Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrea Dietz
11216 Xavier Court
Bloomington, MN 55437

dtza02@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol R. Lawrence
1535 Cortz Lane NE
Atlanta, GA 30319

annrmdk@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Theresa Piatek
823 Lynn Street
Central City, PA 15926

tfroggie_2@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Darsey
5809 Whitman Ave
Fort Worth, TX 76133

sdarsey@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa Noble
300 Barclay Court
Abingdon, MD 21009

llnoble@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Restall
103 Peoria Avenue
Cheektowaga, NY 14206

jrestall@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

j butler
W4216 Horn Rd
Hilbert, Wi 54129

watrmarkbb@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Van Grouw
909 N Kianis Av
Sioux Falls, SD 57104

dvangrouw@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dan Seemann
3309 Trevelyan Ave
Manhattan, KS 66503

dseemann@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Justin Garnhart
5373 Blackthorn Dr.
Rockford, IL 61107

jgarnhart3@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kimberly Lindquist
4838 Oak Ridge Drive
Hermantown, MN 55811

Kadl@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gregory Mummert
1280 BLOOD RD
COWLESVILLE, NY 14037

amflyer336@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Colleen Mummert
1280 BLOOD RD
COWLESVILLE, NY 14037

amflyer336@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Canary
1341 bull horn loop
Roundrock, Tx 78665

Acanary@austin.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Konstantinos Arapidis
21-62 41st street
Astoria, NY 11105

Tarapidis@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Melissa Williams 926 west boone street belvidere, il 61008

melissal_rn@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynn Mueller
2606 River Hills Drive
Burnsville, Mn 55337

Lynnie_oo@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Samantha Smith
2051 Anjali way
Unit 1 machesney park, Il 61115

Sammie.l.smith@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peter Lotzer
1821 Camp Ave
Rockford, Il 61103

plotzer@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brandie Messer
206 Morningstar ct
Stillman valley, Il 61084

Brandie.messer@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lori Barum
7576 Casey Parkway
Prior Lake, MN 55372

Cupboards@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Pinzon
7623 Airport Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90045

swim4me@dslextreme.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

LINDA Maresh
17337 E. Kansas Pl
Aurora, CO 80017

lm1969@ymail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kurt Gahan
732 Green Street
Boonton, NJ 7005

KwgBoonton@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Gorski
4464 Trails Dr
Sarasota, FL 34232

tgnl12@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

kenneth GRIMM 4150 No 252nd Street
waterloo, ne 68069

kgrimm2018@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rick Thiernau
23942 S. State Line Road
Crete, IL 60417

dgrick@thiernaufinancial.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Krista Curran
12242 Woodbend Court
Jacksonville, FL 32246

krista.curran@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Virginia Herring
6619 Christie Road
Columbia, SC 29209

kats2luv@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephanie Koontz
2074 Dennis Ln
Bethlehem, PA 18015

stephanieshayy@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Disher
449 Hoffer Street
Port Charlotte, Fl 33953

jamesdisher1@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Frahm
1137 N Court
Ottumwa, Ia 52501

mlfrahm2@netscape.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Herbert Kaemmer
101 Sparks Circle
Lansdale, PA 19446

Hkaemmer@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Patton 2751 Murray Ave.
Bensalem, PA 19020

Rfp8189@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carl Meck
135 Old Topton Rd.
Mertztown, PA 19539

deweysplatz@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margaret Devine
73107 Delaire Landing Road
Philadelphia, Pe 19114

devinepeg@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Maria Sirolli
2137 Kenmore Ave
Glenside, Pa 19038

Msirolli@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marjorie Weiss
1015 Riverview Lane
West Conshohocken, PA 19428

Mandrweiss@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Veneziano
3938 Stevenson Street
Philadelphia, Pa 19114

Gerriebob@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Ritvalsky
176 Swamp Creek Road
Gilbertsville, Pa 19525

ritvalsk@ceinetworks.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nelson Zamora
1962 Shenandoah lane
Saint Charles, Il 60174

Nelson.zamora@ppmamerica.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nelson Zamora
1962 Shenandoah lane
Saint Charles, Il 60174

Nelson.zamora@ppmamerica.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joyce Burns
134Sandpiper Lane
Thorofare, Nj 8086

Diapima@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Engelhardt
216 Hopewell Drive
Collegeville, PA 19426

Jo.john@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Ammarell
247 Chestnut St
Spring City, PA 19475

cbamonty@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Goldstein
1054 Corn Crib Dr
Huntingdon Valley, PA 19006

sharongoldstein@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Josephine Engelhardt
216 Hopewell Drive
Collegeville, PA 19426

Jo.john@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Carangi 109 Woodlea Ter.
Lansdale, PA 19446

Carangi22@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

donald chamblee
360 ferness
pittsburg, ca 94565

chambdm@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

donald chamblee
360 ferness
pittsburg, ca 94565

chambdm@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

mae snowden 2237 Elwood Lane normal, Il 61761

mae.snowden@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

dawood ghauri 2397 pine rd huntington valley, pa 19006

dghauri005@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Erasmo Teran
PO Box 556
Florence, AZ 85232

eteran@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Duanne Cerbone
5236 Witherspoon ave
Pennsauken, Nj 8109

Dance1anda2@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Josephine Schast
919 Spring View Drive Southampton, PA 18966

jscat1211@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Catherine Fennell
32 Clearfield Ave.
Norristown, PA 19403

fennell@rosemont.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynne Davis
39202 Delaire Landing Rd.
Philadelphia, PA 19114

Lynzee1453@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Betty Taylor
781A Bering Dr
Houston, TX 77057

bettyhtaylor@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomasina White
1403 72nd Avenue
Philadelphia, PA 19126

blancothom@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Capri Janik
54 Mermont Circle
Darby, PA 19023

janik.capri@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Perry Lesher
11570 SW Fieldstone Way
Port Saint Lucie, FL 34987

perlesh@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gail Linenberg
34 Magnolia Place
Philadelphia, PA 19115

glin18@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Szasz
25 cypress point court
Blackwood, Nj 8012

Shastev@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Hegeman
1000 Conestoga Road #C364
Bryn Mawr, PA 19010

mbhegeman@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

DIANA METELSKI
8620 E 26TH PLACE
YUMA, AZ 85365

DMETELSKI@HOTMAIL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerry Gerk
5880 S Gemstone Dr.
Chandler, AZ 85249

jdgerkcpa@prodigy.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Krakovsky
3215 Laramie Drive, SE
Atlanta, GA 30339

ekrakovsky@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shirley Miles
1810 Miles Mill Pond Road
Elgin, SC 29045

elginms@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cathy Combs
2622 670th Rd
gordon, NE 69343

cathytrn98@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Pearson
1788 Crimson Oak Drive
Draper, UT 84020

