Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jason Koontz
3 Fairview Place
Morristown, NJ 7960

jasonkoontz4@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

mark caliendo 1142 siesta key lane
elgin, Il 60120

markupb@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

joan serino
1009 schuyler st
rome, ny 13440

joanmserino@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Parker
8360 Irvine Rd.
Winchester, KY 40391

parker.m@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kim Kaplan
31632 N. Ellis Dr., Unit 304
Volo, IL 60073

kim@omni1electronics.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ERIC BOLSTAD
5 GLENBROOK
BENTONVILLE, AR 72712

ERBOLSTAD@GMAIL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Earl Meier
4 Westwood
Hillsboro, IL 62049

emeier1@consolidated.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Hartnett
314 Fulton St
Coleridge, NE 68727

nancibing@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Jane Recer
3819 Nagawicka Shores Drive
Hartland, WI 53029

packercowboy@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sarah McLaughlin
999 Penfield Road
Rochester, NY 14625

sarah.schill@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Russo
1416 N.Ontario St.
Burbank, Ca 91505

karusso@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dorothy Omilanowicz
909 Old Coldbrook Rd
Barre, Ma 1005

daomilanowicz@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Katherine Wiersma
1057 Vanderburgh Drive
Valparaiso, IN 46385

wiersma.kay@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

hector garcia 4530 Snead
corpus Christi, tx 78413

hectorgg49@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

MARTIN ZAHN
7251 MARLTON LANE
SAINT LOUIS, MO 63123

mp_zahn@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Pamela Coles 29091 Bouquet Canyon
Silverado, Ca 92676

pammycoles@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Julie Gould
4545 Parkedge Dr
Fairview Park, Oh 44126

jkaygould@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Norman Lovelace
3250 Sugarloaf Key Road
Punta Gorda, fl 33955

llovelace3@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Connie Mueller
9011 Hickory Lane
Wonder Lake, IL 60097

wtwb2@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wilfred Mekel
7454 Lake Micala
Corpus Christi, TX 78413

merkelw@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Catherine Thomas
7070 West 105th Place
Crown Point, IN 46307

cmtsrt@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diana Perlick
2308 Canyon Creek Drive
McKinney, Tx 75070

dperlick@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Julie Delchini
75 Morello Avenue
Martinez, CA 94553

texninca@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynda Shepherd
1867 Wynnewood Road
Philadelphia, PA 19151

lyndashepherd@rocketmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Poppaw
4316 APPLETON PL
KETTERING, OH 45440

jpdpmailbox-general@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Sansone
63 Orange Blossom
Irvine, Ca 92618

bobirvca@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert DePasquale
108 Vere Terrace
Livingston, NJ 7039

drumrdadde@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sheryl Hess
10717 Fruit Road
Alhambra, IL 62001

sheryl.hess3@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Louise Jackowicz
3945 North Oak Park Avenue
Chicago, IL 60634

jackowim@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Walker
235 Chestnut Street
Glendora, NJ 8029

walkerrn@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

DAvid Koehler
507 Abbeywood Ct
OAk Brook, IL 60523

dekoehler@rcn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

leonard emery
1193 pointe regal cir. apt 309
delray beach, fl 33484

joe.emery418@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Timo
11823 S 87th East Ave
Bixby, Ok 74008

Omit52@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Lang
7472 South Shaffer Lane #150
Litlteton, CO 80127

Benderlang@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

jennifer calvin
4808 Otter Creek Ln
Ponte Vedra Beach, FL 32082

calvinlegal@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Angela Kottmeyer
226 Church Street
Downingtown, PA 19335

akottmeyer@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lawrence Wassell
2824 Vale Dr.
Kettering, OH 45420

Hut8114@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Wendt
28 Elm Street
Red Hook, NY 12571

rwendt@hvc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Teresa Tompkinson
1204 Bryant Drive
Chesapeake, Va 23320

Groovintd@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Harthun
5780 Eagle rd
White Lake, Mi 48383

Big44ruger@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Harthun
5780 Eagle rd
White Lake, Mi 48383

Big44ruger@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Delchini
75 Morello Avenue
Martinez, CA 94553

docchini@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christine Woodman
34322 Wagon Wheel Trail
Elizabeth, CO 80107

cwoodman@sbbco.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Stavisky
1617 East Laurel Circle
Mount Pleasant, PA 15666

Ser@zoominternet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

FRANCES DOWNS
80276 ROYAL DORNOCH
INDIO, CA 92201

francesjbeee@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joel Eckert
6243 W. Parapet Ct.
Boise, ID 83703

j_a_eckert@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Walker
235 Chestnut Street
Glendora, NJ 8029

walkerrn@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Jo Rigney
6106 Bay Pine Dr
Louisville, Ky 40219

maryjorigney@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

jay smalley
10533 ewing ave so bloomington, mn 55431

napajay@AOL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debra Reed
12404 SW 263 Terrace 10201 Bahia Drive
Homestead, FL 33032

debraareed59@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Heather Dubinskas
2614 N. Clybourn Ave Unit 103
Chicago, Il 60614

hdubinskas@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Royle
8057 West RS Ave
Schoolcraft, Mi 49087

ktmedr@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Earl Maxey
403 Felicity Higginsport Rd
Felicity, Oh 45120

enmaxey2013@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

wayne murphy 296 jefferson drive palmyra, va 22963

ewrjmurphy@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margaret E. Breidenstein
36 Irving Terrace
Buffalo, NY 14223

mefabs@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

CINDY RAY-BYRD
2227 HAMILTON-CLEVES RD
HAMILTON, Oh 45013

cray6@cinci.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Theresa GARLAND
120 mark twain circle apt I ten Athens, GA 30605

Theresacgarland@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Greg Derrow
17926 Farmhouse Lane
New Market, VA 22844

gderrow@dairymen.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

LARRY NABORS 660 BLACK THORN DRIVE WALLS, MS 38680

lnabors@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lori Zywiec
5985 Telluride Dr.
Lincoln, NE 68521

lazywiec@neb.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Jager
939 118th Ave
Martin, MI 49070

ccjager@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Lafond
PO Box 77 N6322 Lakeshore Dr.
Wakefield, MI 49968

william_lafond@financialgrp.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Abarr
33 Woodlawn Avenue
Hampton, GA 30228

csbabarr@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Dean
10930 N. Hillside
Valley Center, KS 67147

flamedameartglass@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Julie Chucta
63240 38th Street
Paw Paw, MI 49079

chuctaj@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Lafond
212 Laurel St.
Batavia, IL 60510

william_lafond@financialgrp.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Hedley
10 Hills Road
Ballston Lake, NY 12019

khedley@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jay Krehbiel
4530 Deer Shadow Trail
Sioux City, ia 51106

jay.krehbiel@tyson.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Candise McKay
2636 Overlook Dr. #243
Caldwell, Tx 77836

puddinjr@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gerald Deatherage
327 Longmeadow Lane
Fort Mitchell, KY 41017

jerryd@ceteraadvisors.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Schmidt
9240 W Virginia Circle
Lakewood, CO 80226

KPSchmidt@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dennis Shermeto
1148 Red Oak
Harrison City, PA 15636

dshermeto@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharbelle Couric
6923 Williams Run Road
Port Republic, VA 24471

sharbellecouric@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald LaBrec
1608 Penny Lane
Little Chute, Wi 54140

dmbrec@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Melanie Bouman
2039 Roundtable Road
Sergeant Bluff, IA 51054

bouman6@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alma Hernandez
1515 Eagle Trace Dr.
Laredo, Tx 78045

alh1515@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Mizener
6016 N. 36th St
McAllen, Tx 78504

davem@utpa.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Winford Paschall
1902 Melbourne Dr.
Pantego, TX 76013

winfordp45@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vivian Ruszel
307 Forest Glen Pompton Plains, NJ 7444

msvivian1@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Lennon
29 Archung Rd
Wayne, NJ 7470

susanlennon@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Allan Galbraith
257 Conway St.
Carlisle, PA 17013

allan@gp-inc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judith Sawitzke
1925 E Greentree Drive
Tempe, AZ 85284

jlsawitzke@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

laura wesolowski
901 Flexer Avenue
Allentown, PA 18103

laura@wichrykeye.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Clyde Myers
6346 Hillsboro-Ludlow Road
Forest, MS 39074

raym@becomminc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Klaus
261 Verona Ave Apt 1F
Newark, NJ 0

tricia.klaus@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Anderson
65 Jersey Street
Marblehead, MA 1945

65jersey@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Martha Paschall
1902 Melbourne Dr.
Pantego, TX 76013

marthapaschall@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Betty Galante
52 Carlisle Rd
Wayne, NJ 7470

bettygalante@optonline.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

karen cosby
8004 county road 466
princeton, tx 75407

karencosb@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robin Parke
665 N. Dunbarton Place
Star, ID 83669

starparkes@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel Spears
19584 Perry Rd.
Pittsburg, Il 62974

Lksdls@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Summers
4572 South Parkhill Ave
Springfield, MO 65810

mike-summers@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dale McKinney
4200 Country Club BLVD.
Sioux City, IA 51104

dalem@mplusarch.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Theresa Sims
9402 Stonmelanding Place
Louisville, ky 40272

gerrysims@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Erin Haley
208 Chateu Lane
Peachtree City, GA 30269

ephaley@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jose Olaya
32 Lake Drive East
Wayne, NJ 7470

jolaya100@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Marsili
1316 Red Oak lane
Rockford, Il 61107

jim.marsili@wirtzbev.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roy Placet
3000 Waverly Ave
Oceanside, NY 11572

royplacet@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Theresa Miller
54 SE 221 Ave
Old Town, fl 32680

theresa@naturecoastinsurance.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

SUSAN FERGUSON
106 BUCKHORN
WAXAHACHIE, TX 75165

sff6420@dcccd.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert C Giargiari
32 Park Avenue
Natick, MA 1760

rgiargiari@investorscapital.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven Hess
745 Brochardt Blvd
Knoxville, TN 37934

shess@emerachem.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol S. Parker
8360 Irvine Rd.
Winchester, KY 40391

parker.m@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Mitchell
2750 Drake
Pittsburgh, Pa 15045

thmitchelljr@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Demyon
332 Route 156
Yardville, NJ 8620

bdemyon@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tim Toker
100 Pamela dr
Gatesville, Tx 76528

timmtoker@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Cox
13 Rivera Drive
West Deptford, NJ 8096

pac521@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Wax
7324 SOUND DR
EMERALD ISLE, NC 28594

mwax@ec.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diana Zabetakis
7909 Clearfield Rd
Frederick, Md 21702

Diana_L_Zabetakis@mcpsmd.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cynthia Perini
19610 Cresap Drive
Hagerstown, MD 21742

cperini@lincolninvestment.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sarah Goslin
25 Samantha Lane
Gilbertsville, PA 19525

sjgoslin@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa Hill
12294 Granada Way
Woodbridge, VA 22192

Lahill4@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

France Smith
732 Maryland Dr
Athens, TX 75751

camillehsmith@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Donaldson
2725 S. Cleveland Street Philadelphia
Philadelphia, PA 19145

jimdona2@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Romano
24 Hilltown Pike Line Lexington, PA 18932

rromano@racingchannel.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Antoinette Donaldson
2725 S. Cleveland Street Philadelphia
Philadelphia, PA 19145

antdona2@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Greene
2778 Douglas DamRd
Sevierville, TN 37876

Tkgreene45@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Helen Picou
412 Huxley Rd
Knoxville, TN 37922

Biker.binky@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frank Di Angelo
2725 S. Cleveland Street Philadelphia
Philadelphia, PA 19145

antdona2@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Armistead
108 W. Washington St
Paulsboro, NJ 8066

karmistead@delsearegional.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judy Brown
603 Coates St
Coatesville, Pa 19320

Judytheville@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anne Vince
4555 Lonsberry Rd
Columbiaville, MI 48421

av3960@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nina Hinrichs
3304 SW PARK LN
BLUE SPRINGS, Mo 64015

nineted@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mildred Carter
224 Gawain Dr.
Richmond, VA 23223

mpc0421@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mildred Carter
224 Gawain Dr.
Richmond, VA 23223

mpc0421@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JOSEPH MANNINO
48 ABBOT ROAD
Smithtown, NY 11787

joseph_mannino@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kerry Ledington
5403 Cranwood Lane
Louisville, Ky 40291

kerrled@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Hulsey
1111 Granger st.
Jennings, La 70546

aehulsey1@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Gerry
93 Crooked Creek Dr
Yoirville, il 60560

jimgerry@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Miller
2434 E Ridgedale Dr.
Eagle, ID 33616

nanclm@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kristy Carlile
2745 Westpointe Dr. 1122
New Braunfels, tx 78132

kristy@ciswealth.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Frumento
114 Peppergrass Drive South
Mount Laurel, NJ 8054

cafrumento@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Boller
410 a Hammerstone Lane PO Box 4874
Frisco, CO 80443

Ronboller@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robin Rodermund
17134 Surrey View Dr.
Chesterfield, MO 63005

Rrodermund@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Klassen
2452 Hazen st
Melbourne, Fl 42904

lklassen77@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Knocke
111 Red Alder Road
Port Matilda, PA 16870

jknocke@pfginc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Harold Fry
36 Bella Terra Ct
Sunrise Beach, Mo 65079

mfryprobe@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Terry Emerson
302 Louise Dr
Collinsville, Il 62234

temerson54@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Doe
1600 K St. NW Suite 300
Washington, DC 20006

matkinson@craftdc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marcel Quiroga
9 Lincoln Park
Marblehead, Ma 1945

marcelq@capformgroup.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Roacker
12 s. Floyd St.
Richmond, VA 23220

roacker.james@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Roacker
12 s. Floyd St.
Richmond, VA 23220

roacker.james@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Maurer
1908 Idlewild Lane
Homewood, IL 60430

skmaurer@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laura Parham
1345 Hillman Rd
Knoxville, TN 37932

LauraGoffParham@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carinne Knight
37501 Riceville Rd
Centerville, PA 16404

knight.carinne@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ted Hinrichs
3304 SW PARK LN
BLUE SPRINGS, Mo 64015

nineted@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William West
18511 Cooper Orbit Rd
Little Rock, AR 72210

westwayne5@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

frank castillo k
624 west jones street livingston, tx 77351

franko2418@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Fortner
6872 N Trailway Cir
Parker, CO 80134

woodymcf@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

sharon Wessman 2321 E. Brookfield Lane
Spokane, Wa 99223

spwphd2000@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Mauldin
5212 Daphne Dr. 5212 Daphne Dr.
Knoxville, TN 37914

nmauldin5212@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia McGinley
1414 S. 2nd Street
Philadelphia, PA 19147

pmcginley@pfthw.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Metcalf
PO BOX 145 274 West Van Alstyne P
VAN ALSTYNE, Tx 75495

sandrametcalf@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Walker Heagney
60 Wildwood Ave
Milford, CT 6460

heagneyw@ceteranetworks.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Katherine Presley
8513 San Marcos Drive 85
Knoxville, TN 37938

accounting@perfectlogo.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sheila Chance-Martinez
305 Mountain Rd
McDonald, TN 37353

smartinez305@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Benjamin Bishop
227 Pebble Creek Drive
Bloomingdale, IL 60108

