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Lotzer
1821 Camp Ave
Rockford, Il 61103

clotzer@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Ehlert
35004 Star LKE DRIVE
PEQUOT Lakes, MN 56472

jehlert@uslink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

CHERYL Strand
po box 521
Grayland, Wa 98547

tmcerovac@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michele Smith
512 Zierke Court
Winnebago, IL 61088

michelemsmith@mchsi.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Willisia Vail
82 Woodstone Drive
Mandeville, LA 70471

wg_vail@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Bell
6516 Schell ln
Anderson, In 46013

Jbell262@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Monique Avakian
1200 Warburton Ave., #30
Yonkers, NY 10701

monava9@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Gullett
10406 Baldensburg Rd
Ottumwa, Ia 52501

Mg2009@mediacombb.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Hurst
1460 Water Pipit Lane
Fleming Island, FL 32003

angelwatch27@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nathan Lambertson
309 N 21st Ave
Beech Grove, IN 46107

nlambertson74@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

william medlock, jr
3311 Westbury Ct
Conyers, Ga 30013

wtmed@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

william medlock, jr
3311 Westbury Ct
Conyers, Ga 30013

wtmed@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

BARBARA MAZZELLA
66 RIVERCREST DR
PLANTSVILLE, CT 6479

BKMFM@ATT.NET

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

diane hedley
26 scotch mist way ballston spa, ny 12020

dhedley@nycap.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Walker
313 Grandview Ct
Pearl, Ms 39208

papananawalk@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Terry Stevens
2543 Calkins Road
Germantown, TN 38139

stevens_terry@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Nelson
526 Robinson Dr
Tustin, CA 92807

michael20one@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jim Mehring
6021 Cedar Bend Way
Avon, IN, IN 46123

mehringjim@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stacy Arciaga
13161 Sundance Avenue
San Diego, CA 92129

sarciaga@san.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Pamela Charleston-Lyons
29264 Paramount Court
Farmington Hills, MI 48331

prccruiser@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Parr
16723 SW Rogue River Terrace
Beaverton, OR 97006

johnmparr@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lana Borland
4046 Monre St
Sioux City, IA 51108

lana_borland@ajg.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Scarbrough
524 Ellerslie Lane
Madison, MS 39110

ronscarbrough68@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Vance
2110 w fairway drive
Brandon, MS 39047

plvance@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wendy Grover
1275 Crete Court
Riverside, CA 92506

wendyrgrover@gmal.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

tim martin
1745 Pobox
Corona, CA 92878

wmpr@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Deb Sample
524 Brookstone Circle
Madison, Ms 39110

dtsample@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

lloyd hardage
113 redbud trail
brandon, ms 39047

fhardage@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sam Boyd
5886 Bridgetown Ct
Burke, VA 22015

boydsamuel55@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Craig Scherzer
20213 W 92nd St.
Lenexa, KS 66220

cpscherzer@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Duane Long
1328 Spool Wheel Road
Gilbert, SC 29054

duanerlong@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Johnny Wall
1600 Edgewood Place
Clinton, MS 39056

johnnywall2@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gina Embry
126 Marauder Ct.
Murfreesboro, TN 37127

embryg@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrew Ladner
P O Box 7
Kiln, Ms 39556

Andyladner322@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Martha Johnson
5200 S 247th W
Goddard, KS 67052

mjnef@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