Dave@peakfns.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Schaefer
707 Deercreek Ln
Leander, TX 78641

schaefer1007@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joyce Calentine
1614 State Route 41 NW
Washington C.H., OH 43160

tcalentine@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gayle Pierce
192 Wing Rd
Levant, ME 4456

gaylepierce62@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Travis Koon
255 Pintail Lake Dr.
Gilbert, SC 29054

travanna@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wendell Sutton
239 Jonesville Rd
Hilton Head, SC 29926

wsutton@hargray.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anthony Gerardi
15 Crescent Road
Old Bridge, NJ 8857

tonyger56@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Howard Harris
3 aries court manchester, nj 8759

harrish814@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Monette Sox
3065 Mineral Springs Rd
Lexington, Sc 29073

mtsox1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ralph Foster
1539 Brockwall Drive
Columbia, SC 29206

rkfiii@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

KATHERINE MEO
2925 COCO LAKES DR
NAPLES, FL 34105

KPRAYDICK@GMAIL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Deb Sample
524 Brookstone Circle
Madison, Ms 39110

dtsample@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Barry
4121 Hickory Ln
Sioux city, IA 51106

Shamrox14@cableone.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

william Bailey
4229 legacy drive
Springdale, AR 72762

BILL.BAILEY@TYSON.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Fred Van Valkenburg
4302 Rawleigh Dr.
Fort Worth, TX 76126

v_sqrd@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Alex
6835 flagstone way
Flowery Branch, GA 30543

Garybalex@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Pamela Barry
4121 Hickory Ln
Sioux city, IA 51106

Pamelakaybarry@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Matthew Pontes
3602 Columbia St
San Diego, CA 92103

matthew.pontes@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Angela Kneip
1380 Turnberry Ave
Le Mars, IA 51031

akneip@bodeansbaking.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph marciano
1050 Lea Rd
Collegeville, Pe 19426

jmarciano@marcianowealthadvisors.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Matthew Pontes
3602 Columbia St
San Diego, CA 92103

matthew.pontes@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Matthew Pontes
3602 Columbia St
San Diego, CA 92103

matthew.pontes@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shirley Evans
7631 El Pastel Dr
Dallas, TX 75248

Saentx@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bonnie Arens
323 Beck Ave
Remsen, IA 51050

barens@bodeansbaking.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

June Lynn Heitmeyer
4256 admirable dr
Ran cho PV, Ca 90275

Redddawg12@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Settle
14 Par View Drive
Wimberley, Tx 78676

cwsettle@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kohn Grear
2746 n memorial dr
New castle, IN 47362

Johngrear@icloud.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Derek Layne
1128 11 street
Santa Monica, Ca 90403

Derlay74@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alexander Ciullo
26 Bunning Drive
Voorhees, NJ 8043

Apciullo@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Huss
82 Aladdin Circle NW
Buffalo, MN 55313

cahuss@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Light
1847 Lauren cir
Southside, Al 35907

Mlight68@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charlia Harris
100 Greenhill Rd
Dayton, Oh 45405

charlia1@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charlia Harris
100 Greenhill Rd
Dayton, Oh 45405

charlia1@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steve McIlvaine
4573 Airlie Way
Annandale, VA 22003

Steve@housessoldbysteve.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Evelyn Gonzalez
248 S. Houser Drive
Covina, CA 91722

prov161@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ida Curtis
634 Octave Street
D, MS 39540

strawberry10@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Ferguson
6523 CHARLESTON STREET
OAK FOREST, IL 60452

4fergis23@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Irene Esparza 3043 E. Redwood Ln.
Phoenix, AZ 85048

y303078@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anthony Edridge
1403 Snook Ct
Fort Collins, CO 80526

pt.edridge@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Maria Balagat
4215 E. Maya Way
Cave Creek, AZ 85331

unamulachula@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joanne Johnson
113 Mickie Dr
Brandon, MS 39042

Jojohnson99@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Harwood
8903 Windersgate
Olive Branch, MS 38654

mike.harwood@centurytel.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Kam
17 Sawgrass Ct
Hamburg, NY 14075

Dianekamdidi@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dean Mayes
30 Graves Rd.
Mechanicville, NY 12118

dean@alabu.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elisabeth Galea
4233 Kangaroo Court
Pinckney, MI 48169

chezquisine@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Kam
17 Sawgrass Ct
Hamburg, NY 14075

Dianekamdidi@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

DAVID LEE
N8405 NORTH SHORE RD
MENASHA, WI 54952

David@Stonehavenwealth.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Burkard
4803 Graywood Ave
Long BEach, CA 90808

Gary.Burkard@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elizabeth Williams
5801 Mark St
Papillion, NE 68133

liz@iowafan.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Richardson
806 Judy Lane
Washington, MO 63090

annkeith@yhti.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Galea
4233 Kangaroo Court
Pinckney, MI 48169

chezquisine@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alan Ross
2707 E. Nance St
Mesa, AZ 85213

aross40@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Pearl Majdecki
4725 Windy Ridge Trail
Schertz, TX 78154

megdalinm@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Meghan Garnhart
5373 Blackthorn Dr.
Rockford, IL 61107

Mmericks6@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

dennis m holbrook 23580 success Rd saucier, ms 39574

tazz_h@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Johnson
15652 140th Pl SE
Renton, WA 98058

karenjoyp@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marcia Walsh
9818 Carmel Ct
Lone Tree, CO 80124

walshacres1@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stacy Johnson
140 Strandhill Road
Tyrone, Ga 30290

stacy_a_johnson@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald McAteer
6088 Foxmeadow Dr
Westerville, Oh 43081

dmmcateer@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Myers
128 Myers Ln
Florence, MS 39073

debbie718@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jan van Greuning
10937 Hunter Gate Way
Reston, VA 20194

Hennievg1@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Beall
1808 Palouse Street
Boise, Id 83705

mpbeall@cableone.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judy Bush
3584 Kings Hill Circle
Salt Lake City, UT 84121

jbush523@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Aubrey D. Grant
17807 North US Hwy 41
Lutz, Fl 33549

cmgadg@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rose Selko
3797 S Dayton St
Aurora, CO 80014

SELKOSTEVEROSE@YAHOO.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Selko
3797 S Dayton St
Aurora, CO 80014

SELKOSTEVEROSE@YAHOO.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Bujanovich 2245 Chippenham Ct.
St. George, Ut 84770

mbujanovich@bajabb.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Russell King
8339 Raptor Tr.
Lakewood, Il 60014

russkingassoc@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dan Johnson
4710 HickoryWay
Johnsburg, IL 60051