Benbishop@usa.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mike Presley
8513 San Marcos Drive 8513 San Marcos Drive
Knoxville, TN 37938

mpresley@perfectlogo.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Jones
282 Shawnee Tr.
Aurora, Oh 44202

kjones@ceteraadvisors.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carmmine Capuano
182 Kingston Drive
Ridge, NY 11961

capcar53@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Theresa Magerr
2362 Phlox Court
Jamison, PA 18929

bmagerr@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wiley Davis
4236 s. 76th e. ave. Wiley Davis Electrical Tulsa, OK 74145

wdavis@wileydavis.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

PAUL OSTROFF
8940 KREWSTOWN ROAD UNIT #308
PHILADELPHIA, PA 19115

paulo456@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Wallingford
614 Edgewood drive
Montgomery, Tx 77356

Amywallingford@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Lindsay
2615 Bermuda Dunes
Missouri City, Tx 77459

Jaklind@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Maureen Gizowski
11400 Loveland
Livonia, MI 48150

magoos@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jan Grimes
511 1st AVE NW
Oelwein, IA 50662

spinstergrimes@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Travis Lytle
6110 jakes wake run
corpus christi, tx 78414

twelytle@swbell.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Fletcher
13368 Banbury Ct.
Shelby Twp., MI 48315

fletchbyte@wowway.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jason Kaufman
923 Garden Street Apt. 7
Hoboken, NJ 7030

jkaufman89@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Wallingford
614 Edgewood drive
Montgomery, Tx 77356

Amywallingford@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Blair
5030 Merryview Dr
Portage, MI 49024

jblair@iserv.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Yarnall
217 N Forest Ridge Blvd.
Broken Arrow, OK 74014

mike.yarnall@bdtronic.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Morris
2519 Sublette Ave.
St. Louis, MO 63110

mjberramorris@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Allison
3039 Boulder Place
Davis, CA 95618

richard.allison@securitiesamerica.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

HEATHER JOHNSON
315 N SANGAMON AVE
GIBSON CITY, IL 60936

accountingplustax@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Street
739 Salem Ave
Franklinville, NJ 8322

jws52269@Yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Carpenter
125 Spruce Trail
Woolwich Twp, NJ 8085

karencarpenter77@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alice Bethurem
126 N Bristol Dr
Bloomingdale, IL 60108

abethurem@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Dillon
236 W. Plumstead Ave.
Lansdowne, PA 19050

esdillon@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Newell
1024 stcamore street
Haddon heights, Nj 8035

Bubblesnew@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Rice
1701 7th St.
Anacortes, WA 98221

bompa2@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ruth Burgess
5023 Bridgeport Dr
Safety Harbor, FL 34695

alauxburgess@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Rice
1701 7th St.
Anacortes, WA 98221

bompa2@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christine Kolaites 2611 Barrett Ave.
Richmond, CA 94804

ckolaites@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Cabry
32 Cherokee Rd
Richboro, PA 18954

jemcab@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wendy Davis
1251 NW 96th Pl
Chiefland, FL 32626

wmhhdavis@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sherry Franklin
2031 15th Street
Wyandotte, MI 48192

sdfranklin3@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Armentrout
3733 Lyons La
Alexandria, Va 22302

lnausa@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Adrienne Scott
4203 Hideaway Drive
Tucker, GA 30084

gtzeta@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bill Houston
250 Hilltop Rd. 250 Hilltop Rd.
Roopville, Ga 30170

bhouston72@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bill Houston
250 Hilltop Rd. 250 Hilltop Rd.
Roopville, Ga 30170

bhouston72@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stan Gordon
290 Hereford Farm Rd.
Griffin, Ga 30224

bang321@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael LaBrie
34 Rockaway Ave
Marblehead, Ma 1945

mjlabrie1@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Blann
1527 Lejack Circle
Forest, VA 24551

barb.blann@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sue Miller
13261 Lewis Gallagher Rd
Dover, FL 33527

sue.miller@d1cd.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Eileen Mccord
506 Heritage Ct
Galloway, NJ 8205

qpmq@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Drago
189 Mill Run
North Augusta, SC 29860

pacerbird51@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Helgerson
9138 Highland Center Rd
Ottumwa, IA 52501

dhelgie9138@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tinamarie Hinson
241 Rosebank Dr
Columbia, SC 29209

tinahinson70@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Quinn Mccord
506 Heritage Ct
Galloway, NJ 8205

qmccord@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Harbison
108 Will Wise Ct.
Chapin, SC 29036

bharbison@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John LeGrand
26 Tomahawk Trl
Elgin, SC 290459701

legr1464@joimail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tracy Tone
6590 Taylor Road
Hamburg, NY 14075

kttone14075@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Henry Robinson
2021 Post Oak Ct.
Conyers, Ga 30094

robi3088@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

phil lenfant
300 kanawah run yorktown, VA 0

plenfant@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Poulos
2023 Green Wing Dr.
Granbury, TX 76049

billpoulos@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thuy Nguyen
2099 Royale Court
Eagan, MN 55122

thanhthuy_nguyen_tang@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Drago Sr.
189 Mill Run
North Augusta, SC 29860

tdragsr@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Valorie Hobson
5112B Thornwood Dr
McHenry, Il 60050

val.hobson@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

wayne meucci
11405 se 65th st.
bellevue, wa 98006

waynemeucci@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barry Egan
1824 Piedmont Court
Mascotte, FL 34753

BarryEgan2012@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Terry
24207 Brookwood Drive
Diamond Bar, Ca 91765

Terrytennis@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ANNE MYERS
333 WATERFORD LANE
AVON, IN 46123

alm825@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Duane Burnett
19 Sherman Bridge Road
Wayland, MA 1778

duaneburnett@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Herbert C Sherman
15 Mossy LN
Saylorsburg, PA 18353

Hapydays@ptd.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Hansberry
2726 Ocean Oaks Dr. S.
Fernandina Beach, Fl 32034

wmehmd@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Freehling
15740 Arabian Way
Montverde, FL 34756

dfree12@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kerrie Sneed
2718 Ashton Street
Columbia, SC 29204

knewell@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gina Burke
570 McCords trl
Irving, IL 62081

burke_8704@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ROBERT FORTNER
142 BROOKSPRINGS RD.
COLUMBIA, SC 29223

abfortner@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jack Hambridge
300 Fries Rd Apt # 170
Tonawanda, NY 14150

Helen716@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kiimberly Dunham
1891 Virginia Avenue
Harrisonburg, VA 22802

kdunham_lsa@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Cline
1891 Virginia Avenue
Harrisonburg, VA 22802

scline_lsa@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Henriques
2330 Dewey Lane
Enola, PA 17025

jchenriq@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Baker
25 Crockett Dr
Clyde, Oh 43410

cjbaker@woh.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Schoen
1662 Rampart Road
Addison, IL 60101

sschoen@dupage88.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Nunno II
238 Church St NE
Vienna, VA 22180

jnunno@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Julie Harms
2325 Pro Tour Drive
Belleville, IL 62220

julieharmscc@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Goodridge
1810 Waverly Drive
Floriece, KY 41042

dgoodridge6385@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diana Heuser
302 East Grant Avenue
Dayton, PA 16222

heusdia@lenape.k12.pa.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Austin
2426 Irish Path
Harrisonburg, VA 22802

johnolly2@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

thomas gundermann
2 arrowhead pl
huntington, ny 11743

tomg@gundermann.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ruth Clark
122 Male Ave
Syracuse, Ne 132191708

ruthsclark@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Glenice Vipond
1801 Kari St NE
Alexandria, MN 56308

glenice.vipond@cambridgeresource.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Veronica Baxter
2198 E. Camelback Road Suite 315
Phoenix, AZ 85008

vbaxter@cambridgesecure.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Heinemann
708 Pecan Hill Dr
Saint Charles, mo 63304

nheinemann@hoffmandev.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Maureen Fletcher
13368 Banbury Ct
Shelby Township, MI 48315

maureenfletcher58@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Woolley
4142 Johns Farm Rd. Apt. 451E
Rockford, IL 61101

nancyfwoolley@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lee Burton
14085 Delwood Dr
Elbert, CO 80106

rleebeeme@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Darlene Ward
3378 S. Helena St.
Aurora, C0 80013

ddward7@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sherrie Reilly
957 Wilkinson Ln.
North Aurora, il 60542

Sherriereilly@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Rice
2916 East 24 Street
Minneapolis, MN 55406

jica@bitstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rene Netzer
164 Courtenay Ln
Schaumburg, IL 60193

LarryandRene@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tommie Hamilton
4753 Fellsridge Drive Stone Mountain
Stone Mountain, GA 30083

Tommie.Hamilton@att.Net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Waters
815 Finland St.
Pittsburgh, Pa 15219

janleyh2o@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

DARRELL WILLIAMS, SR
266 ELLIS ROAD
HAVERTOWN, PA 19083

DEWWMS9@GMAIL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joe Boswell
316 Pecan Park Dr
Rosenberg, TX 77471

jboswell3@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Boswell
2700 Avenue N #206
Rosenberg, TX 77471

mlb1933@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nora Shorter
100 SE 27th St.
Oak Island, NC 28465

norabelle2001@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Hawthorne
408 Hawthorne Ave
Haddonfield, nj 8033

jessily@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Chris Altman
32 S Hampton Dr.
Charleston, SC 29407

chrisa76@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Adeline Candella
4782 Lower River Road
Lewiston, NY 14092

ajc3444@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stuart Sorenson
454 Jolina Way
Encinitas, CA 92024

slsorenson@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anthony Campbell
502 West Deer Park Road
Gaithersburg, m 20877

Anthonycampbell21@live.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mike Cabral
28 lincoln ave bourne, ma 2532

mecfreedom@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Kratt
9803 Somerford Road
Louisville, KY 40242

linda.kratt@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diane Ancona
126 N. Ashland
Palatine, Il 60074

Dianeancona@sd54.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bernadine Habursky
5218 east lake road
Erie, Pa 16511

Beajon410@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elizabeth Westlund
2650 N. Lakeview #1506
Chicago, IL 60614

lynchea@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Wegienek
22524 W 61st Street
Shawnee, KS 66226

kmwphoto@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jon Ulbrich
3211 Boulder Creek Pl
Penryn, CA 95663

teancum76@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janice Pyle
5780 Dug Hollow Road
Pinson, AL 35136

jspyle@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Billy Kostenko
109 Truman Drive
Brick, NJ 8724

billykostenko@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jacques Dean
4465 Weyers Lane SW
Port Orchard, Wa 98367

Deanspond@wavecable.con

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dennis Jones
435 Maple Point Drive
Langhorne, PA 19047

dpjones07@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sabrina Fabian
10617 Weybridge Drive
Tampa, Fl 33626

sabrinaiveyfabian@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Colvin
17593 230TH ST
HAWKEYE, IA 52147

sbcolvin@netins.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Thomas
1103 Mine Rd
Lebanon, PA 17042

sthomas@memoco.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Davis
203 Whispering Pine Dr.
Haughton, LA 71037

Glimermere@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William M. Webb
11209 Windsong ct
Clermont, Fl 34715

billwe@digital.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rita DiRocco
566 Carmel Mesa Dr
Henderson, nv 89012

invegas10@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William M. Webb
11209 Windsong ct
Clermont, Fl 34715

billwe@digital.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Greenlee
461 Sheldon Place
Clermont, FL 347112565

jgreenleejr@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

W. Mark Benton
3723 Lakeland Way
Elk Grove, Ca 95758

markbenton@frontiernet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robin Masterson
3 Quaker Lane
Swansea, MA 2777

rlmasterson@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Herdman
7525 S. Hampton Rd.
Lincoln, NE 68506

jherdman@binary.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Helen Huston
223 Glenview Place
Orange, CA 92868

hbhuston@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Helen Huston
223 Glenview Place
Orange, CA 92868

hbhuston@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Herdman
7525 S. Hampton Rd.
Lincoln, NE 68506

nancyh@bytz.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nicholas C Campos
12341 Sherwood Forest Dr
Mount Airy, MD 21771

nccampos@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William N. Bushby
3450 Mt. Rd. m28
Hamburg, PA 19526

bbushby@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bert Bathiany IV
21 Paterson Place
Fort Thomas, Ky 41075

Bbathiany@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen KUIPERS
5156 POTTER RD
DEMING, WA 98244

melkay2@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wesley Klatt
1220 LaGrange Ave.
Tomah, Wi 54660

wklatt@usemco.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daphne Brown
447 19th St
Springfield, OR 97477

deeserena@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stacie Crow
3301 brownlow ave
St. Louis park, mn 55426

Stacielynnecrow@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharen Perry
1327 W 200 S
Ogden, UT 84404

bobshar@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ken sawitzke
3932 w goodman drive
GLENDALE, AZ 85308

kensaw@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diana Gerke
15100 Headqaurters Rd
Tomah, WI 54660

gerked@firstweber.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Driscoll
305 Collins Street
Church Hill, TN 37642

jkdriscoll@Charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marlene Craden
179 Stoneleigh
Buffalo, NY 14223

mcraden@kaleidahealth.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Koma
9849 Faust Drive
Vienna, VA 22182

briandkoma@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Tschirhart
11081 Cassiano Rd
San antonio, Tx 78223

anntschirhart@ymail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Reuschle
208 Meadow Oak Court
Greer, Sc 29650

Reuschle@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Rukavina
7s030 Quincy CT.
Willowbrook, IL 60527

akajr2@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Phil Sprague
318 Brea Canyon Rd
City of Industry, Ca 91789

Kookacc@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Brunt
919 White Point Drive
Huntersville, NC 28078

mike2264@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eileen Chittick
10500 via Balestri
Miromar Lakes, FL 33913

eac11@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Harrison Solliday
908 16th Street 908 16th Stret
West Des Moines, Io 0

hjs3@peoplepc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrew King
2986 Bryn Wood Dr
Fithchburg, WI 53711

andykingcfp@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Hogan
4005 Hogans Mill Lane
Loganville, GA 30052

sharon.hogan@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gene Miller
104456 So, Ridgewood
Meeker, OK 74855

cgene2013@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Taylor Wald
210 3rd St W Apt 6309
Bradenton, Fl 34205

taylorwald3@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rosemary Gardner
6532 16th Ave S #313
Richfield, MN 55423

rgardner6532@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lindsey Hogan
4005 Hogans Mill Lane
Loganville, GA 30052

lnhogan@lagrange.student.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles McInnis
8608 SW 79th Place
Miami, FL 33143

chmimc@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary McInnis
8608 SW 79th Place
Miami, FL 33143

chmimc@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tracy Arcisz
7852 Oakview Lane
Woodridge, IL 60517

tracyarcisz@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jean Bryan
7970 W Baker Ave
Lakewood, CO 80227

jeanbry@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Swift
8 Raven Rd
Augusta, ME 4330

cswift14482@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bart Grant
1302 Northfield Dr.
Sikeston, MO 63801

bart.grant@lpl.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Harold Myrick
115 Terrace Drive
Sikeston, MO 63801

harold.myrick@lpl.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Armin Tan
3443 Sarah St
Franklin Park, IL 60131

atanwfg@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rhonda B Johnson
1311 W 7th Street
Roswell, NM 88201

rjohnson@wesst.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amber Harper
639 E. 522nd Road
East Prairie, MO 63845

aharp77@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Roacker
12 s. Floyd St.
Richmond, VA 23220

roacker.james@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Peterson
5116 Beacon Hill
Mc Henry, il 60051

wjpdkp@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Braun
25660 E Kettle Pl
Aurora, CO 80016

okiesue@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Betty Walker
2680 Flower Fields Way
Carlsbad, Ca 92010