Dnjjohnson813@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elaine Pankiewicz
3017 W.Lincoln Rd
McHenry, IL 60051

epank@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bruce Burrow
21913 OConnell Rd
Marengo, IL 60152

burrow@mc.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joyce Krahenbuhl
12310 W Jadestone Drive
Sun City West, AZ 85375

joykra1948@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Krahenbuhl
12310 W Jadestone Drive
Sun City West, AZ 85375

rainewill@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynn Morrissey
113 Briarwood Drive
Gilberts, IL 60136

morrisseylynn@hotmail.,com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Mroczenski
14004 Davis Rd
Woodstock, Il 60098

jimccc47@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Grifka 12162 Sheffield Dr.
Warren, ML 48093

bngrifka@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Rockwood
1426 W. Cullom Ave.
Chicago, IL 60613

nancyrocky@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Lewis
1003 Caroline St
O, IL 62269

wlewis64@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeffrey Boos
6142 N Kedvale Ave
Chicago, Il 60646

info@hydraulicbargains.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Renee Savoy
11559 SW 70th Court
Ocala, FL 34476

rssavoy@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Fergus
760 Flint Trail
Crystal Lake, IL 60012

Rfergs@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Hilyard
240 W Suburban Ct
Fox Point, WI 53217

jhilyard01@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jenna Peters
838 Timber Dr
New Braunfels, TX 78130

jenna.elizabeth517@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Brown
6311 N 177th. Drive
Waddell, AZ 85355

nan85355@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lina Leyda
26232 Devonshire
Mission Viejo, CA 92692

playmusic869-web@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anne Newton
505 Parkview Cove
Brandon, MS 39047

Amarie3n1@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gordon Langland
28758 County Highway EW
Warrens, WI 54666

glangland@centurytel.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gail Vetter
106 Dome Rock Trial
Florissant, CO 80816

gailvetter@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jean Flynn
2945 Via Blanco
San Clemente, CA 92673

Sligogal@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jane Sturtevant
21264 n Red Hills Dr
Surprise, AZ 85387

Janesturtevant@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margaret Filo
3909 Roslyn Avenue
Kettering, OH 45429

pfilo@woh.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peggy Brandes
5758 Common Way Court
Indianapolis, IN 46220

raypeg2@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Virginia Boller
210 yosemite way
Denver, Co 80230

Chris92069@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gregory Schroeder
1572 Rio Grande Drive
Reno, NV 89521

schroedergregory@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Virginia Lampton
119 Virginia St.
Bellingham, Wa 98225

lglamp2@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Turnage
5125 Old Canton Road Unit 206
Jackson, MS 39211

scottandveronica2014@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Francesca Climer
345 I Street
Los Banos, Ca 93635

manzanita63@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carole Kane
2726 E Newberry Blvd
Milwaukee, Wi 0

ckane2000@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Monica Cooper
21561 461st Ave
Volga, SD 57071

mcooper@itctel.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roger Schoumacher
713 Garfield St.
Fort Collins, CO 80524

schoumacher@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joyce Vista-Wayne
14301 Elmcrest Court
Clive, IA 50325

hsggg212@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bridget Martin
5027 Asteria St
Torrance, CA 90503

bridgetmmartin@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Martin
Richard Martin
5027 Asteria St, CA 90503

rbsrmartin@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynn Barge
1012 W. 14th Street
Grove, OK 74344

lynn_barge@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

April Collins
1128 Winfield Avenue
Cincinnati, OH 45205

april.collins@duke-energy.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ron Johnston
234 N. Green Avenue
New Richmond, WI 54017

ronndi13@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kim Aston
1407 W. Evanston
Wichita, KS 67204

astonkim40@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Louis Eftink
508 Lincoln
Sedgwick, Ks 67135

lou@dbcinc.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Trzaski
11 Silver Pond Rd.
Wolcott, CT 6716

ctrzaski@precisionmethods.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dennis Getz
5 Barrister Pl.
Lancaster, PA 17601

dagetz@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Rosenblatt
137 Thistle Pond Drive
Bloomfield, CT 6002

csr99@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rob Sondreal
1360 Ohio Ave SW Huron, SD 57350

robsondreal@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patrick Maxwell
9071 Hwy 51
Wesson, MS 39191

mmax46@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Chang
14212 LIVINGSTON ST
TUSTIN, CA 92780

dbcsfc@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laura Shanahan
PO BOX 246
HINTON, IA 51024

ljshanahan@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laurie Lake
27695 C60
Hinton, IA 51024

laurielake10@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

julie Lee 10598 Hawthorn Trail
Woodbury, MN 55129

Jclee3767@netscape.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eulis Brown
6112 Waverly Dr.
Jackson, MS 39206

ebrojr@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jodi Arellano
3400 Central Ave. #335
Riverside, CA 92506

Jodiarellano@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Duanne Cerbone
5236 Witherspoon ave
Pennsauken, Nj 8109

Dance1anda2@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Les Stoddard
1364 sciortino ct
Brentwood, Ca 94513

Leswanda@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Betty Taylor
781A Bering Dr
Houston, TX 77057

bettyhtaylor@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Cragg
9633 Sheraton Rd.
Pittsburgh, PA 15237

teacher2498@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Raymond Lui
20410 meadow pond place montgomery village, md 20886

jslui@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Raymond Lui
20410 meadow pond place
montgomery village, md 20886

jslui@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Dowling
164 Kentucky Ave
Mays Landing, NJ 8330

Jdowl610@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jacqueline Lovenworth
920 N. Lawrence St
Philadelpji, Pa 19123

Jlovemolly@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gloria Warner
236 Cressmont Avenue
Blackwood, NJ 8012

tibbott2@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Thompson
425 PR 2367
Mt. Pleasant, TX 75455

johnbeththompson@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Harold McCue
2623 Mohawk Circle
West Palm Beach, FL 33409

halmccue@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrew Melnick
182 Nobscussett Rd.
Dennis, MA 2638

drewm45@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kelli Woods
305 Kings Croft
Cherry Hill, NJ 8034

Kwoodspch@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Geraldyn Foster
P.O. Box 395
Oceanville, NJ 8231

Wf609nj@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Deborah Bausch
505 Ninth Street
Danville, PA 17821

Abausch290@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frances Thomas
2725 West Cabot Street
Philadelphia, PA 19121

franbowens5@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Curt Mosel
3840 Oakwood Trail
Allentown, PA 18103

hem153@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Hawes
201 E Decatur Street
Broken Arrow, OK 74011

dhawes@valornet.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

joan goggin
4 bishop path sandwich, MA 2563

jmg4col@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joanna Shomper
3806 Oak Drive
Philadelphia, PA 19136

shomp3@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kim Meiss
2016 Mountain Road
Catawissa, PA 17820

kmeiss@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ida Wiener Moss
2401 Pennsylvania Av. Apt. #19-B-23
Philadelphia, PA 19130

no.techno.phobe@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Fitzgerald
21 Wilburforce way
Oak BLUFFS, MA 2557

rfitzgerald@mvyps.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Fitzgerald
21 Wilburforce way
Oak BLUFFS, MA 2557

rfitzgerald@mvyps.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Florio
1304 Cornell Street, Longview,TX 75601
Longview, TX 75601

cornellcats@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Culbetson
43 McCoord Woods Drive
Fairport, NY 14450

jculbert@frontiernet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Lessard
4 Emory Street
Brockton, Ma 2301

jrlessard@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joann Sullivan
1600 Hagys Ford Rd 9V
Penn Valley, PA 19072

sullivan_joann@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gail Dubin
241 Harrogate road
Wynnewood, Pa 19096

raleighra@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Audie Apple
80cr2031 Box 562
Klondike, Tx 75448

coachapple99@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Doris Stephan
102 Terry Meadows Drive
Waterville, NY 13480

Dns193-@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Rademacher
7314 S Grand Arbor Court
Sioux Falls, SD 57108

carolr@tmstime.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol jacobson
299 Levee Trail
Dakota Dunes, SD 57049

Cjjat299Levee@longlines.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laura Provencher
4263 S Church Rd
West Bend, WI 53095

lauraprovencher@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Stevens
6836 Coyote Run
Sioux City, IA 51106

john@blankenshipmeier.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Haley
4847 Singing Hills Blvd
Sioux City, IA 51106

barb.haley@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Folgate
2240 NW Michelle Drive
Corvallis, or 97330

mfolgate@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Timothy Provencher
4263 S Church Rd
West Bend, WI 53095

tim.provencher@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Barnes
8275 Lavender Ln
Riverside, CA 92508

Sbarnes656@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Ventura
8 Turret Drive
Monroe Twp, NJ 8810

eventura@thegrapeescape.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Polak
32 Mountain Ridge Drive
Oxford, NJ 7863

canddpolak1203@embarqmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jack Graham
43 Shady Cove
Dadeville, AL 36853

jackp29947@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Anderton
1604 Calming Water Drive
Fleming Island, FL 32003

williamanderton@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Idella Folgate
2240 NW Michelle Drive
Corvallis, OR 97330

ifolgate@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Barnes
8275 Lavender Ln
Riverside, CA 92508

Sharibarnes10@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Brixey
5850 W Robinson Way
Chandler, AZ 85226

barbbrix@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Virginia DeHaan
1625 Tulip Tree Ln
West Des Moines, IA 50266

ginnidehaan@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eleanor R Smith
7126 Firmament Ave
Van Nuys, CA 91406

ersmith@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Beneta Usechek
106 Carrol road
Saint Charles, Il 60174

Beneta_usechek@@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Louis Gerstmar
1030 Fox Hound Rd
Vacaville, CA 95687

gerstmar2@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jo Martin
3309 Woodlyn Hills Dr
Erlanger, Ky 41018

martin3309@twc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John O
7 The Spout
Smithtown, NY 11787

janapr49@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gina Claywell
4101 Grimes Cove
Buckner, KY 40010

mglkclay@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Kaiser
1049 Lawton Rd
Park Hills, Ky 41011

pdkaiser4@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rusty Cromer
1353 Gleneagles Place
Lawrenceburg, IN 47025

rxcromer@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peter Ringenary
117 Treeline Dr.
Deptford, NJ 8096

Pringenary@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shelly Crain
3 Times Square #215-2
Elgin, Il 60120

saturn929@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

victor H. Carrillo
1222 monte sereno ave.
CHULA VISTA, CA 91913

drvictorh@carrillo.sdcoxmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Curtis Lear
1131 S PRINCE ST
PALMYRA, PA 170783543

curt.lear@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Darrel Scarff
1The Mews, Franklin Street
Geneva, IL 60134

pscarff1@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Emme Grimm
P O Box 55875
Houston, Tx 77255

emmegrimm@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Hilyard
240 W Suburban Ct
Fox Point, WI 53217

jhilyard01@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kimberly Jan Mooney
1570 Heatherwood Drive
Decatur, Ge 30033

kjanmooney@yahoo.ie

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eileen Dolbee
3955 N 33rd St
Galesburg, MI 49053

edolbee@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Gonye
104 Dover Road
Mashpee, Ma 2649

segonye@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carolyn Stump
400 S Scouller
Wichita, KS 67209

sstump3@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dennis Vercauteren
P.O. Box 460
Bloomingdale, IL 60108

dennis@bilmarcompany.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Frangipane
124 Willow Drive
Easton, PA 18045

joseph_frangipane@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Venessa Van Schalkwyk
164 Berryville place
Saint Charles, Mo 63304

Venessavs@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kurt Albertsen
51 Burning Bush Trail
CRYSTAL LAKE, IL 60012

kalbertsen1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Meyer
622 Hingham Lane
Schaumburg, IL 60193

hottubgirl60193@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ruth zabielski
2005 fernwood ln.
mc henry, il 60051

jacknruthz@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jonah Cope
5536 Quercus grove rd
Edwardsville, IL 62025

Thecopers@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jonah Cope
5536 Quercus grove rd
Edwardsville, IL 62025

Thecopers@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Annette Ray 190 Course Drive
Lake in the Hills, IL 60156

Amr@bobray.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel Monge
3013 Liberty Lane
Lindenhurst, IL 60046

dmonge@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Anderson
47229 Rhonda Av.
Sioux Falls, SD 57108

axeleinar46@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Maida Neschleba
706 Carl Street
Endicott, NY 13760

maidamark@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George Bednar
3818 Olivo Ct.
Camarillo, CA 93010

g.mabednar@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George Bednar
3818 Olivo Ct.
Camarillo, CA 93010

g.mabednar@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jim Qualls
2420 Cat Tail Pond
Johns Island, So 29455

jamesqualls@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Qualls
2420 Cat Tail Pond
Johns Island, So 29455

jamesqualls@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Kauffman
1026 14th #B
Santa Monica, ca 90403

thepilot@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Scarff
1 The Mews, Franklin St.
Geneva, IL 60134

pscarff1@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven MCCOy
10776 West Skycrest Street
Boise, ID 83713

McCoyjs@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Melinda York
9819 Melody Drive
Union, KY 41091

myork1976@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tim LoDolce
220 Boulder Ct.
Gilberts, IL 60136

timlodolce@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Doanld Jayne
3611 Dunkirk Dr
Oxnard, CA 93035

dj@executive-financial.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bianca Whalen
5922 n Milwaukee ave Unit 2
Chicago, IL 60646