Wesandbj@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Boyer
6023 Wagon Mount Ct
St. Louis, MO 63129

boyerrs@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Roacker
12 s. robinson St.
Richmond, VA 23220

roacker.james@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debra Peterson
5116 Beacon Hill
Mc Henry, il 60051

wjpdkp@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Leslie Jourdain
303 Merrell st.
Collinsville, Il 62234

barney137@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ERIC HAHN
4121 W SPEEDWAY
TUCSON, Ar 85745

WOLF349BG@GMAIL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gordon Grimes
1694 rivergate trail
jacksonville, fl 32223

geg1969@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jim Spain
23 Bennington ct
Maryland heights, mo 63043

jaspain@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laurie Ferreira
904 Capistrano Dr
Salinas, CA 93901

laurie.f@valleyfabrication.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Roacker
12 s. Floyd St.
Richmond, VA 23220

roacker.james@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Leath
331 White Pine Drive
Saint Charles, Mo 63304

c.leath@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rickey Jones
1263 Huntington Drive #B
South Pasadena, CA 91030

r_jonesma@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cindy Chandik
42 Ritz Cove Dr
Dana Point, Ca 92629

Chandik@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anita Pisani
6 Moran Ct
Binghamton, NY 13903

Anita13850@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sarah Kearns
1512 N Patton Ave
Arlington Heights, IL 60004

skearns23@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Johnson
1895 portage Way
Elgin, Il 60123

John.johnson1895@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anna Chin
11 Ross Road
Alameda, Ca 94502

acchin11@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Glenn Walters
1956 Cornell Dr
New Lenox, Il 60451

gwalters12@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Johnson
1895 Portage Way
Elgin, Il 60123

John.johnson1895@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tyrone Simmons
1919 Hyde Park Drive
Detroit, Mi 48207

tmorse_simmons1@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Rodgers
1849 rad or rd
York, Pa 17402

Chinacats@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

william wilson
2201 Marblewood Drive
Plano, TX 75093

billscrap2201@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Romejko
1133 Bradford Lane
Schaumburg, Il 60193

percampi@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jill Fuhrman
28028 Bluebird Ave
Volga, Io 52077

jilfurmn@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Fleming
15120 Chestnut Ln
Oak Forest, IL 60452

kathyflmng@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mardi Schleinkofer
1903 Woodland Drive
Yardley,, PA 19067

mardischleinkofer@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mardi Schleinkofer
1903 Woodland Drive
Yardley,, PA 19067

mardischleinkofer@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Arthur Kasper
140 Rosedale Drive
Manchester, Pa 17345

akasper140@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerry Stauss
4710 Lowe Rd.
Louisville, Ky 40220

stauss@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marcia Mann
9N318 Muirhead Rd
Elgin,, Il 60124

dmmann@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kim Knight
1505 Easton Dr
Clarksville, Ar 72830

kim@knightinvestments.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dale Meyer
215 Sagewood Ln
Russellville, Ar 72802

dalemeyer_@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lawayne Holloway
3544 CR 3390
Clarksville, AR 72830

johnsoncountyfarmers@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alivia Jelinski
2829 W Maplewood Ave 101
Bellingham, WA 98225

alivia.jelinski@hilton.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rick Espolt
900 Rachel Rd
Russellville, Ar 72802

respolt@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rick Espolt
900 Rachel Rd
Russellville, Ar 72802

respolt@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rick Espolt
900 Rachel Rd
Russellville, Ar 72802

respolt@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rick Espolt
900 Rachel Rd
Russellville, Ar 72802

respolt@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ROBEY REESE
3252 LINKER MT ROAD 3252 LINKER MT ROAD
DOVER, AR 72837

ROBEYR@YAHOO.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

jim martin 3264 tyler rd
christiansburg, VA 24073

jim.martin1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Frala
310 Briarwood Court
Russellville, Ar 72801

Fralas@suddenlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

carol truslow
333 laurel springs rd
columbia, sc 29206

carol.truslow@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Aaron South
121 Cain Ave
Russellville, AR 72802

ajcbsouth@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tommy Thompson
12763 santa ana pl
Chino, Ca 91710

tomthompson1948@g-mail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Virginia Guarella
7713 11 Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11228

gijja@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nick Guarella
7713 11 Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11228

NJGuarella@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lewis Caton
1129 Lake Parke Drive
Jacksonville, Fl 32259

Willow54@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Raymond Rogers
4600 SE 84th St
Oklahoma City, OK 73135

rayinnva9@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynn Barbeau
555 Winnebago Sbr.
Portage, WI 53901

lfb27@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Adam Huss
6315 Lyndale Ave S Apt 5
Richfield, MN 55423

Adamhuss13@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janett Thomas
1707 Park Avenue
Fernandina Beach, FL 32034

36142L@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Braun
S35W27750 Country Club Ct.
Waukesha, WI 53189

karenabraun@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Larkin
6973 W. Firebird Dr.
Glendale, AZ 85308

larkinds@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Flecker
6 Brookwood Dr
West Caldwell, NJ 7006

dflecker@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brenda Bogard
3034 Cherry Springs Rd
McMinnville, Tn 37110

bogard@dtccom.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nicholas Ladomirak
1108 Beaver St.
Bristol, PA 0

Nickquiet1@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Caroline Moen
2435 N Brookfield Rd
Brookfield, WI 53045

caroline890@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George Firrantello
660 Homestead Dr
Elverson, PA 19520

Gtfirrantello@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Binkowski
22711 Goldstone Dr.
Katy, TX 77450

binkowski@consolidated.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert F. Bogard
3034 Cherry Springs Rd
McMinnville, Tn 37110

bogard@dtccom.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

NANCY SMETANIUK
8233 COLE RD.
COLDEN, NY 14033

geonan1975@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

GEORGE SMETANIUK
8233 COLE RD.
COLDEN, NY 14033

geonan1975@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Cline
1708 Clover Cir.
Melbourne, Fl 32935

rcline14@cfl.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Krasnansky
10297 Wilde Lake Terrace
Columbia, MD 21044

Mkrasnansky@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Loretta Villarreal
1329 W. 18th Place
Yuma, az 85364

lvillarr12@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rhonda Jackson
3671 Mt. Garfield Rd.
Fruitport, MI 49415

Rhonda.jackson@orchardview.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

becky bourgeois
818 Opelousas Ave
New Orleans, LA 70114

mmkitty7@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Kearns
297 Snows Corner Rd.
Orrington, ME 4474

jackkearns@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judith Gorecki
13767 Bear Valley Rd
Moorpark, CA 93021

scpgorecki@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Motter
31 s John st
Hummelstown, Pa 17036

Motterbarb@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Garcia
2457 Coachman Rd
Mariposa, CA 95338

patgarcia444@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Hruby
25 Ashley Court
Crete, Il 60417

Cheryl.hruby@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

jay majer
595 carters grove road
charleston, sc 29414

jmmajer@inbox.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christine Rans
769 Lewis Drive
Hesston, KA 67062

monter@embarqmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judith Zandstra
5981 Leisure South Dr SE
Kentwood, Mi 49548

judyzandstra@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephanie Kaleta
805 village rd
Crystal lake, Il 60014

Skaleta@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Fountain
6335 Tamarack Trail
Cumming, GA 30040

dlfount@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Corinne Ahlberg
150 BAY STREET APT PH 12
JERSEY CITY, NJ 7302

corinne.ahlberg@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Doug Gow
2650 Spring Rock Way Ne
Roswell, GA 30075

douggow@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Moseley
2147 Valley View Dr
Clarkston, WA 0

agmsongbird69@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tara Curtis-Schwab
14277 Keyesport Landing
Fishers, IN 46040

tlc.schwab@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mireya Ledesma
45 Amber ct. Unit Z2
Schaumburg, IL 60193

Mire218@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Peninger
1213 Rosemarie Ave.
Evansville, In 47715

karensu76@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Peninger
1213 Rosemarie Ave.
Evansville, In 47715

karensu76@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Bowey
39969 County Road Kk.5
Otis, Co 80743

Myjason1@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rosemary Mooney
401 second Street
Collins, Ms 39428

Rmooney@wellspringms.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gwraldine Huff
1186 Periwinkle Dr.
Florence, KY 41042

geraldine@huffs.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Miller-Schmidt
1702 Ridge Cliff Dr
Monteagle, TN 37356

Jrms2777@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

anthony a. nataluk 567 allen ave portland, me 4103

mgtf1954@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Benny Rawls
3007 woodland view dr.
Kingwood, TX 77345

brawls@hirsigfrazier.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Haeuser
47167 Hwy 445 P.O. Box 730
Robert, LA 70455

bhaeuser@haeuserinsurance.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alice Hansberry
2726 Ocean Oaks Dr. S.
Fernandina Beach, Fl 32034

wmehmd@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Freehling
15740 Arabian Way
Montverde, FL 34756

pfreehling@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Leigh Fleener
6127 Seminole Gardens Circle
Palm Beach Gardens, FL 33418

leighbranson@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jason Burke
570 McCords trl
Irving, IL 62081

burke_8704@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

judy wilson
208 kaymar dr amherst, NY 14228

wilsonjudy0@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Lohmann
2613 Wyndsong Court
Crystal Lake, IL 60012

blohmann@lohmann.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elizabeth Altenbaugh
975 Seminole Street
Clermont, FL 34711

bjbaugh975@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Holmes
6618 Candle Ridge Cv
Austin, Tx 78731

tholmes2222@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Yancy Doolittle
160 Sylvan St
Chapin, SC 29036

raydoolittle@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tsutomu Matsumoto
1 Keahole Place 1002
Honolulu, HI 96825

ben3aloha@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kelly Felske
23 Bristol Ct
Stafford, VA 22556

kellyfelske@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia L Carlson
10221 NE Brazee St
Portland, OR 97220

car10221@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Albert Cabbad
105 5th ave.
brooklyn, NY 11217

acabbad@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Gatley
1698 Goshen Ave.
Clovis, CA 93611

jagatley@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lillian Paxton
6802 Farnaby Ct.
Spring, tx 77379

lillianepaxton@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tommy Thompson
12763 santa ana pl
Chino, Ca 91710

tomthompson1948@g-mail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judith Zandstra
5981 Leisure South Dr SE
Kentwood, Mi 49548

judyzandstra@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janelle Stall
910 S Rogers
Clarksville, AR 72830

janellestall@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frankie Barber
124 Cedarwood Drive
Lamar, AR 72846

frankie.barber46@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Dicken
76 Sequoya Drive
Dover, AR 72837

tomdicken101@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rick Elliott
1902 South Hartford Ave.
Russellville, Ar 72802

rb.elliott@suddenlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Gray
10072 Oaklawn Drive
Dardanelle, ar 72834

ggray@centurytel.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Jobe
662 Hilltop St.
Baird, TX 79504

Rad6850@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia James
7318 Brays Landing Dr
El Paso, TX 0

tjsjewelry@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Wardlaw
212 Preston Drive
Russellville, AR 72802

gary.wardlaw@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Test test
2400 w broad st
Richmond, va 23220

test@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Test test
2400 w broad st
Richmond, va 23220

test@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Test test
2400 w broad st
Richmond, va 23220

test@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeffrey Rudder
1 Saddler Bend Dr
Casa, Ar 72025

Bodinerudder@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Howard Filston
3478 Navigator Pointe
Knoxville, TN 37922

hcfilstonmd62@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shelbia Morrow
115 Works Rd.
Russellville, AR 72802

sjjwillis@centurytel.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Craig Bozeman
947 Finley Street
Griffin, GA 30224

bandbtire@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

judy wilson
208 kaymar dr
amherst, NY 14228

wilsonjudy0@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karla Erkkila
838 Redway
Houston, Tx 77062

Kerkkila@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sue Ware-Clarke
619 Sun Court
Friendswood, TX 77546

wareclarke@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Cohen
15 Colonial Drive
McKeesport, PA 15135

racohen@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joan Harms
195 South Huxley Drive
Cheektowaga, NY 14225

hrmsflor@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Norman Plezia
347 Chairfactory Rd.
Elma, NY 14059

nplezia@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Darlene Bozeman
947 Finley Street
Griffin, GA 30224

bandbtire@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

judy wilson
208 kaymar dr
amherst, NY 14228

wilsonjudy0@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Jelinek
105 Charles Towne Place
Aiken, SC 29803

edj41@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tiffanie Ezell
1431 Gingerwood Lane
Tuscaloosa, AL 35405

Tiffezell@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Bottlinger
5124 Pleasant Valley Rd Lot#161
Bliss, NY 14024

1835jbottlinger@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jane Bottlinger
5124 Pleasant Valley Rd Lot#161
Bliss, NY 14024

1835jbottlinger@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

judy wilson
208 kaymar dr
amherst, NY 14228

wilsonjudy0@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Martha Brophy
541495 Lem Turner Rd
Callahan, Fl 32011

valbrophy@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Ceolin
14 Eastview Drive
Simsbury, CT 6070

Robertceolin046@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Patterson
171 North Main Street
BOONTON, NJ 7005

susiepatterson6@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tom Bailey
213 Galena
Hailey, ID 83333

jbailey@blaineschools.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Catharine Weed
3256 Lakewood Dr.
Cape Girardeau, MO 63701

lweed@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas Stech
411 The Esplanade
Maywood, NJ 7607

doug10467@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Monica Bonin
10468 Buxton Rd
Saint Amant, Lo 0

monicabonin@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Freeman
5062 Lilly Rd.
Hazlehurst, MS 39083

suefreeman5254@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Eisner
145 pine tree rd
Bloomingdale, NJ 7403

Jimeisner@gmal.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bryon K Rinke
1729 East 11th Avenue
Winfield, KS 67156

brinke@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rich Browner
129 Delaware Ave
Waterbury, ct 6708

richbrowner@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Vincent
3704 Randy Lane
Danville, Il 61832

vincent.joe@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Forszt
140 Hepburn Road Apt. 17F
Clifton, NJ 7012

Edcedargrove@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Suzette Govoni
2000Northfield Dr.
Louisville, KY 40222

smg1946@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eileen Peters
761 Crestview Blvd
Collegeville, PA 19426

ppeters16@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Muriel Worden
19542 Weavers Circle
Cornelius, NC 28031

mworden@mi-connection.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gaye Mallet
77 Bedell Road
Poughkeepsie, NY 12603

gem@adamsfarms.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Peters
761 Crestview Blvd
Collegeville, PA 19426

ppeters16@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gayle Ross
2611 High St
Logansport, IN 46947

gayleross77@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerrold Ellis
27 North Main St
Berkley, MA 2779

jerryellis@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Strine
291 Pine Street
Hummelstown, PA 17036

ljos@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michelle Bomgardner
1655 Church Road
Hershey, PA 17033

michellebom@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

john Naeher
1078 county street 2870
Tuttle, Ok 73089

sjnaeher2@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marion Gieseke
5524 E. Lake Rd.
Conesus, NY 14435

mgieseke@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael McCoy
8502 Scism Rd
Nampa, ID 83686

mjmccoy@heritagewifi.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

wes schroeder
1953 w foster ave
chicago, il 60640

wesschroeder@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary McFarland
33 Bonticouview Drive
New Paltz, NY 12561

mtbmcfarland@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Davis
118 Abiso Ave
San Antonio, TX 78209

bdavis18@swbell.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Landsittel
804 Rim Rock Rd
Bailey, co 80421

plandsittel@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patti Waguespack
542 W. Lawson 542 W. Lawson
Destrehan, La 70047

patti.waguespack@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sim VanHouwe
4 Oriole Road
Oak Ridge, NJ 74389133

vanhouwe@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Norman 209 Old Norton Road
Fayetteville, GA 30215

markkn209@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Walter Bohles
4334 NW Oak Grove Drive
Albany, OR 97321

wbohles@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Ritchie Jr.
5053 Mill Creek Road
Russellville, Ar 72802

dritchie55@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Gulick
2000 Bradley Lane
Russellville, AR 72801

lcgulick@suddenlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

C Nolan Edwards
11 Melinda cove
Russellville, Ar 72802

c.nolan.edwards@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

C Nolan Edwards
11 Melinda cove
Russellville, Ar 72802

c.nolan.edwards@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerry Newman
211 S. Quanah
Russellville, Ar 72801

jerryvickie@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Enid Albat
189 CR 3010
Altus, AR 72821

enidstrange@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lee Schwartz 133 Richland Circle
Russellville, AR 72802

lschwar@suddenlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JOHN OGRODNICK
37034 ALDGATE CT
FARMINGTON HILLS, MI 48335