Biancawhalen1104@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharna Baumgart
300 Rose Hill Lane
Richmond, IN 47374

BLTaffey@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joe Baumann
2597 Buttermilk Pike
Villa Hills, KY 41017

jdbaumann.nky@twc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven McCoy
10776 West Skycrest Street
Boise, Id 83713

McCoyjs@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathy Surette
171 Locksley Rd
Lynnfield, Ma 1940

kathysurette@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

sharon olson
20 Kansas Ave
Babson Park, Fl 33827

olsoncheek@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

sharon olson
20 Kansas Ave
Babson Park, Fl 33827

olsoncheek@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Dickhoner
5300 Hamilton Avenue Unit 1209 5300 Hamilton Avenue Unit 1209
Cincinnati, Oh 45224

tdickhoner@fuse.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Zukowski
3510 Oaks Way #708
Pompano Beach, Fl 33069

mzukowski62@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Gift
9 Bittersweet Dr.
Hagerstown, MD 21740

bgift@myactv.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ray Gabriel
290 N Water St.
Batavia, IL 60510

Ray.gabriel@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

william LEE
808 mesa vista dr
Farmington, NM 87401

billstoyshop@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Georgia Peone
4805 Reservation Rd
Ford, wa 99013

georgiapeach1014@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Annmarie Glinski
1035 Alpena Rd
Philadelphia, PA 19115

cookiekare@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Simmons
2184 Estela Dr.
El Cajon, CA 92020

wasimmons1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrew Drajus
709 Whitesail Drive
Schaumburg, Il 60194

cowboybob90@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Neas
735 E WALNUT ST
KUTZTOWN, PA 19530

kdneas@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Suzanne Karolcyk
42386 Myan Gold Drive
Brambleton, VA 20148

Suzanne.C.Karolchyk@leidos.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Watkins
3030 memory lane
Mckeesport, Pa 15133

Jenniferlwatkins@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robin Hollis
3123 Wiltshire Drive
Avondale Estates, GA 30002

Robinhollis233@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Virginia Schroeder
1572 Rio Grande Drive
Reno, NV 89521

gs2_ivory@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kim Anderson
13256 Spica Dr.
Lonetree, CO 80124

Kanderspa1@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sirenia Deantes
3618 Ivy Street
East Chicago, IN 46312

manateeou812@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Randy Campbell
9211 arbor Glen St.
Las Vegas, NV 89123

rfc1218@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kim Swalboski
2269 Marginella Drive
Reston, VA 20191

kswalboski@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Lampton
119 Virginia St
Bellingham, Wa 98225

lglamp2@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brenda Campbell
9211 Arbor Glen St.
Las Vegas, NV 89123

byc1953@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Fletcher
3910 Branch Creek Court
Zionsville, IN 46077

markfletcher@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Buckner
18804 Dorman Road
Lithia, fl 33547

dennis.buckner@ringpower.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karl Stuhlmann
1006 BLACK OAK RIDGE RD
WAYNE, NJ 7470

BudMan523@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel Swacina
305 Falcon Ridge Dr
Fayetteville, GA 30214

dswacina@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janine Musick
6205 Hwy 95 North
Potlatch, ID 83855

jncmusick@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frank Dunaway
8010 kings Ct
Rowlett, TX 75089

Fsdunaway4@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ken Williamson
2315 Blue Stone Hills Dr
Harrisonburg, VA 22801

williamsonkn@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Canfield
52 Second Street
Troy, NY 12180

jbc1140@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerome Morrissey
59 Innsbrook Court
Stafford, VA 22556

morrisseyjm@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michele D
2444 84th street 2nd Floor
Brooklyn, NY 11214

cdagosto730@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elisabeth D
35 Northgate
Simsbury, CT 6070

efdagosto@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Carratello
P.O. Box 708 (mailing) 54210 Marian View
Idyllwild, Ca 92549

carratello@greencafe.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tracey Tibbs
2330 Commercial Blvd Suite 500
State College, Pa 16801

tracey.tibbs@homeinstead.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Feigel
34 Julia Rd.
Tolland, CT 6084

gene.feigel@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Scholl
2049 Selva Marina Dr.
Atlantic Beach, FL 32233

accidentals@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathie Trover
2182 Buchanan Ave
Sgt Bluff, IA 51054

kttrover@sterkfinancialservices.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathy Plueger
1468 110th Street
Sioux City, Ia 51108

kathyp4853@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Justin Nudi
22930 Nowlin St.
Dearborn, Mi 48124

jtnudi@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

shawn newsome 118 harvey cir canton, MS 39046

s_f_n2000@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Dewey
138 Park Place Ave.
Mukwonago, Wi 53149

cdewey@wi.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ruth Gray
1720 Krucker Rd.
Hamilton, OH 45013

rgray@aurgroup.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Matt Klemme
404 Baywood Drive
Sergeant Bluff, IA 51054

klemmem@longlines.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathy Plueger
1468 110th Street
Sioux City, Ia 51108

kathyp4853@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ron Coverston
19232 Red Bluff Drive
Portola Hills, Ca 92679

rcoverston217@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steve Desellem
8095 c Holland ct
Arvada, cc 80005

Skdesellem@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Picollo
109 St Davids Rd
Cherry Hill, NJ 8002

Johnpico@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Dubin
241 Harrogate Road
Wynnewood, Pa 19096

raleighra@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephanie Krug
820 merion square rd
Gladwyne, PA 19035

Krugs@lmsd.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Celestine Welcome
819 Yeadon Avenue
Yeadon, PA 19050

CWelcome@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Lessard
4 Emory Street
Brockton, Ma 2301

jrlessard@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gail Dubin
241 Harrogate Road
Wynnewood, Pa 19096

raleighra@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charlotte Clark
411 Sonora Lane
Sicklerville, NJ 8081

CLARKJC@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Lessard
4 Emory Street
Brockton, Ma 2301

jrlessard@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Philhower
1119 Constitution Ave. NE
Washington, DC 20002

japhilhower@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Martin
405 Pillow Avenue
Cheswick, PA 15024

gus405@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jess Dowdy
1918 Greenridge Ct
Abilene, TX 79602

we5dowdys@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

john sacher
15 north cliffe drive wilmington, de 19809

bruzsock@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Mandell
4 Lafayette Circle
Media, PA 19063

whalehead@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

C. Epting
237 Rosewood Ave.
langhorne, Pa 19047

eptingfamily6@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roycie Roeder
2703 Heatherwood Dr.
Tampa, Fl 33618

Roycielynn@ALO.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Cannon
3612 Cedar Ridge Rd
Allison Park, PA 15101

dcannon@essnextier.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

veronica Cappelli
1207 Mercy St
Philadelphia, PA 19148

vcappelli1948@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Hernandez
24 Doe Run Drive
Warrington, Pa 18976

Casbeh@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Mitchell
102 Hilltop Court
Langhorne, Pa 19047

michylo13@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Beth Paschal
26 Andrew St #2R
Salem, MA 1970

bmp04@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Mitchell
4107 W. Oakellar Ave.
Tampa, FL 33611

robmitchell1@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lawrence Petrone
6190 Newtown Ave.
Philadelphia, PA 19111

petronelawrence@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven Lankford
PO Box 47
Defiance, PA 16633

johnlank@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jane Shepard
1400 East Austin
Nacogdoches, TX 75965

jane_shepard@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandy Kern
1140 Elwood Ave
Bensalem, PA 19020

Skern0713@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Phyllis Geisdorf
912 Nathaniel Trail
Warwick, PA 189746146

geisdorfp@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Irene Zamitis
408 Ridge Ave
Glendora, NJ 8029

gdanes@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Zamitis
408 RIdge Ave.
Glendora, NJ 8029

gdanes@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gareth Glaser
3307 Gorse Ct.
Palm Harbor, FL 34684

loganwood@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brenda Tilley
12 cypress ave
Shrewsbury, Ma 1545

Tilbma@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Bauernhuber
1100 Albatross ct
Forked river, Nj 8731

Snowbeach5@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kimberly Wombough
314 Bloomfield Ave
Warminster, Pa 18974

Rwombough@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Deborah Anderson
8438 E. 5th St.
Tucson, AZ 85710

deb-anderson@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbra Demmer
3400 Fox Hollow Drive
Orlando, FL 32829

demmer89@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carole Dazzo Derrig
1007 Peregrine Way
Hampshire, IL 60140

caroledazzo@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Norman Peck
256 Arbor Ln.
Bloomingdale, IL 0

npeck1@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard McCallister
800 Prairie Ridge Drive
Woodstock, IL 60098

RB@HardingRealEstate.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Beverly Keeney
601 S Juniper St
Gardner, KS 66030

hearts@kc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Kerrins
553 Mountsin Ave
Revere, Ma 2151

Kkerrins@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Schaefer
3140 W 38th Ave
Denver, CO 80211

john.schaefer@colorado.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sydney Arner
13910 E Placita Propia
Vail, AZ 85641

sarner41@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brenna Hasty
1808 NW 5th St
Bend, OR 97703

behasty83@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eugene Krutsch
5529 Leighaven Way Pinsoñ, AL 35126

ewkrutsch@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Magdalene Tom 1951 42nd Ave
San Francisco o, CA 94116

maggietom2000@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Burchett
3673 Peregrine Way
Elgin, IL 60124

amy@toolingsolutions.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Geoffrey Moore
191 Weatherstone
Copley, Oh 44321

gmoore@geminixing.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Irene Poirier
5207 Pine Shadow Lane
North Port, Fl 34287

irenegpoirier@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Katheryn Keller
524 E. Victoria Street
Santa Barbara, CA 93103

katheryn.keller@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mike McCormick
729 Noble St
Indianapolis, IN 46203

mike@cpamccormick.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Smith
2466 S. Law St.
Allentown, PA 18103

dmsmithgr4@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Kail
424 Morewood Avenue
Pittsburgh, PA 15213

kail@cmu.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joanne Cook
105 Red Fox Place
Media, PA 19063

Joannecook@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eileen Dwell
1919 Chestnut St Apt 2201
Philadelphia, Pa 19103

Eileendwell@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Saunders
5941 Woodbine Avenue
Philadelphia, PA 19131

hstry47@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Emma Rodesku
133 East Haddon Ave
Oaklyn, NJ 8107

crodesky@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alice Jones
225 Furnace LN
New Florence, PA 15944

bajones234@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Kirwan
65 Monson Road
Wilbraham, Ma 1095

jkirwan1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kristin Kirwan
65 Monson Road
Wilbraham, Ma 1095

kirwan96@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tina Troup
2670 Morel Dr
Highland, MI 48356

tinatroup@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Bentz
7122 Stuart Rd
King George, VA 22485

velcro@va.metrocast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Theresa E Wild
70 N Bath Ave, Apt 3
Long Branch, NJ 7740

twild.70@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas Favaro
13816 E Bridges Rd
Elk, WA 99009

d_favaro@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Teresa Ledbetter
3623 Mason Ridge Drive
Winston, GA 30187

tml1062@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Fiebelkorn
8985 Laketown Rd
Chaska, mn 55318

fiebelkorn1@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

LuAnn Crist
6981 E. Staghorn Circle
Gold Canyon, AZ 85118

l.hauser@mchsi.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Colleen Mountford
31 Carey Drive
Woodstock, NY 12498

cmountford11@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel Paterson
6905 Clemson Dr.
Alexandria, VA 22307

danandshawnpat@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alisha Rosenthal
6813 Laurel Valley Drive
Fort Worth, TX 76132

Alisha@rrp.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Remedios Gonzales
2803 Pepperwood Dr.
Sugar Land, Tx 77479

rgv2803@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Mitchell
P.O. Box 367
Long Creek, SC 29658

kenrmitchell@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrew Postell
3131 Meadowbrook Dr
Fort Worth, TX 76103

drew_p01@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rhonda Schunk
2443 walker rd
Alexander, Ny 14005

Rschunk@frontiernet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mike Schunk
2443 walker rd
Alexander, Ny 14005

Mschunk@frontiernet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Kurtz
7255 Cherrix RD
Girdletree, MD 21829

john-n-nels@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

R.W.(Pete) Denicke
4474 Heathfield Trace
Suwanee, GA 30024

petedenicke@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Ricci
576 Beaver Creek Dr
Macedon, NY 14502

gsr@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Phyllis Denicke
4474 Heathfield Trace
Suwanee, GA 30024

phyllisdenicke@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Worland
715 S La Huerta
Green Valley, AZ 85614

dworland7@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Felger
2549 Allister Circle
Miamisburg, OH 45342

felgers@ameritech.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laura Grinsell
9233 Foster Rd
Downey, CA 90242

llgrinsell@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Adams
1872 North Clybourn, #607
Chicago, IL 60614

karen.adams@mdlz.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara T. Flockhart
3 Seal Harbor Road #837
Winthrop, MA 2152

flockhart@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Horn
6878 FM 1005
Kirbyville, TX 75956

larry.e.horn@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Cunningham
224 16th Ave
Grinnell, Ia 50112

chamd@iowatelecom.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Felger
2549 Allister Circle
Miamisburg, OH 45342

felgers@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Doris Binnion
135 Plaza Drive, Apt 301
Kerrville, TX 78028

doris.binnion@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brent Roylance
705 Sunset Cir.
Hyrum, UT 84319

lyroylance911@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susanne Gerardi
15 Crescent Road
Old Bridge, NJ 8857

s.gerardi18@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lorin Anderson
157 Gregg Parkway
Columbia, SC 29206

andregroup@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Augusto Pareja
PO Box 6165
McKinney, TX 75071

parejaaugusto@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brent Abbott
1 Stonehaven Dr.
Greenville, SC 29607

brent.abbott@hoffman-hoffman.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joscelyn Cofoid
4 Bridlewood Trail
South Barrington, Il 60010

jcofoid@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Stuppiello
558 Triangle Road
Gilbert, Sc 29054