JOGRODNICK@JPTURNER.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jorge Martinez
3451 Benson Park Blvd
Orlando, FL 32829

jmartineztorres1976@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dennis Whiteside
425 Hemlock Ave.
Springfield, Mo 65802

streamguide@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

janice mccarter
4781 n. 850th st
robinson, il 62454

bjachotmail.comres@

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Grillo
205 Lee st
Carrollton, GA 30117

john@grilloaa.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Russell
1755 Millbury Way
Sandy, UT 84092

russelltribe@netzero.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Womack
102 Spicewood Rd
Weaverville, NC 28787

Jay@avlfinancial.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Vaughan
2 Red Oak Ct.
Russellville, AR 0

jvaugha1957@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa Davison
12641 West State Hwy. 155
Dardanelle, Ar 72834

ldaviso@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Allen Freeman
130 Red Oak Ave.
Albany, Ga 31721

gfreeman@lraconstructors.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Abbatacola
1233 ostrander
Lagrange Park, IL 60526

abbatacola@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ryan Wilson
545 E 1100 N
Roanoke, IN 46783

rwilson@tfamail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Rogers
1299 Herman Simmons Rd
Doerun, GA 31744

rogersgmother@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Bartosz
3224 Wisconsin Avenue
Berwyn, IL 60402

rbartosz@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbra Revels
11456 Elane Dr
Jacksonville, Fl 32218

revelsrv5286@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Lafond
212 Laurel St.
Batavia, IL 60510

william_lafond@financialgrp.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Norman Holle
109 Hunts Chapel Rd.
Eatonton, Ga 31024

normanholle@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Barry
1510 Washington Street
Walpole, MA 2081

johnbarry.bfa@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elizabeth Baldwin
172 Azalea Point Dr S
Ponte Vedra Beach, FL 32082

baldw83@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sue Thompson
3318 Stonepile Rd.
Clarkesville, GA 30523

suester@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Lafond
PO Box 77 N6322 Lakeshore Dr.
Wakefield, MI 49968

william_lafond@financialgrp.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Rogers
1299 Herman Simmons Rd
Doerun, GA 31744

rogersgmother@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vickie Dearment
13547 Picasa Drive
Jacksonville, FL 32225

Vdearm@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diane Dopheide
595 Dorris Road
Milton, GA 30004

jdopheide@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Reim
5709 Brewster Lane
Erie, PA 16505

jreim@investmentctr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ted Dodge
3466 Fir Tree Dr SE
Salem, Or 97317

dodge5554@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Acheson
16 Valley View Drive
Weatogue, CT 6089

jen@checksandbalancesct.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Glaser
400 High Street
Walworth, Wi 53184

gl_fontana@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Victor Kee
131 Bourne circle
Hamburg, NJ 7419

vmk453@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andre VanHouwe
4 Oriole Road
Oak Ridge, NJ 74389133

vanhouwe@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rosemary Donohue
6805 S Hillcrest Dr.
Castile, NY 14427

rodonohue@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gerald Shore
850 E. Lincoln St.
Hoopeston, IL 60942

gshore@advancenet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Asbury
245 County Road 627
Milford, NJ 8848

Retreadrev@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Glaser
400 High Street
Walworth, Wi 53184

gl_fontana@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Schultheis
6 Marcella Blvd
Hopewell Junction, NY 12533

schulcl@optonline.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Franklin Culp
1525 Grant Street
logansport, in 46947

fkculp@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Pilar Farinas
541 Ray Ave.
Ridgefield, Ne 7657

sapeira@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Mura-Catona
9 Roxbury Dr
Kenvil, NJ 7847

Dmuracat@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Wheelwright
620 West Main St.
Rockaway, NJ 7866

rickwheelw@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Chatagnier
114 EXETER RUN
HOUMA, LA 703607932

chatagnier@triparish.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kara Mason
42 W 39th St Fl 6
New York, Ne 0

kara@ottony.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barry Cason
200 Fowler Drive
Leesburg, GA 31763

casonbj@mchsi.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Chris Salsman
1081 New Burton Rd
Dover, DE 19904

chris@energywon.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Park
3731 A Mattison Ave
Fort Worth, TX 76107

cheryl.trainu@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brenda Holston
1297 Summit View Court
New Cumberland, PA 17070

b_holston@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bety Best
100 Howard Rd.
Sewickley, PA 15143

bestfam@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Hlava
411 Ruffian Trail
Corbin, KY 40701

donna.hlava@corbinutilities.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Johnston
5200 Keller Springs Rd. Suite 1522
Dallas, TX 75248

wjjohnston@firstcommand.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Wagner
1224 Idaho Ave
Erie, PA 16505

wagswaste@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ken Muraoka
4047 Jordan Lake Drive
Marietta, GA 30062

kenji71@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jayne Kettner
9825 US Highway 199 #81
Gasquet, CA 95543

jayne@jaynekettner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Baldwin
172 Azalea Point Dr S
Ponte Vedra Beach, FL 32082

baldwch@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Darrel Chaney
10 Fawn Circle
Sautee Nacoochee, GA 30571

darrelchaney@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kim Troke
6625 woodland Blvd
Minnesota City, Al 55959

airman@hbci.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shirley Keachie
14 Suffolk Dr
St. Charles, MO 63301

skeachie@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christine Moseley
7544 Cornell Ave
St Louis, MO 63130

moseley0@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christopher Boyd
742 Natchez Circle
Mt Pleasant, SC 29464

cbrentboyd@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diane Johnson
2405 Archer Blvd
Orlando, FL 0

djcollegebound@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bill Camp
179 Timberline Drive
Franklin, Tn 37069

bill.camp@belmont.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Henry KEACHIE
14 SUFFOLK dR
St. Charles, MO 63301

bkeachie@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeffrey Goldman
12812 Weatherfield
Saint Louis, MO 63146

jgoldr@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Pavelik
14 Franklin Dr.
Elizabethtown, Pa 17022

rpavelik@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marilyn Bower
1480 Great Gully Road
Union Springs, NY 13160

mfbower59@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rickey Jones
1263 Huntington Drive #B
South Pasadena, CA 91030

r_jonesma@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cecelia Fischer
POB 33
Marengo, IL 60152

Cecelia57@reagan.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Chandik
42 Ritz Cove Dr
Dana Point, Ca 92629

Mark@fdpwm.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Moseley
7544 Cornell Ave
University City, MO 63130

moseley0@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Timothy Hampton
1725 Calle Platico
Oceanside, CA 92056

thampton@stanpac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gianna Wilkins
27 Merrow Road
Lynnfield, MA 1940

glw613@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Cull
42259 Fountain Park N Apt 132
Novi, Mi 48375

Statepare@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mitzi O
2722 Viewmont Ave
Springfield, Or 97477

seadancing2@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Irene Magdal
1527 Millpond Ct
Chaska, MN 55318

rmagdal@centurylink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Roethke
360 central ave
Woodbury heights, Nj 8097

Ctr424@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Stiebel
2103 Fountainview Circle
St. Charles, Mo 63376

budf4chas@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John McEvoy
695 Hurricane Creek Circle
Anna, TX 75409

hfmcevoy@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

beverly gentner
26 sarahs grove lane 26 sarahs grove lane
schaumburg, il 60193

beverly.gentner@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Chaney
1413 Washingtons Crossing Ofallon, MO 63366

johnchaney1955@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lydia Martha
32 Selden Avenue
Akron, OH 44301

lydia.martha@valmarksecurities.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Kersting
11910 Old St Charles Rd
Bridgeton, MO 63044

Jkerstng@swbell.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Allen
421 York Ave
Lansdale, PA 19446

jwallen34@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Philip Gallagher
2500 Ferry Rd
Bellbrook, oh 45305

phil@gallagher-pool.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Theresa Garcia
211 Apollo #1
Hercules, CA 94547

Teribear.garcia@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas Wilburn
1997 Stockbridge Road
Akron, OH 44313

dfwilburn@prodigy.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Padella
153 Elm St. None
Old Monroe, MO 63369

mcpadella@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alvin Carlsen
2128 Davis Ct
Rolling Meadows, Il 60008

avalonal@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Betty Fleming
22340 Berry Drive
Salinas, CA 93908

riley_fleming@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Beth Coutts
8755 Crockett St.
La Mesa, CA 91942

bethc8@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

chris maryanopolis
100 pier 4 blvd apt 1818 boston, ma 2111

chris_m621@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marla K. Chapman
3940 LaPlata Hwy
Farmington, NM 87401

mchapman@sjrmc.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Miller
18720 Cassandra Pointe Lane
Boca Raton, FL 33496

rob@tmfg.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Olexa
1051 Perimeter Drive, Suite 1125
Schaumburg, IL 60173

anna.jarusan@teamefg.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jordan Howd
115 Guise Park Drive
Munroe Falls, Oh 44262

jordan@appliedfin.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Reep
3110 Commercial Ave. #102
Anacortes, wa 98221

dreep@rwbaird.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

NANCY SKIDMORE
1608 CAMBRIAN DRIVEW
SALINAS, CA 93906

nanskidmore@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Pamala King
P.O. Box 808 5703 Sleepy Hollow
Texarkana, TX 75504

pamalak@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Benjamin Wada
15621 New Hampton St
Hacienda Heights, ca 91745

bwada@householdergroup.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Conrad Slate
2775 Old Club Rd
Loudon, tN 37774

cslate0317@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Serena Low
6 Cedar Lane
Gloucester, MA 1930

serena@beauportfinancial.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ruth Bragstad
1425 Arden Oaks Dr.
Arden Hills, MN 55112

freese_ruth@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joe Best 5655 Yeager Rd.
Douglasville, GA 30135

joembest37@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Cutshall
1309 W. Wicklow Ct
Sioux Falls, SD 57108

david@midconetwork.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tammy Thomas
1140 S. Ahrens Ave.
Lombard, IL 60148

peanut1140@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marsha Best
1134 Portola Meadows Road #126
Livermore, CA 94551

marshabest25@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Keith Bentley
4609 Rosewood Lane N
Plymouth, MN 55442

2ksbbh@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Mulholland
11815 Wayland St
Oakton, VA 22124

william.mulholland@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WILLIAM BILL NYBY
100 W. Laurel Ave.
Plentywood, MT 59254

bnyby@co.sheridan.mt.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

terry strandell
801 maple crest lane watertown, wi 53094

tstran17_88@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Hilbert Bludau
1745 Levi Sloan Rd.
Victoria, Tx 77904

hbludau@suddenlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Burge
28803 Garnet Cyn. Dr.
Santa Clarita, CA 91390

cherylbmusic@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anna Wood
123 East Green Valley Circle
Newark, DE 19711

orion101068@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ernest Russell Greer
12448 Somersworth Drive
Knoxville, TN 37934

ergreer@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Hardin
2620 Steeplechase Ln Florissant, MO 63033

donna.hardin@biomerieux.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tara Vaezi
1324 28th St S Apt 8
Arlington, VA 0

vaezitj@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Walter Nowak
620 Oak Path Drive
Ballwin, MO 63011

wnowak@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Ekstrum
80 Colby St.
Buffalo, NY 14206

bufloman57@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ethel Loredo
44465 Chamberlain Ter. Unit 306
Ashburn, VA 20147

eddi.loredo@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elaine sodl
3954 W. Washington St
Allentown, pa 18104

sodl105@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Clara Smith
2021 33rd St NW
Rochester, MM 55901

pupsfour@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bob Gleason
17 Foxworth Lane
Kingston, MA 2364

rgleason49@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Hooker
386 Bedford Way
Prosperity, SC 29127

gh00ker@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Koshlap
519 59th Ave
St Pete Beach, Fl 33706

Rkoshlap@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kimberly Bucher
2510 Sumter St.
Columbia, So 29201

KBNELSON@EMAIL.SC.EDU

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Brown
34 Hawthorne Court
North Kingstown, RI 2852

bobandsandra2@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Brown
34 Hawthorne Court
North Kingstown, RI 2852

bobandsandra2@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Smith
138 Rocks Pond Road
Eutawville, SC 29048

gatorysue@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Smith
138 Rocks Pond Road
Eutawville, SC 29048

chieffirefour@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Munier
20H Quincy Lane
West Milford, NJ 7480

Pattimunier@optonline.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Walter Knowles
3846 Guiness Way
Gainesville, Ga 30507

wsknobby@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Aquilina
677 Kaymar Dr.
Amherst, NY 14228

aquilinagary@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrew Doan
500 Lyndon Lane
Louisville, KY 40222

atdoan00@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Delrece Fulwood
605 new state rd
Cayce, Sc 29033

Dfulwood@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Bradford
2 Timberview Estates Drive
Ottumwa, IA 52501

dbcards77@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Melissa Toto
1501 Reagan Court
Jeffersonville, PA 19403

missytoto@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Wood
322 Spring Street Spring Street Manchester, CT 6040

dwgfgroup@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Campbell
1501 Woodside Hills Dr
St. Peters, MO 63376

rjc1501@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Claudia Garcia Durkin
21800 WINGFOOT CT
BROADLANDS, VA 20148

claudia.garciadurkin@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

gloria miller
7250 hearthstone ave boynton beach, fl 33472

taatee@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

charles ashby 13411 chipman glen dr
houston, tx 77082

chazashby1@netscape.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Heath Northcutt
2112 Bluestem Drive
Burlington, KY 41005

heathnorthcutt@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lois Bruckno
818 Harrison ave
Glenside, Pa 19038

Lbruckno@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Clower
7 Kettle Pond Way
Medfield, MA 2052

bob@clowerwealthmgmt.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lois Bruckno
818 Harrison ave
Glenside, Pa 19038

Lbruckno@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gabriel Valenzuela
235 walker Street apt34
Lenox, Ma 1240

gavltd@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jill Albertsen
51 BURNING BUSH TRL
CRYSTAL LAKE, Il 60012

jdalbertsen@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brandon Cappel
7669 State Route 56 West Rising Sun, In 47040

bcappel@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Randy Kent
6367 Shagbark
Troy, mi 48098

randykent@ameritech.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Teresa Brenner
4319 Davis Street
Matteson, IL 60443

teri.brenner@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jesse Zeigler
2724 Warren Drive
Saint Paul, VA 24283