Antoninas2@gamil.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Per Lea
3614 W8th st
Anacortes, Wa 98221

perlea37@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Augusto Pareja
PO Box 6165
McKinney, TX 75071

parejaaugusto@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Wooldridge
2033 parliament rd
Cayce, So 29033

mwooldridge@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Wooldridge
2033 parliament rd
Cayce, So 29033

mwooldridge@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Malcolm Long
974 Rawl Rd
Lexington, SC 29072

mwlongjr@windstream.ney

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Malcolm Long
974 Rawl Rd
Lexington, SC 29072

mwlongjr@windstream.ney

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jane Park
1460 North Lake Drive
Lexington, SC 29072

parkbanks@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bobby Smar
3096 Crow Mountain Rd
Russellville, AR 72802

bsmart10@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Williams
261 Rustic Lane
Russellville, AR 72802

jwill26@entergy.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Alvarez
6014 Ohern Street
Omaha, Ne 68117

malvarez6@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael E. Hall
4024 Pricetown Rd.
Fleetwood, PA 19522

wvmike@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diane Hayes
7 Colonial Pl
Centereach, NY 11720

dianehayes84@optonline.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Hensen-Jackson
212 Walleye Dr.
Russellville, AR 72802

lhjackson2@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dale Rinard
325 Kempton St. Apt. 1258
Spring Valley, CA 91977

Dalenan@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janna Hoiberg
9280 chetwood dr
Colorado Springs, Co 80920

Jmhoiberg@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Norbert Balko
1054 Redoak Dr
Harrison City, PA 15636

nb1054@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marvin Sox
234 Holly Road
Lexington, SC 29073

Marvinsox@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elaine Moseley
116 Orchard Place Ct.
Lexington, SC 29072

dande1969@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gail Pisut
24535 Emyvale
Plainfield, IL 60586

galockwood44@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

mike Powers
401 malton ct
lexington, So 29072

gnbasfshin@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Martha Robertson
1522 W. Andorra Dr.
Phoenix, AZ 85029

martymeemers@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brenda Smith
699 Corley Mill Rd
Lexington, SC 29072

brendaasmith@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Don Connor
3005 Eastlawn Drive
Columbia, SC 29210

djconnor@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Hall
4024 Pricetown Rd.
Fleetwood, PA 19522

susanhall13@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Roth
4200 Far Hills Road
Sioux City, Io 51104

amyjroth@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jim Bult
381 South Pitcher Street
Kalamazoo, MI 49007

james.a.bult@rrd.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Faye Williamson
426 Avenshire Court
Winnabow, NC 28479

faye_w_williamson@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Albert J. Grabish
635 Sourwood Dr.
Hatfield, Pa 19440

asgrab@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

W Kevin Hainsworth
19245 Dunbridge Way
Montgomery Village, MD 0

wkh1@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Luci Ferrin
809 8th Ave
Sibley, IA 51249

laferrin@rconnect.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Carratello
P.O. Box 708 (mailing) 54210 Marian View
Idyllwild, Ca 92549

carratello@greencafe.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michelle Deutsch
7851 Neida Dr.
West Chester, Oh 45069

mdeutsch@fuse.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Denise Fullerton Pryor
8720 N Dutchess Dr
Romeo, MI 48065

dlfpry@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steve Desellem
8095 c Holland ct
Arvada, cc 80005

Skdesellem@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

andrew palus
535 shirley ave franklin lakes, nj 7417

palus535@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Pamela Barry
4121 Hickory Lane
Sioux City, IA 51106

pamelakaybarry@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sonia. Grabish
635 Sourwood Dr.
Hatfield, Pa 19440

asgrab@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wendy King
11074 NW 5th Manor
Coral Springs, Fl 33071

info@wellnesswithwendy.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bradley King
4021 W 23rd St
Sioux City`, IA 51103

bradk@cableone.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin McGlynn
564 Academy St.
Ferndale, MI 48220

kevinm183@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

mike Powers
401 malton ct
lexington, So 29072

gnbasfshin@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Glenn Seibel
1223 Bemidji Ave
Bemidji, MN 56601

orion1223@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Grace Khan
5501 ridge crossing hanover park, il 60133

gracevkhan@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roxane Jude
327 N 134th St
Seattle, WA 98133

Rxejude@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tom Graves
3822 W Altadena Ave
Phoenix, Az 85029

Tgraves638@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JAMES WILFORD
901 S.RIVER RD.
FOX RIVER GROVE, IL 60021

james.wilford98@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Leverenz
7500 Flying Cloud Drive
Eden Prairie, MN 55344

scott@sleverenz.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carl Facciponte
86 Northwick Dr.
Rochester, NY 14617

Cfacciponte@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathryn Murphy
3040 Marvin Ct
Cross Plains, WI 53528

katem@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rob Tomasek
10408 North 10th Street
Phoenix, AZ 85020

tomahawk@mindspring.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel Scarbrough
123 Pepper Tree Lane
Madison, MS 39110

forgvn_4ever@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JAMES WILFORD
901 S.RIVER RD.
FOX RIVER GROVE, IL 60021

james.wilford98@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JAMES WILFORD
901 S.RIVER RD.
FOX RIVER GROVE, IL 60021

james.wilford98@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Monroe Lindler
180 highway 378
Lexington, S 29072

Monroelindler@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diane Johnson
2405 Archer Blvd
Orlando, FL 32833

djcollegebound@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Ormerod
143 E. Circle Dr
Lexington, SC 29072

ormerod@mindspring.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Toni L Norton
206 W Park Avenue
Selah, WA 98942

seraphtwo@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sue Bodum
5037 Oxbow Place
Champlin, Mn 55316