JLZ55@AOL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel VanSkiver
5690 Highbury Drive
Ada, MI 49301

dan@strategiesteam.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John THOMAS
3605 TALL TIMBER DR
BIRMINGHAM, Al 35242

john.thomas@automotivesys.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jason Pinkerton
5721 Reagan ST
Tyler, TX 75707

Fracstack@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Gutknecht
3435 Doubletree Way
Madera, Ca 93637

bgutknecht@gratingpacific.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

salvatore amato
2127 Hawks Landing Dr 2127 hawks landing dr lake st.louis, mo 63367

samato1935@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jack Stewart
2534 Cloverleaf Ln
Abilene, TX 79601

abilenepapa@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Irene Hunt
6218 U.S. Hwy. 183
Cisco, Tx 76437

ihunt51@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Scott
1618 union Ave
Belvidere, Il 61008

Cardinal815@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rhonda Schirle
13625 Podocarpus Lane
Orlando, FL 32828

schirlemr@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven DeGrave
25060 Hancock Ave. #103-1999
Murrieta, CA 92562

sdegrave@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Antonia Pierce
430 Grummon Street, PO Box 462
Paw Paw, Il 61353

tonipierce@flanaganstatebank.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerry Maguire
1904 Summerfield Lane
Godfrey, IL 62035

jerry.maguire@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Johnny McCaghren
7788 SH 36 E
Cross Plains, TX, TX 76443

jmccaghren@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Kolquist
790 Orange St
Abilene, TX 79601

bkolquist@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Westerman
10310 W. Spanish Moss
Sun City, AZ 85373

rwesterman1@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Luiz M Seckler
1501 Glen Eagles Ct
Abilene, TX 79601

lseckler@uccabilene.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeff Lawrence
1124 Richland drive
Abilene, Tx 79603

jeff.lawrence@cisco.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Albert Acosta
1513 Rosewood Dr
Abilene, TX 79603

albertrisha@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patsy Scoggins
1342 Beechwood Ln.
Abilene, TX 79603

pmbscoggins@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Garry Bunkley
501 fm2404
Abilene, Tx 79601

Garrybunkley@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeff Hutchison
160 White Rock Lane
Lexington, SC 29072

jhutchison@spectrumcorp.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debbie Fernandez
121 Veranda Lane
Lexington, SC 29072

dfernandez@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Derrell Helm
7312 Comer Ln
Weatherford, TX 76085

dphelm75@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debbie Fernandez
121 Veranda Lane
Lexington, SC 29072

dfernandez@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

marcia milstein
8212 w oak ave
niles, il 60714

Marcia01@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Grayling Norris
121 Veranda Ln.
Lexington, SC 29072

graynorris@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Deb Davidson
1755 Afton Ave
Charleston, SC 29407

debodavi@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joyce Foster
1186 Pleasant Pines
Mt. Pleasant, SC 29464

shadoe815f@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Arlene Petit
1903 Ventura Place Snee Farm
Mount Pleasant, SC 29464

arlene.petit@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Grace Gober
85 Stonegate Rd
Abilene, TX 79606

ggober@suddenlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jamie Puro
11104 E 36th St. S
Independence, MO 64052

jamiejgreen@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeff Naukam
1700 Overland St.
Ft. Worth, TX 76131

jeff@bethebubble.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jacques Van Schalkwyk
164 Berryville Place
Saint Charles, MO 63304

cvs1304@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Julie Staples
11035 Seahawk Dr
Frisco, Tx 75034

juliekoflanovich@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Roacker
12 s. robinson St.
Richmond, VA 23220

roacker.james@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Roacker
12 s. robinson St.
Richmond, VA 23220

roacker.james@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Roacker
12 s. robinson St.
Richmond, VA 23220

roacker.james@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Roacker
12 s. robinson St.
Richmond, VA 23220

roacker.james@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

carol Myers
6141 Carlatun Street
Westerville, Oh 43081

jim95carolmyers@gmail.comp

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

james Myers
6141 Carlatun Street
Westerville, Oh 43081

jim95carolmyers@gmail.comp

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

james Myers
6141 Carlatun Street
Westerville, Oh 43081

jim95carolmyers@gmail.comp

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Ruley
132 Halling Drive
Columbia, SC 29229

Rtruley@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patti McCaghren
35 Cobblestone LN
Abilene, TX 79606

pattidmc@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Test test
2400 w broad st
Richmond, va 23220

test@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Iris Majer
595 Carters Grove Road
Charleston, SC 29414

irismajer@inbox.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Heyland
1000 6th Street
Baird, TX 79504

babydoll1949@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Linning
890 Law Lane
Mt. Pleasant, SC 29464

janlin890@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jon Stephens
217 West 2nd Street
Erie, KS 66733

jstephens5@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

marlene nickolai
7860 e benson hwy tucson, as 85756

blainemarlene@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Linning
890 Law Lane
Mt. Pleasant, SC 29464

janlin890@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Kahrs
773 Glen Lake Court
Mt Pleasant, SC 29464

nancykahrs@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joachim Kahrs
773 Glen Lake Court
Mt Pleasant, SC 29464

kahrsj1942@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Curtis Shepherd
1554 Fairway Drive
Lima, Oh 45805

teeoneup@woh.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rachel Narancich
107 Lanes End Dr
Franklin, TN 37067

rachel@gospelhour.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Monte Lemmon
117 Lake Dogwood Circle South
EASTOVER, SC 29044

monterayconstruction@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Templeton
1659 Carey Court
Hazelwood, MO 63042

dtempleton4046@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Richards
1380 Lochmere Court
Mt Pleasant, sc 29466

linda@lhrcpa.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Norteman
353 Valley View Drive
Woodruff, SC 29388

anorteman@hughes.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeff Rosenthal
993 Meadow Club Ct
Suwanee, Ge 30024

jrosenthal1228@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Roacker
12 s. robinson St.
Richmond, VA 23220

roacker.james@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

chuck roundy 1658 jackson creek road winnsboro, SC 29180

cwroundy@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joan Hough
25 Village Dr
Meredith, Nh 3253

jodyhough@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rebecca Morgan-Lindstrom 12176 SW Austin Ave.
Lake Suzy, FL 34269

rebeccaamorgan224@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anthony Candella
205 10th Street 4B
Jersey City, NJ 7302

acandella@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Dyer
260 Stonecrest Drive
Roebuck, SC 29376

rdyer75@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Erika Behmke
13737 W Amherst Way
Lakewood, CO 80228

erika2mexico@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Friedman
3529 Greenway Rd
Grand Island, NY 14072

gielaine@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Erika Behmke
13737 W Amherst Way
Lakewood, CO 80228

erika2mexico@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathryn Adams
4810 S Albion Street
Cherry Hills Village, CO 80121

kacybrown2001@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kristina schoo
915 carriage hill drive
Athens, oh 45701

klscho01@moreheadstate.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

CHARLES LEAVER
28706 HOPE CIRCLE
EASTON, MD 21601

cleaver@cbiz.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Gillman
112 FALCON CREEK DR
MCKINNEY, TX 75070

cgillma@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Erika Behmke
13737 W Amherst Way
Lakewood, CO 80228

erika2mexico@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steve Dominick
3662 Wheeland Road
Little Mountain, SC 29075

sdominick@dakamericas.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sue Benjamin
7636san Carlos st
Boynton beach, Fl 33437

Susu7636@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas Cargo
2109 Briarcreek ALane
Plano, TX 75074

dougcargo@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Branson
2316 Scammel Dr.
Dallas, TX 75227

jgbranson@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janna Shea
1128 S Jackson St
Denver, CO 80210

jannaflys@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Bulman
203 E 50th Street
Savannah, GA 31405

davidpbulman@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Alia
6103 Crabtree Rd
Columbia, SC 29206

Richard.Alia@palmettohealth.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Will 4111 Cashell Glen Eagan, MN 55122

will@bitstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dorothy Moore
2030 Park Rd.
Palmer, PA 18045

dottiemoore@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Pat McQuaid
222816 Oxnard St
Woodland Hills, Ca 91367

patmcquaid@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alan Schramm
2439 SE Faxon Dr.
Topeka, KS 66605

alanschramm@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kim Pierce
10112 Van Dyke Rd.
Dallas, Te 75218

buffitchick@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dorothy Moore
2030 Park Rd.
Palmer, PA 18045

dottiemoore@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cecelia Olack
65 Boyles Street
Beverly, MA 1915

ccolack@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Manning
1113 Monarda Way
Acworth, GA 30102

Cin-Bill@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

phil marie 5130 pine river trl castle rock, co 80108

philrmarie@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sue Perry
1713 Granby Road
Cayce, SC 29033

sperry010@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Malouf
2516 Toltec Cir
San Ramon, Ca 94583

markmalouf@allstate.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lois Bradley
1084 Ridgeway Road
Lugoff, SC 29078

loisbradley52@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Kobylar
8 Wall Street Suite 207
Clifton Park, NY 12065

mkobylar@nycap.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Glenn Furney
951 Nicklaus Court
Frisco, TX 75034

gdfurney@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lorraine ANDERSON
13410 Foliage Ave
Apple Valley, Mi 55124

lorkand78@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeffrey Baird
159 Brush Creek Road
Irwin, PA 15642

drbaird@ptdentist.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Ray
6561 Westway Dr
The Colony, TX 75056

kathy.ray86@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Martin Plecinoga
7 Willow Avenue
Danvers, MA 1923

mplecinoga@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Matthew Duddy
74 via da vinci
clifton park, NY 12065

mduddy@nycap.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Matthew McCormack
2 Stirrup Drive
East Greenbush, NY 12061

allocclimos@nycap.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kristy Duddy
74 via da vinci
clifton park, NY 12065

kduddy3@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michelle Wagner
644 Longview Drive
Middletown, PA 17057

dmichwag@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel Wagner
644 Longview Drive
Middletown, PA 17057

dmichwag@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gregg Payne
820 Hidden Springs Court
McKinney, TX 75071

01gtp@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tracy Payne
820 Hidden Springs Court
McKinney, TX 75071

01gtp@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Matthew Mangan
504 Rose Dr
Allen, TX 75002

mangan.matt@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eli Marshall
417 Spring Mill Rd
Anderson, IN 46013

Throwback.athletics@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eric Catricala
One Clippership Lane
Waterford, NY 12188

Kelcat1963@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laurie Valenti
68 Algonquin Road
Cifton Park, Ne 12065

svalent3@nycap.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diane Ray
95 Staples Hill Road Canton, ME 4221

dianeraypfi@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tim LaFleur
621 Balboa Avenue
Coronado, Ca 92118

lafleurtim@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Smith
25310 Tether Lane
Punta Gorda, FL 33983

kizi@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

mildred goldbach
515 W CALLE DEL ESTRIBO
SAHUARITA, AR 856298534

jimbollmanrn@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert D. Loudenback
5210 Jerome Dr
Godfrey, IL 62035

rdloudenback@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Havens
1436 Earlshire place
Plano, Tx 75075

Mkhavens@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ruth Duffy
22pilger place
Orchard park, Ny 14127

Ruthduffy@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Jones
PO Box 313 31122 Zoar Road
Locust Grove, VA 22508

phrog46e1953@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

james bollman
515 W CALLE DEL ESTRIBO
SAHUARITA, AR 856298534

jimbollmanrn@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lori Fitzgerald
1901 San Jose
Friendswood, TX 77546

snl0214-x3@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

S. Carolyn Loudenback
5210 Jerome Dr
Godfrey, IL 62035

rdloudenback@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Whitley Collins
81607 Avenida Parito
Indio, CA 92203

w_collins8@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Arlene Feddo
1310 Lexington Avenue
North Tonawanda, NY 14120

afeddo@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Goodlin
585 Trailcrest Dr.
Garland, TX 75043

Happier2013@gmaill.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bob Elling
348 consul rd
Schenectady, Ny 12304

Bobelling@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Brunette
106 Woodmancy Lane
Fayetteville, NY 13066

mabrun@twcny.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Byron Leu
117 W. Alta Vista
Ottumwa, IA 52501

jbleu1971@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mickey Powell
906 Glass Mountain Cove
Georgetown, TX 78633

mickey.pfp@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

terry turnbull
4663 haag rd eden, ny 14057

ttumbell@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Scarantino
1761 State st
Schenectady, NY 12304

saiib@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Driver
2505 Anthem Villagw Dr # E 409
Henderson, NV 89052

jldriver@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Perhay
118 Augusta Avenue, #214
DeKalb, IL 60115

mperhay58@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Melissa Ward
280 Thimbleberry Road United States
Ballston Spa, NY 12020

melissa@newward.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gail Masciantonio
1807 Signal Hill Dr
Mechanicsburg, PA 17050

gail@fgv.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Osterthun
206 S. Corona St
Denver, CO 80209

sarahk.fine@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Lieb
317 Allen St.
Clinton, WI 53525

dcmlieb@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Volungus
49 Cavalry Course
Mechanicville, NY 12118

eclipsetoofast4u@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerry Grantham
105 Holly Trail
Brandon, MS 39047

jerryg1916@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Wos
347 Mt Hope School Rd
Willow Street, Pa 17584

billwos@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christie Miller
15206 Douglas Circle
Omaha, NE 68154

christiemiller152@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

karen rose 1311 Greenview dr
bethlehem, PA 18018

karenrose521@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Adali
S80W17343 Haven Drive
Muskego, WI 53150

john.adali@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Maria Forbes
5950 Webster Circle
Norcross, GA 30071

forbesmj@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Haight
3379 S Loma Linda Drive
Loma Linda, MO 64804

skhaight@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Matthew Oatman
3950 Ginguite Dr
Corpus Christi, TX 78414

moatman12@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Love
229 Red Hawk Way
Dallas, GA 30132

tom.love@insuralyticsgroup.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Roop
3390 Glade Creel Blvd.NE Apt. 4
Roanoke, VA 24012

baroop58@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tammy Six
507 Deer Ridge Dr. NW
Bondurant, IA 50035

t.six@karlchevrolet.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Petro
3 Frank St
Rexford, NY 12148

amy@rjcinsurance.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tina Hansen-Taylor
38719 Radnor Ave.
Long Beach, CA 90808

ttotaylor@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peter Antoinette
51 Springwood Meadows Drive
Ballston Spa, NY 12020

Paantoinette@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Craig Borwick
7303 Oakwood Drive
Urbandale, IA 50322

cborwick@bearence.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paula Mosman
255 Thomas Lane
Tappahannock, VA 22560

themosmans@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Wrobbel
3694 Nibawauka Beach
Canandaigua, NY 14424

wrobbel@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Mullaney
19 Farview Rd
Hopewell Junction, NY 12533

mmullaney@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kami Soehl
512 NW Kouns Drive
Albany, OR 97321

kamisoehl@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jered Soehl
512 NW Kouns Drive
Albany, OR 97321

kamisoehl@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frances Frattini
18 Candleview Drive
Sherman, CT 6784

Afrat123@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Poole
224 Gordon St
LaGrange, GA 30240

susanpoole@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Deborah Kimball
4 Entrance Way
Fredon, NJ 7860

ecknj01@ptd.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Chauvin
316 Oakshire Drive
Houma, La 70364

Patricia.chauvin.ls@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carlin Martin
110 Geist st
Houma, LA 70360

carlin_martin@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

eileen lawrence
4314 curtis rd 431
Chevy Chase, MD 20815

transcending@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frank Wichmann
1312 west 13 th ave
friendship, wi 53439

subvet569@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frank Wichmann
1312 west 13 th ave
friendship, wi 53439

subvet569@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Oakford Acton
18 Brian Rd
Wappingers Falls, NY 12590

oakacton@optonline.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Chauvin
316 Oakshire Drive
Houma, La 70364

Patricia.chauvin.ls@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carolyn Bruce
9116 Rusticwood Trail
Saint Louis, MO 63126

5mobruces@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patrick Moriarty
1311 Walnut Terrace
Boca Raton, FL 33486

pat_mm@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

GLORIA GOOLSBEE
9631 HIGHMEADOW DR
HOUSTON, TX 77063

glo3goolsbee@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ashley LeBlanc
506 Hospital Drive
Raceland, LA 70394

ashley.parrish16@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Phyllis Seabaugh
386 Kensington Lane
Cape Girardeau, Mo 63701

rseabaugh001@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Knute Hancock
19 Ridge Trail
Kinnelon, NJ 7405

knute993@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shirley Hancock
19 Ridge Trail
Kinnelon, NJ 7405

knute993@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel McLarty
82 davis rd burlington, CT 6013

daniel.r.mclarty@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Aime Donadieu
133 West Main St.
Gramercy, La 70052

nsfamos@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Moriarty
1311 Walnut Terrace
Boca Raton, FL 33486

mary_a_moriarty@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Fleur
48542 Waterford Drive
Macomb, Mi 48044

Insuredbyfleur@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Shew
6101 S 120th E Ave
Broken Arrow, Ok 74012

mimishew89@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debra Drymalski
3725 old 89 rd
darien, wi 53114

dedrymalski@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Annette Burrough
5666 Oak Knoll Road
El Sobrante, CA 94803

tandaburrough@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Uttinger
1324 S Elwood Ave
Tulsa, OK 74119

puttinger@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa Mays
33 Mt Pleasant Rd
Walton, NY 13856

revdocmays@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Creel
14157 Louisville Ct.
Orlando, FL 32826

wcreeld1@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elizabeth Becker
3338 Morrell Avenue
Philadelphia, PA 19114

granny_bb@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Burgos
2078 Conway Lane
Aurora, il 60503

karbear_60098@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Rudd
1303 Hillside Ln.
McHenry, IL 60051

friendshiphousecl@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Ryman
14938 W. Aloha Dr.
Sun City West, AZ 85375

brym65@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ary Rosa
8535 Leatherleaf Lane
Orlando, FL 32827

aryf518@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christopher Harrington
1825 N. 75th Court
Elmwood Park, IL 60707

christopher_harrington@swissre.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Malinda Heller
912 Poinsettia Drive
Chuluota, FL 32766

mheller912@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carlos Velazquez
2516 abey blanco dr
ORLANDO, FL 32828

Velazquez067@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Lemay
11218 commodore ln.
Orlando, fl 32836

jsphlmy@yaqhoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

brian lapatin
106 avoncliff ct
summerville, sc 29483

bslapatin@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

brian lapatin
106 avoncliff ct
summerville, sc 29483

bslapatin@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kent Venters
4967 E 44 N.
Bel Aire, KS 67220

kbventers@netzero.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sanjay Gattani
5905 W Charleston St
Broken Arrow, OK 74011

sgiitb85@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Grace Stehle
244 Lake View Dr
Sanford, FL 32773

gracestehle@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Hribal
602 Slippery Rock Rd.
Slippery Rock, Pe 16057

bhribal@gcmcpa.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Holdeman
704 Densmore Drive
Winter Park, FL 32792

sandysings1@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roger Pitts
4001 Clarendon
Bel Aire, Ks 67220

rpitts6574@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Johnson
6612 Cove Point Drive
Wilmington, NC 28409

djohnson@wilmingtoneye.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janice Marcinek
350 N. Walkup Road
Crystal Lake, Il 60012

jjcc1940@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gloria Anzalone
2707 hawk ln
rolling meadows, Il 60008

craftykitty2@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Lane
351 Harold st.
Crystal lake, IL 60014

Llane351@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan McCormick
5707 Springs Blvd
Crystal Lake, IL 60012

suemac24@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wayne Koster
7219 Huntley Rd.
Crystal Lake, IL 60014

WAYNEO1234@SBCGLOBAL.NET

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Dolbee
3955 N 33rd St
Galesburg, MI 49053

jddolbee@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ralph troeger
425 W. Ottawa Street
Sycamore, IL 60178

Huggieu@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

barbara troeger
425 w. ottawa street
sycamore, il 60178

barb83189@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Melinda Penny
4018 Steeple Run Drive
Crystal Lake, Il 60014

mmpenny@d47.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judy Davis Armstrong
256 Shenstone Rd
Riverside, Il 60546

armstrong.judy@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Buren Herod
9 Eastwood Ave
Port Barrington, Il 60010

herod225@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Weller
13206 W Alderny Cir
Wichita, KS 67235

jonwel13@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Weller
13206 W Alderny Cir
Wichita, KS 67235

jonwel13@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary K. Hurd
940 Paradise Cir
Atlantic Beach, Fl 32233

Paradisekayy@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shirley Allen
6620 E Ivyglen St
Mesaq, AZ 85205

shlallen1@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Heslop
30 Edinburgh Dr.
Haines City, Fl 33844

richyrh@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Herd
12 Highland Avenue
Corbin, KY 40701

rwherd@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert McDonald
241 Willis Rd
Etters, PA 17319

bobmac10@ptd.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

CHERYL NATIONS
404 TWIN HOLLOW RD
MACKS CREEK, MO 65786

cheri.nations@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Ayres
10027 Oak Ridge Drive
Glen Rock, PA 17327

kevinayres@trailtoolcorp.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Farmer
707 Brock Road
CARROLLTON, GA 30117

cfarmer43@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Angelo Penza
11 Weaver Drive
Martinsville, NJ 8836

penzainc@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Farmer
707 Brock Road
CARROLLTON, GA 30117

cfarmer43@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Bruton
2387 Alcey Way
Nixa, MO 65714

jbruton0255@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lester Neff
2055 Waterford Dr
Lancaster, Pa 17601

lesneff@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Teresa Bruton
2387 Alcey Way
Nixa, MO 65714

jbruton0255@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

MAryann Penza
11 Weaver Drive
Martinsville, NJ 8836

penzainc@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mildred Penza
505 Middle Road
Hammonton, NJ 8037

penzainc@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Curtis Linker
1125 Yorkshire Drive
Carrollton, TX 75007

curtis@bedfordads.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dan Marlow
257 Royal Oaks Ct
Lexington, SC 29072

damarlow@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Todd Martin
13705 Centerburg Road
Sunbury, OH 43074

martin0109@netzero.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michele Kennedy
8589 Dark Hawk Circle
Columbia, Md 21045

mrroe117@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Timothy Cox
803 NE Lakeview Drive
Ankeny, Ia 50021

coxtimsandy@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vickie Burnham
1749 Bridgeboro Anderson City Rd.
Doerun, GA 31744

vickieburnham@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marcelle G King
51D Brigham Road
Greenfield Center, NY 12833

mgk5151@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Burfield
2123 PARIDISE LN
OZARK, MO 657215902

nburfield@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Baggs
200 Mesa Oaks
Leander, TX 78641

wandabaggs@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Stevens
393 3rd Street
Atlantic Beach, Fl 32233

mermaid@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jason McCullough
1001 N 21st Avenue
Ozark, MO 65721

jasonkmccullough@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Wood
107 Victoria Drive
Pittsburgh, Pa 15202

Jzzylou@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Wimberley
1639 Rivergate Drive
Jacksonville, FL 32223

mark.wimberley@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sue McConnell
436 Lovers Lane Rd.
Leesburg, Ga 31763

Jameswsr@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marie Foster-Brown
418 Bradford Ln
Columbia, SC 29223

elijah0909@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Landry Adcock
3135 SCR 514
Morton, MS 39117

landmark12@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Brooks
803 Windsor drive
Cinnaminson, Nj 8077

Bab1764@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bill Hockridge
13551 Braemar Dr.
Dallas, TX 75234

bill@hockridge.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephanie Hunter
607 Adare Court
Cranberry Twp, PA 16066

hunter.stephanie52@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Levandowski
2915 Joyce Road
Abington, PA 19001

mcl0423@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

cheryl haeberlein
344 fountain st phila, pa 19128

chaeberlein@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Fallat
116 Muhlenberg Ave
Hershey, PA 17033

tjfallat@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elizabeth Baker
118 Elfreth
Philadelphia, PA 19106

bethb@childrensvillagephila.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tina Balsley
7147 S Hilltop Way
Boise, ID 83709

tinajbal@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carl Balsley
7147 S Hilltop Way
Boise, ID 83709

cwbalsley@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Betty Bischoff
3550 S Creekwood Way
Boise, ID 83709

wbmifflin@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kimberly Cordner
2 Tamarac Lane
Medford, NJ 8055

shore2trvl@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Pamela Morrell
51 Drake Street
Brockton, MA 2301

gmorrell@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Cummings
20224 Renwick Ave
Port Charlotte, FL 33954

tccummings63@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janice Haws
221 Prince William Way
Chalfont, PA 18914

jhaws221@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

caitlin kelly
515 eighth st
Riverside, nj 8075

Clk33879@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Valencia
3334 St. Marys Road
Lafayette, Ca 94549

nvale@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa Mays
33 Mt Pleasant Rd
Walton, NY 13856

revdocmays@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George Drymalski
3725 old 89 Rd
Darien, wi 53114

dedrymalski@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Dersch
37 Wilshire Terrace
Kinnelon, NJ 7405

mikedersch01@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Goolsbee
9631 Highmeadow Dr.
Houston, TX 77063

dgoolsbee@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Schwent
11786 Parish Dr.
Bridgeton, MO 63044

kschwent@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Justus
21 Holly Ln
El Sobrante, CA 94803

gcjustus2@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Bordonaro
264 Allison Drive
Torrington, Ct 6790

Karbo0822@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barney Bryan
7970 W. Baker Ave.
Lakewood, CO 80227

miltbryan@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Oleszko
11081 Racine
Warren, MI 48093

moleszko@vblimited.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Weiler
5 Cream St.
Hyde Park, NY 12538

bweiler@optonlne.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Danny Ryals
4 Sheffield ct.
Newnan, Ga 30265

Klmryals@numail.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Herbert Dilcher
2419 Redman Rd.
Brockport, NY 14420

nancdil@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynda Becker
691 B a shaker Blvd
Ridgefield, NJ 7657

lbecker@nj.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Downey
3952 Maple Hill East
West Blomfield, MI 48323

fox1653.downey@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Ksiazek
700 Lonesome Star Trail
Haslet, TX 76052

dksiazek78@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gregg Miller
714 NW Scenic Dr.
Albany, OR 97321

sorlei@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George Paniculam
8850 Columbia 100 Parkway Ste 306A
Columbia, Ma 21045

georgepaniculam@fpmc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rosemary Hegarty
4756 Bruno Road
El Sobrante, CA 94803

creekrose@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sheryl Halter
2921 w 120th st
Jenks, Ok 74037

Slhalter26@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Chandrasekharan nair
15, Highfield Ct.,
Cockeysville, MD 21030

chandmal@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Craig Naden
5263 Courtyard Dr.
Gonzales, LA 70737

cnaden@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Stephens
520 Highland Ave
Waterbury, Ct 6708

coprolite1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marita Powell
6843 N. Knox Ave.
Lincolnwood, IL 60712

Marita6843@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Miller
6843 N. Knox Ave.
Lincolnwood, IL 60712

Michaelmiller814@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Jensen
13740 Hemlock Court
Apple Valley, MN 55124

kjtraveler@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeanette Medrano
76 Russell Court
Ventura, CA 93003

jeanettemedrano1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Morgan Fredrickson 2743 W.Meadow Dr.
White Lake, MI 48383

fdbuck28@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

tony wilcockson
1775 Aiello CT
Concord, CA 94519

twtony@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael McCrite
P.o. Box 5
Olive Branch, Il 62969

mmccrite@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Winslow Stevens
5 Verbank Rd
Millbrook, NY 12545

stevensdvm@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa Vaughn
14 Stratford Ct
Burlington, NJ 8016

lvrdh43@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Keil
3548 Carlfield St
El Sobrante, CA 94803

cjkeil@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elaine Sodl
3954 W. Washington St
Allentown, pa 18104

sodl1015@ptd.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Giddings
5655 East Grandview St
Mesa, AZ 85205

grandma5655@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karl Muller
3154 East Lydius Street
Schenectady, NY 12203

kmuller@creativepensionconsultants.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert McDonald
13900 Lake Song Ln M-4
Broomfield, co 80023

bobs.fishing@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephanie Sherman
5153 BLUE MOUNTAIN RD
PORT ANGELES, Wa 98362

stephaniesherman@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ana Lopez
2337 N 51st Dr. same
Phoenix, AZ 85035

lopeza@superiorcourt.maricopa.gov

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kristy Purlee
4510 E Canton Rd
Salem, In 47167

kpurlee@icloud.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

jackie hardage
113 redbud trail
brandon, ms 39047

fhardaage@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Becky Hosp
5350 S Ferguson Ave
springfield, mo 65810

bhosp@shelterinsurance.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

KW (Karen W.) Hillis
1309 NW Maple Ave.
Lawton, OK 73507

kwhillis28@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gloria Sampler
816 Hollonville Rd.
Brooks, GA 30205

gloriasampler@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrew Ladner
P O Box 7
Kiln, Ms 39556

Andyladner322@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrew Ladner
P O Box 7
Kiln, Ms 39556

Andyladner322@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary O
4998 Rundquist Ct.
Rockford, IL 61114

oneillgary@bfusa.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Henry Shemmer
109 Church Street
Philadelphia, Pe 10106

hshemmer@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rahwa Teklai
177 Saint Ives Drive
Madison, Ms 39110

Rahwa.teklai@lfd.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kelly Brockette
17365 Valley Dr
Big Rapids, Mi 49307

kbkellypie@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Nenni
137 Eaton Dr
Middletowm, Oh 45044

Paul@nenni.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Rick
774 3rd Street
Herndon, Va 20170

Mikerick1@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa Burleson
104 Jamestown Rd
Greenville, NC 27858

Rburleson@suddenlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa Davison
12641 West State Hwy. 155
Dardanelle, Ar 72834

ldaviso@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

pamela reilly
601 rosery road, NE
largo, fl 33770

pamela.reilly.47@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roland Gagne
260 Main Street Suite D
Biddeford, ME 4005

Rgagne@valueofadvice.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Barthen
1033 Bauer Ave
Eau Claire, WI 54703

robbarthen@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Borg
1574 Hutton Place
Charleston, SC 29407

borgb@cofc.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carla Swanson
2775 Floyd Dr Apt A Conway, Ar 72032

momtosrs@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rick Crouch
176 Birdsong Rd
Russellville, AR 72802

rtcrouch@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Harold Horn
251 Estes Circle
Russellville, AR 72802

hhorn@suddenlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barb Sudermann
2557 So. Dover St. #63
Lakewood, CO 80227

b.sudermann@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

pamela reilly
601 rosery road, NE
largo, fl 33770

pamela.reilly.47@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frederick Lewis
53 Hawthorne Ct NE
Washington, DC 200017

douglasslewisjr@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vickie Newman
211 Soiuth Quanah
Russsellville, AR 72801

jerryvickie!@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donnie Baker
211 ParkRoad
Russellville, Ar 72802

Rena.baker@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elaine Jonas
9 Partridge Landing
Glastonbury, CT 6033

eej1121@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Norton
6010 N Oakland Ave
Indianapolis, IN 46220

pn032950@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barry Waldron Waldron
11175 Lakeridge Rd
Dardanelle, Ar 72834

barry118@centurytel.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mike Boyd
4386 Double Oaks Trail
Rhinelander, WI 54501

Mike@boydfs.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Roacker
12 s. robinson St.
Richmond, VA 23220

roacker.james@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bill Talbert
5851 Slaughterville Road
Lexington, OK 73051

botalbert@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gerald Graham
15605 E GRAND AVE
AURORA, CO 80015

timberlinellc@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ROSCOE MIKOFF
16 LAKERIDGE TRAIL
ALTON, IL 62002

rochie48@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Manning Swanson
8022 E. Grail
Wichita, Ks 67207

dswan7091@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elsie Hiatt
1342 Calle Bouganvilla
Thousand Oaks, CA 91360

garyelsiehiatt@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Rosen
124 Isle Of Venice Drive, #2
Fort Lauderdale, FL 33301

paul@matrixsouthflorida.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Jonas
9 Partridge Landing
Glastonbury, CT 6033

bpjmrj@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Jonas
21 Adams Green
Bedford, NH 3110

kevin@mainsailcharters.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Ribeiro
10 Gloucester Street
Boston, MA 2115

sribeiro426@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Netzer
164 Courtenay Lane
Schaumburg, IL 60193

larry.netzer@alcatel-lucent.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alex Saenz
PO Box 271022
Corpus Christi, Te 0

aoasaenz@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathryn Duff
10035 Royal Eagle Lane
Highlands Ranch, CO 80129

kathrynduff12@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James W. Youngdale
8400 Vamo Road
Sarasota, FL 34232

jameswy29@gamil.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James W. Youngdale
8400 Vamo Road
Sarasota, FL 34232

jameswy29@gamil.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Tantum
P O Box 366
New Egypt, NJ 8533

ktantum7@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shawn Tansey
9 Tower Road
Westford, MA 1886

spt2@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shawn Tansey
9 Tower Road
Westford, MA 1886

spt1956@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Angela Rivera
3740 Creswick Circle
Orlando, FL 32829

angela.ma.rivera@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Graney
2286 S Delaware Dr. APT. 102
MOUNT PROSPECT, IL 60056

smgraney@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Graney
2286 S Delaware Dr. APT. 102
MOUNT PROSPECT, IL 60056

smgraney@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alex Saenz
PO Box 271022
Corpus Christi, Te 0

aoasaenz@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Myers
9 Tower Road
Westford, MA 1886

9towersolutions@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Yallop
6146 South Niagara Court
Centennial, Co 80111

johnyallopco@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stacy Mountain
12819 Cragside Lane
Windermere, FL 34786

Fsustace@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janis Aroyan
2762 Cambridge Rd.
Cameron Park, CA 95682

laroyanj@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Lenzini
7 Brindlewood Court
Algonquin, IL 60102

mlenzini@bayeq.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tom Hess
11282 Kingsbury Court
Huntley, IL 60142

hess@mc.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Danielle Bolognini
110 Beech St
Floral Park, Ne 11001

daniellebolognini@mail.adelphi.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Robertson
7500 N. Natchez Ave.
Niles, IL 60714

jim@lewisspring.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paula Puleo-Winsky
30121 Woodhouse Dr
Warren, MI 48092

ppuleowins@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tiffany Umbarger
1217 Tower Ln
Cary, IL 60013

teaching2003@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

barbara troeger
4025 Harleston Green Lane
Mount Pleasant, SC 29466

barb83189@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Pearson
2913 willow run
Orlando, Fl 32808

Wingnutuk611@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gerald Brenneman
718 7th Avenue West. Albany,OR 2801 Goldfinch Lp.
Albany, OR 97322

gkbrenn@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sarah Fowler
1114 Greenstone Blvd Apt 202
Heathrow, FL 32746

fowlersaraha@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

MICHAEL GORDON
207 SEQUOIA AVE
WALNUT CREEK, CA 94595

clayat@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Kirkland
6141 Rhythm Circle
Orlando, Fl 32808

Jkirkusa@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shaun Tessmer
836 Stonebridge Ln
Crystal Lake, Il 60014

stess10@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Milan Brickhouse
1201 Willow Creek Drive
Bloomington, IL 61075

gene.brickhouse@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frances Rugulo
11 Grandway Terrace
Stockholm, NJ 7460

oopslowry@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mignon Dureka
5334 McNeal Drive
Syracuse, MO 65354

dureka@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tim Hudson
9280 N Moreto Circle
Summerville, SC 29485

timothyphudson@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sheldon Pavel
7920 Cedar road
Elkins Park, Pa 19027

shellypavel@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathy Fox
36W551 Oak Hill Drive
West Dundee, IL 60118

kathy_fox@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Neil Elmouchi
843 Sassafras Way
Oak Park, CA 91377

neil@thewiseinvestor.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Reed
P.O. Box 1247
Anacortes, WA 98221

scott.insure@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Armentrout
3733 Lyons La
Alexandria, Va 22302

lnausa@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Neumann
PO Box 967
Darrington, Wa 98241

susanneumann@hotmail.co

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Moore
50 North Beach Ave.
Monument Beach, Ma 2553

Irishred1@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amanda Stores
2205 Briarcliff Gables Cir. NE
Atlanta, GA 30329

Abcarter11@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vashitti Winkler
800 S First Fisher, IL 61843

dwink28838@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Albert Lucas
66 Harbour Close
New Haven, CT 6519

brolucas@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marcia Grothe
207 South Fair St.
Champaign, IL 61821

marshiegro@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joanne Begley
42 Janet Street
West Springfield, Ma 1089

jobegley@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynne Peter
15 Cornell Rd.
Venice, Fl 34293

lcpeter117@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Heide Pickens
1361 Michael Way
Lansdale, PA 19446

pickenshe@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rita Droz
350 Baldwin Road Apt B-2
Parsippany, NJ 7054

Ritaldroz@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joanne Kerr
210 Reynolds Ave.
Pottstown, PA 19464

bjored60@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ruth Ekey 420 ridge ave
glendora, NJ 8029

ekey.r@deptford.k12.nj.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rian Steinbiss
9 Blue Grass Road
Clementon, NJ 8021

rsteinbiss@lincolninvestment.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Shelton
3731 Cardinal Downs Drive Greensboro, NC 27410

sshelton@cpasna.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

jev webster
6101 westbrook drive citrus heights, ca 95621

jevonwebster@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

jev webster
6101 westbrook drive
citrus heights, ca 95621

jevonwebster@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert White
7003 McLeansville Road
Browns Summit, NC 27214

bob.white@qorvo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robbie Roach
1074 CR 821
Nacogdoches, TX 75964

lacombroachpress@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

MELISSA SHANDOR
300F CHESWICK CIR APT F
YORKTOWN, VA 23693

mpshandor@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Fred Burns
4447 Tolbut Street
Philadelphia, PA 19136

fmburns75@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bryan Hartley
446 C and S Lane
Grand Cane, LA 71032

bryanh@lhbasif.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vivienne Matalon
1 N Syracuse Drive
Cherry Hill, NJ 8034

tlc@tlchealthcare.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margy Gerhardt
1825 Eastbrook Road
New Castle, PA 16101

mlhardt@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Fletcher
160 Bullfinch Rd.
Mooresville, NC 28117

donefletcher@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeanne Arnold
330 Wingate
Schaumburg, IL 60193

scharnold@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Charboneau
32 Pelham Dr.
West Deptford, NJ 8051

bone15@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Louis Cantrell
1032 15th Ave N
St Petersburg, FL 33704

louiscantrell@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elaine Hovda
6341 W Broadway
Brooklyn Park, MN 55428

ehovda@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerry Mitchell
6566 Quail Chase
Charlestown, IN 47111

jcmitchellrtr@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Pagni
213 continental ln
Schaumburg, IL 60194

mamapags@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Hebert
325 Vinet Ave
Jefferson, La 70121

lgh325@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kimberly Houp
6444 Deermeade Drive
Florence, Ky 41042

Kim_houp@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa Schuchter
116 Summit Dr.
Crestview Hills, Ky 41017

lambs6959@twc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vicki Wolf
808 Mesa Vista Drive
Farmington, NM 87401

seagal1960@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Annette Trimbur
2438 Antelope Ct
Villa Hills, KY 41017

atrimbur@fuse.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christine Stoudt
312 Orchard Ave
Langhorne, PA 19047

cndstoudt@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ronald austin
1220 crystal dr
benton, AR 72015

rlaust@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

MARGARET PETRONIS
223 DICKINSON ST.
PHILADELPHIA, PA 19147

LITWAK7@VERIZON.NET

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gilbert Gardner
1422 pinewood road
Jacksonville Beach, Fl 32250

gggardner@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Melvin KUIPERS
5156 POTTER RD
DEMING, WA 98244

melkay2@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Nerling
15 Owl Hoot Tr.
Silver City, NM 88061

jjnerl@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lydia Soifer
4901 Henry Hudson Pkwy 3D
Bronx, NY 10471

Llhsoi@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Troy Whitlow
1131 Bridge Mill Ave
Canton, GA 30114

troy.whitlow@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Keywonnie Gregory
2502 Border RD
Chesapeake, VA 23324

wonnie717@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven Hill
3322 Deer Trail
Alpharetta, GA 30004

stevenmh1982@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

rick johnston
29620 oklaterre rd. lot 203 gravois mills, mo 65037

rick58nkc@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Sigler
1552 Bischoff Rd
New Carlisle, OH 45344

ksigler2@woh.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Wasson
1486 N. Silverado Place
Meridian, Id 83642

jwasson103@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeffrey Neil 2763 Lancaster Court
Boise, ID 83702

zonka3944@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Gaddis
503 19th AV. SO.
Nampa, ID 83651

b-gaddis@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Abrabam Lee
9403 Bay Colony Drive, Apt. 3E
Des Plaines, IL 0

leeabe@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Dickson
67 West Walnut Road
Vineland, NJ 8360

micsan47@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

J. Mitchell
PO Box 64
Acme, WA 98220

mitchdj@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margie Brown
103 Brunner St.
Hummelstown, Pa 17036

Margieb103@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Carpenter
123 S Hanover st
Hummelstown, Pa 17036

rbcarp123@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Cooke
9024 Fenner Road
Baldwinsville, NY 13027

sue.cooke531@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Diel
5 Swift St.
Auburn, NY 13021

LDiel@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Earls
1393 Watson Street
Portsmouth, VA 23707

robertearls@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ashley Yount
412 Saint Catherine Circle
Richmond Hill, GA 31324

ashleykyount@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kirk Heinemann
708 Pecan Hill Drive
St. Charles, MO 63304

KHeinemann@HoffmanDev.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Ellington
46 Harvest Green Court
Saint Peters, Mi 63376

sellington@crown.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sarah LoBisco
12020 Donnan Ave
Schenectady, NY 12020

slobisco@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kim Leggett
25559 Banff Ln
Punta Gorda, FL 33983

kndleggett@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Fortner
5565 Chukar trail
Colorado Springs, CO 80918

lfortner8620@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

george lisinski
26 sherman st
huntington, ny 11743

glisinski@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jim Higgins
1151 N Idaho St
La Habra, Ca 90631

jhig1115@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jon Mack
PO Box 162
Hanna, IN 46340

jone229@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Pevahouse
1537 Windwood Ct.
Martinez, CA 94553

pevahouse@cccta.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ashley Herzog
1118A N Stafford St
Arlington, VI 22201

herzog.ashley@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Rutledge
9682 SW Ventura Ct
Tigard, OR 97223

fsi@rrrfamily.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ariel Baker
4455 Cambridge St.
Kansas City, Ks 66103

phaedrabaker@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Quigley
1220 Donnan Avenue
Schenectady, NY 12309

terryquigley3@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gwen Casals
25611 SW 133 CT
Homestead, Fl 33032

gwencasals@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Armstrong
59 Primrose Lane
Penacook, NH 3303

daveavb@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debbie Reaves
905 N Court St
Carlisle, AR 72024

deborah@getreadyforthefuture.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Melynda Steward
7426 Melrose
Shawnee, KS 66203

adnylemdrawets@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gerald Miller
2403 Byers Road
Lapeer, Mi 48446

sullycpa@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vickie Thomas
916 Markey Place
Belton, Mi 64012

vygthomas@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Fingerhut
1218 Cedar Creek Road
Chesterfield, MO 63017

dfinger99@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Fingerhut
1218 Cedar Creek Road
Chesterfield, MO 63017

dfinger99@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alan Peroutek
13134 Sycamore Heights St.
Houston, tx 77065

peroutek@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Test Test
1234 Richmond Hwy PO Box 842032
Richmond, VA 23284

test@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Curtis Brookins
4725 Marie Ln E
Golden Valley, MN 55422

curtbrookins@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judith Meisner
1915 Nashmont Ct.
Lansdale, PA 19446

jud_mei@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

eric clauss
59 nicole dr independence, ky 41051

phoenix9967@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Cohen
1262 Lake Mallard Boulevard
Mount Pleasant, SC 29464

ynslife@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Curtis Pittman
1501 River 0aks Road
Abilene, Tx 79605

oilcap777@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Roacker
12 s. robinson St.
Richmond, VA 23220

roacker.james@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tom Mulder
1612 E Lake Geneva Rd NE
Alexandria, MN 56308

tjmul@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Matthew Christopher 51R Meetinghouse Hill Rd
Durham, CT 6422

matthew.christopher@lpl.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JC Mitchell
240 Shell Ct 24
Lexington, KY 40511

renejc0912@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alice Norteman
353 Valley View Drive
Woodruff, SC 29388

anorteman@hughes.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Flynn
16 Quarter Horse Drive Monroe, CT 6468

sflynn@snet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Angela Moore
1219 Scenic Way
Hayward, CA 94541

angie4077@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Padgett
1219 Scenic Way
Hayward, CA 94541

brianpadgett1963@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

LLOYD SPARKS
PO413797302 9798
SALM, OR 0

LBSPFS@AOL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Posmantur
206 26th Ave S
Seattle, WA 98144

amy.posmantur@eu.dodea.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Day Rascan
PO box 1158
Cottonwood, AZ 86326

day1@commspeed.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ken hansen
3570 Northwood dr unit d
concord, ca 94520

kennethhansen1951@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Williams
PO Box 55
Adamsville, PA 16110

willisacr84@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Neil Chernin
436 78th St
Brooklyn, NY 11209

nchernin@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ken hansen
3570 Northwood dr unit d
concord, ca 94520

kennethhansen1951@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ken hansen
3570 Northwood dr unit d
concord, ca 94520

kennethhansen1951@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ken hansen
3570 Northwood dr unit d
concord, ca 94520

kennethhansen1951@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Grace Savoie
7137 Hwy 1 South P.O. Box 58
Belle Rose, LA 70341

gksavoie@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janie Bronson
950 Azalea Garden Drive
Shreveport, LA 71115

janie.hogan@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Taylor
4963 Village Gardens Drive
Sarasota, Fl 34234

jrtunited@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Leonard
536 Bluefin Creek Ln
Eagletown, OK 74734

wesley.leonard@ipaper.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rick Murphy
2275 59th St Dr
Vinton, IA 52349

rmurphy@berthel.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Walters
13168 Summit Creek Rd.
Jacksonville, FL 32224

walters_scott@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Wagner
1224 Idaho Ave
Erie, PA 16505

lindasbayle@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carole Walters
13168 Summit Creek Rd.
Jacksonville, FL 32224

caleathw@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vickie Waddell
612 Johnstone Place
North Myrtle Beach, SC 29582

vickiewaddell@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Wagner
1224 Idaho Ave
Erie, PA 16505

lindasbayle@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Fortune
1780 Burrell Mountian Rd
Brevard, NC 28712

taxdefserv@citcom.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Terry Waddell
612 Johnstone Place
North Myrtle Beach, SC 29582

waddellchevy@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janine Troke
6625 woodland Blvd
Minnesota City, Mn 55959

airman@hbci.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Wagner
1224 Idaho Avenue
Erie, PA 16505

mrandmrswags1130@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dale Nardozzi
510 Stonebridge Ct.
Uniontown, Pa 15401

Dfnardozzi@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Wagner
1224 Idaho Ave
Erie, PA 16505

baylemom2@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jessica Mauderer
16621 W 154th St
Olathe, Ka 66062

jessicakihn@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Wagner
1224 Idaho Avenue
Erie, Pa 16505

wagswaste@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Wagner
717 State Street Suite 702
Erie, PA 16501

lwagner@pfginc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Wagner
717 State Street Suite 702
Erie, PA 16501

lwagner@magnuswm.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Renate Koetke
1851 Stewart Ave.
Park Ridge, Il 60068

klauskoetke@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Valencia
3334 St. Marys Road
Lafayette, Ca 94549

nvale@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Knitis
219 Alpine Road
Rochester, NY 14612

bknitis@twc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roy Law
28 N Evergreen Ave
Longport, NJ 8403

Longportion@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Dougherty 202 Williamsburg Ct.
Marlton, NJ 8053

bdougherty202@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Mulherin
2748 S. Kent Rd.
Broomall, Pe 19008

camul3@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carole Schneider
132 Mercer Ave
Manahawkin, NJ 8050

Schneider2@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carl Smallwood
112 N. Quincy Ave.
Margate, NJ 8402

cfsbeach@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Callaghan
805 Irvington road
Drexel hill, Pa 19026

Calmom@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Balent
64 chancery rr
Langhorne, Pa 19047

Johnbal516@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JoAnne Mathis
1845 9th Street
Hempstead, Tx 77445

johnniejoanne@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Oorthuys
97 Awosting Rd
Hewitt, NJ 7421

rjoorth@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Sugar
5718 Meadowview St.
Ypsilanti, MI 48197

ssugar@emich.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debora Balent
64 chancery rd
Langhorne, Pa 19047

Dbalent55@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Ray 1145 Gilman
Garden City, Mi 48135

jpr1237@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

stefanie reagan
11630 barlow st
philadelphia, PA 19116

sreagan123@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna S Kuehn
6068 Knox Ave S
Minneapolis, MN 55419

ddskuehn@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dale Pelzl
4486 Pondview Trl SE
Prior Lake, MN 55372

drpelzl@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

thomas Sabalka
2800 N Cotner blvd.
Lincoln, Ne 68057

thsabalka@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Lewos-Schuh
3600 Eastbury Drive
Jacksonville, FL 32224

slewos@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Siedschlag
9700 Air Park Drive
Granbury, TX 76049

psiedschlag@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda W. Johnston
118 Old Orchard Road
Gilbert, So 29054

sauteehilcrest2@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Beckman
2942 NE 45th AVE
Portland, OR 97213

beck4247@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Thurber
62 Southern oaks drive
Camden, Sc 29020

Hedgely@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

jeffrey baldwin
283 sheringham rd
columbia, sc 29212

jeffwbaldwin@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Scott
813 Lamoka Dr
Odenton, MD 21113

dpscott1@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margaret Scott
813 Lamoka Dr
Odenton, MD 21113

dpscott1@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Clayton
246 Darlington Dr.
Kenmore, NY 14223

karenclayton313@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elfriede Pecora
10145 Larwin Ave. Unit 1
Chatsworth, CA 91311

elfriedepecora1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Peterson
2649 Bloom Road
White Bear Township, Mn 55110

peterson@ties.k12.mn.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa Ainsworth
16108 E Geddes Dr
Centennial, CO 80016

ldainsworth@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Daly
251 Riverbottom Rd
Ellensburg, Wa 98926

dalyjim@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JOAN VAN DUSEN
703 MILWAUKEE AVE.
SOUTH MILWAUKEE, WI 53172

JRVD703@GMAIL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

TOM WARNER
11317 GRAND HARBOR BLVD
MONTGOMERY, TX 77356

twarner4929@consolidated.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Flecker
6 Brookwood Dr
West Caldwell, NJ 7006

susanflecker@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Kolar
622 Bay Club Drive
Seabrook, Tx 77586

Jakolar@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James S. Smith
1110 Launius Road
Good Hope, GA 30641

jamesssmith2@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Maxwell
1906 Wildwood Court
Conyers, GA 30094

Jam1906@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Gross
8719 E Cypress St
Scottsdale, AZ 85257

robtgros@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Betty Ansel
205 Shoreline Drive n/a Toledo, WA 98591

deltacat@toledotel.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kate O
711 Beach Blvd. #1315
Jacksonville Beach, FL 32250

Kate.oconnor.90@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wesley Cubby
133Starlake
Bloomingdale, NJ 7403

wecubb@optonline.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathryn Beck
56 WOakwood Dr
Carlisle, Pa 17015

kathrynbeckc@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alexis Wieck
6315 Lyndale Avenue South Apt 5
Richfield, MN 55423

Alexisnikol@live.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Bennett 104 Trotters Glen Baldwin, Ga 30511

csbennett@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shelly McGee
4562 Wilshire Circle
Tuscaloosa, AL 35405

bs.mcgee@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Johnson
1 Lane
Crystal Springs, MS 39059

tigerfan@telepak.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Veronica Turnage
5125 Old Canton Road Unit 206
Jackson, MS 39211

veronica.heeres@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joan Oatman
3950 Ginguite Drive
Corpus Christi, TX 78414

joatman0707@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lester Freeman
3 Raintree South
Natchez, Ms 39120

lfreeman618@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Denise Meyer
5141 Taylor Mill RD
Taylor Mill, KY 41015

dmeyer@aurgroup.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roger Lasch
2602 Poinsettia Dr
White Oak, Pa 15131

rogerrailbuff@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Schafer
7259 Redridge Dr.
Cleves, OH 45002

dmsdrummer@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

paula Luebbe
302 Brelsford Ave
Trenton, oh 45067

pluebbe@aurgroup.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peter Waters
6612 Edwards Road
Denton, TX 76208

peter@waters-online.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Aldridge
201 Aidan Drive
Orange, VA 22960

rick@wealthpreserversgroupllc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Berter
5580 WESTWOOD NORTHERN BLVD CONDO 7
CINCINNATI, Oh 45248

lberter@cinci.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Rochlis
100 Riverside Deive Apt. 8C
New York, NY 10024

srochlis@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vicki Strode
4633 S Evanston Ave
Tulsa, Ok 74105

lindolleys@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Maxine Fears
200 N Sepulveda Blvd
El Segundo, CA 90245

maxine.fears@ceteranetworks.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Melodie Rutledge
11570 East Old State Road 56
Scottsburg, IN 47170

mrbroady@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brenda Wilkins
1301 Ewing St.
Brenham, Tx 77833

jwilkinsr@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Strange
1808 Hartman Ave.
Louisville, Ky 40205

bstrange52@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Denice Diekman
111 Bonnie Blvd
Hudson, IA 50643

denidiek@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brenda Wilkins
1301 Ewing St.
Brenham, Tx 77833

jwilkinsr@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Jetel
11501 HERITAGE PATH
RICHMOND, Il 60071

jjetel@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Angelo Tripicchio
25 Stratford Green
Farmingdale, NY 11735-2544, NY 11735

tripica16@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tammy Flam
852 Red Barn Lane
Elgin, Il 60124

flamdenbosch@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Angelo Tripicchio
25 Stratford Green
Farmingdale, NY 11735-2544, NY 11735

tripica16@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elemer Smith
1208 West 27
Erie, PA 16508

elmer446@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Strange
1808 Hartman Ave.
Louisville, Ky 40205

bstrange52@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cynthia Riddick
45 Orchard terrace unit 2
Lombard, IL 60148

friddick45@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Louise Resnick
409 Cherry Creek Lane
Prospect Heights, IL 60070

louiseresnick@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Gallup
10746 Golden Ave
Byars, OK 74831

negallup@wildblue.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Wallarab
100 Hastings Mill Rd
Streamwood, Il 60107

mscristao@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ardean McCorkle
500 Holliday Lane
Euless, TX 76039

mcc501@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Catherine Thomas
21 Kingsmill Dr.
Felton, DE 19943

herbertthomas5401@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Odneal
809 Cypress Ct
Raymore, MO 64083

podneal@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynn Page
6574 Grove Park DR.
Hoschton, Ga 30548

lynnwpage@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kelsey Ammentorp
615 Juli Court
Schaumburg, Il 60193

Kelseybess@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Nicholson
8119 Turin Rd. 8119 Turin Rd.
Rome, NY 13440

anichol1@twcny.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Wasinger
747 Waverly Drive
Elgin, IL 60120

MikeWasinger@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Guilvia Garcia
134 West Broad Street
Shillington, PA 19607

warmhearts32@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

robert lynch
9750 north marina dr.
sebastian, fl 32958

rowbobrow@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nora Ziegler
11 S Brandywine St
West Chester, PA 19382

zieglers6@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Denise Costigan
221colonial ave.
Moorestown, Nj 8057

Colonial221@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dianne Guest
900 N Wilkinson pkwy
Park Ridge, Il 60068

disnne@thehouseguests.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mel Griffin
917 GRAND OAKS Circle
College Station, TX 77840

griffinmel@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerry Fuller
3000 Joy Dr.
Kilgore, TX 75662

jfuller@cablelynx.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Bowers
352 Choctaw Estates Cr. 352 Choctaw Estates Cr.
Sherman, TX 75092

bowersp@grayson.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Denise Costigan
221colonial ave.
Moorestown, Nj 8057

Colonial221@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

robert lynch
9750 north marina dr.
sebastian, fl 32958

rowbobrow@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Angie Anderson
1010 High Meadow Lakes
Clarkesville, GA 30523

angelee@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Giorgi
31595 Blackfoot Rd.
Coarsegold, CA 93614

ronnyg@sti.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lora Armstrong
4306 W. Robinwood Dr
Muncie, In 47304

lilbugg_77@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George LaRoza
4 Hilltop Circle
Brookside, NJ 7926

g.laroza@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Samuel Watkins
7810 South D Street
Tacoma, Wa 98408

saw101@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ROBERT FORTNER
142 BROOKSPRINGS RD.
COLUMBIA, SC 29223

abfortner@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Kusske
11986 Portland Ave.
Burnsville, MN 55337

mbkusske@kusskefinancial.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Lasch
2602 poinsettia drive
White oak, Pa 15131

Calasch@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JOSELLE M. BARANSKI
281 BURCH AVENUE
BUFFALO, NY 14210

smrichardine@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Franklin Dunn
358 Glass Way
Rabun Gap, Ga 30568

lsd101@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Audrey D. O
39737 Rd. 274 # 37
Bass Lake, Ca 93604

diane1216@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James McPherson
114 Hartford Place
West Columbia, SC 29172

maryann.mcpherson@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cindy Van Gerpen
652 w 5th st
Sioux falls, Sd 57107

Cvangerp@amfam.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Darvin Dykes
10643 Kress Ave
Bloomfield, IA 52537

dc.cattle@live.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Matern
1928 Aztec Ct.
West Linn, OR 97068

cathmike@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elaine Jonas
9 Partridge Landing
Glastonbury, CT 6033

eej1121@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George Hier
563 S Palo Verde Way
Mesa, AZ 85208

hierarky@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Hunt
6 Somerset Dr
Windsor, CT 6095

lhunt85912@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerry Benhase
5089 Sugar Camp Road
Milford, oh 45150

missusben@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Swanson
380 Walleye Drive
Russellville, AR 72802

rswanson15@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Danyell Hurst
988 hilltop rd
Hartman, Ar 72840

Danyell0608@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George Hier
563 S Palo Verde Way
Mesa, AZ 85208

hierarky@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joyce Hier
563 S. Palo Verde Way
Mesa, AZ 85208

hierarky@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shannon Markle
2655 jefferson
Laramie, WY 82070

Shannon@marklefinancial.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Meo
2925 Coco Lakes Dr
Naples, FL 34105

jmeojr@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jay Johnson
206 Hideaway Lane
London, AR 72847

JayJ588@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Genevieve Judge
2901 E Cheryl Dr
Phoenix, AZ 85028

gmjudge@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eric Mackenbach
4581 Helston Ct
Columbus, OH 43220

emackenbach@wealthadvantagegroup.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Katherine Meo
2925 COCO LAKES DE
Naples, FL 34105

kmeo@meowealthmanagement.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marian Engler
P. O. Box 1126 27641 Parcells Rd. N. E.
Kingston, Wa 98346

embeneke113@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lorraine Howlett
6065 Jade Lane
Bridgeport, MI 48722

howlettl65@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Raquel LaFleur
9514 View High Drive
Kansas City, MO 64134

rlafleur@vsrfs.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gail Thiede
1255 Hathaway Circle
Elgin, IL 60120

gst2601@wowway.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Wagner
1224 Idaho Avenue
Erie, PA 16505

pitchpaps@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alissa Nest
12900 W 136th Street Apt. 201
Overland Park, KS 66221

nest.alissa@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ethan Hokanson
6050 Ridgecrest Lane Apt 512
Fort Worth, TX 76132

ehokey4@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cynthia Shotts
3788 Luth Drive East
Jacksonville Beach, Fl 32250

shottsd@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kimberly Teira
196 Village Green Ave
Saint Johns, Fl 32259

kteira123@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

DENNIS TYSL
821 N CARLYLE LANE
ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, IL 60004

dtysl@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Matthew Tramel
2040 W. Le Moyne St. Unit E
Chicago, IL 60622

mtramel3@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susanne Rivers
1403 Lorrai Dr
Winona, Mn 55987

riverssk@hbci.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Adams
1860 White Oak Drive, #313
Houston, Tx 77009

mrsplash64@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

joel swaim
809 verbena wau auburn, ga 30011

redalert42@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laura Simon
63 Holly Cove
Mount Laurel, NJ 8054

laura72259@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Stone
2506 N. Spring Meadow Wichita, Ka 0

medstone@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WILLIAM WARD
5 HILL STREET
NORWALK, CT 6850

WDW001@MSN.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerry Atkins
330 CR. 4490
Ozone, Ar 72854

jatkins@centurytel.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dennis Browne
604 brisbain lane
Enola, Pa 17025

Denny.browne@capitalviewwealth.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jody Taylorsmith
1016 Harbor Drive
Delray beach, FL 33483

Jodytaylorsmith@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Akins
32 Suncrest Drive
Cabot, AR 72023

rakins@cebridge.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carl Erickson
2538 E. Desert Cove Ave.
Phoenix, AZ 85028

joe.erickson@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Chris Brickheimer
924 Kent Street
Wausau, WI 54403

Chris.Brickheimer@Siionline.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Walker
6337 Forest Grove Rd
Parsonsburg, MD 21849

Mwalkernp@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dan Murphy
505 Magnolia Ave
Brielle, NJ 8730

Mmurphyan@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