Suebodum@visi.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Adams
2251 Beech Creek Rd
Lexington, So 29072

nranadams@twc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marie Knabel
3230 Richard Ave
Louisville, KY 40206

msknabel@bellsouh.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Boyett
4572 West Erie St, Chandler AZ 85226 PO Box 1565, Mesa AZ 85210
Chandler, az 85226

hayden@azh2o.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gail Day
141 Point South Lane
Lexington, Sc 29073

Gailday@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

A Huff Jelks III
1065 Beaumont Ave
Birmingham, AL 35242

ahjelks@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

bill wilder
1256 mitchell rd.
rives, tn 38253

wilderbj1@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ruth Becker
5732 West 950 South
Kewanna, IN 46939

annbecker2@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Atephen Herd
427 Knightsbridge Lane
Hatfield, PA 19440

herd10@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Katie DiPiazza
7707 Westman Way
Middleton, WI 53562

kdipiazza12@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

joseph guthrie 1234 ed minor rd warrior, Al 35180

joepg1@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ron Hagelstein
4805 Briarwood apt. F201
Midland, TX 79707

rshagelstein@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

baligh abouchakra
6713 oakdale meadows ct mint hill, nc 28227

argili@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Feldman
1412 Colonial Manor Ct
Annapoils, MD 21409

joemfeldman@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ROBERT PADELLA
158 LONE DOVE LANE
WINFIELD, MO 63389

bobnorma@centurytel.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marshall Feldman
693 Faircastle Ave.
Severna Park, MD 21146

marshfeldman26@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rachel Gaydosh
6701 Mallards Cove Road Apt. 5E
Jupiter, Fl 33458

rachelamber.sharpe@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elizabeth Selkinghaus 161 Amberly Ct.
Columbia, SC 29212

selk830@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vicki Jacobs
30690 The Horseshoe
Winters, CA 95694

jacobsorchards@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sean Gross
2290 Chateau Way
Gering, NE 69341

seangross1967@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mattie Hambrick
599 KEARNE. Park Rd
Flora, MS 0

mattiehambrick3503@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Terry Sherwood
200 Martin Ridge Lane
Gainesboro, Tn 38562

sherwolv@twlakes.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Randall Darling
191 Fifth Ave.
Chardon, OH 44024

rgdarling@ayrshireinc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jason Ice
3003 Westchester Avenue
Ellicott City, MD 21043

jtice27@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rick Ratliff
12470 E 11750 N Rd
Beecher, Il 60401

Rratz51@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Danny Fetter
2232 N Evanston Av
Tulsa, Ok 74110

dfetter1950@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Reina Otero
2649 N Mozart Sr
Chicago, IL 60647

Oteror79@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Tabar
707 Maple Ave
Elsmere, KY 41018

lakesnake@excite.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Betty London
2008 S. Osceola Way
Denver, CO 80219

candblondon@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Kinney
3910 E Nighthawk Way
Phoenix, AZ 85048

captkny@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

MaryAnne Tindall
2234 Peachtree Lane
Northbrook, IL 60062

tindallm41@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Todd Henningfeld
17135 305th St
Sioux City, IA 51109

todd.henningfeld@3e-co.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eric Dare
298 Michael rd
Port Matilda, Pa 16870

Ericdare@pfginc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

RON SPURGEON
313 16TH PL UNIT B
COSTA MESA, CA 92627

rjspurgeon@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas R Bedard
6730 Raspberry Dr
New Port Richey, FL 35653

memeb65@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James A. Hill
2145 S. Dupont Hwy.
Dover, DE 19901

jhill@cambridgesecure.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy E Bedard
6730 Raspberry Dr
New Port Richey, FL 35653

memeb65@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Celina Burns
2015 W. Colorado Blvd.
Dallas, T 75208

Celina.burns@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Welty
2025 Beck Street
Sioux City, IA 51101

KWelty@CWSuter.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tom Paff
324 W 10th St
Charlotte, NC 28202

tjpaff@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Fairchild
2925 matthew circle
Monclova, oh 43542

scott.fairchild@dana.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph p. Marino
6934 W. 26th St.
Berwyn, Il 60402

jmarino328@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Keyton
2331 Taliesin Drive
Aurora, IL 60506

fresnarus@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Doyel
1825 East Shore Villas Dr. Unit #4 Bullhead City, Ar 86442

ddoyel@wisdirect.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Philip Hordiner
1W Edith Ave. B209
Los Altos, Ca 94022

phordiner@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Barker
626 Wilshire Blvd Suite 900
Los Angeles, CA 90017

michaelbarker@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Fayeanne Potts
10 Corte Comoda
Greenbrae, CA 94904

fpotts@prodigy.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Neff
129 Stonegate rd
Buffalo Grove, Il 60089

Reneff411@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerry Santiago
3833 round table ct
Land o lakes, Fl 34638

Safety2012@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christoph Schweiger
1310 N Hayden Rd
Scottsdale, AZ 85257

ckschweiger@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Kirchner
5932 E. Arcadia Lane
Phoenix, AZ 85018

kirchner@basin-and-range.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

robert griffin
1085 yorktown drive sunnyvale, CA 94087

griffinr90@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

vivian Arendt 10701 E Halley Dr. sun lakes, Az 85248

arendtviv@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Shingleur
406 Muscadine Ln.
Russellville, AR 72801

cshingle@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ian Santiago
3833 round table ct
Land o lakes, Fl 34638

Iansantiago@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rebecca Shaw
703 W GORDON AVE
SPOKANE, Wa 99205

bejaysee@Hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeff Gruter
2 Fox Ridge lane
Locust Valley, NY 11560

jg427@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Owen Killoran
6248 Mathew Circle
Burlington, KY 41005

allie_killoran@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bill Suchecki
2905 Cardinal Drive
Rolling Meadows, IL 60008

bigdogslug@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Rybka
1699 Brookwood Dirve
Akron, OH 44313

cheryl.rybka@valmarksecurities.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Benjamin Rymer
13619 Yukon St. NW
Andover, MN 55304

benjamin.rymer@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynda Toward 1902 N. 30th St.
Mount Vernon, WA 98273

sandyclaws321@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rebekah Walker
4310 Winderlakes Drive
Orlando, FL 32835

bekah91@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

August Runte
9500 Gallina Court
Atascadero, CA 93422

augustrunte@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

August Runte
9500 Gallina Court
Atascadero, CA 93422

augustrunte@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Maureen Suchecki
2905 Cardinal Drive
Rolling Meadows, Il 60008

bigdogslug@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laurel Hochstetler
6703 Giant Oaks Rd
Wonder Lake, IL 60097

jlhochstetler@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mel Heimann
977 Vossclare Drive
Breese, Il 62230

Myhei@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rebecca Mendoza
508 Tolteca Circle
Soledad, CA 93960

beckysark@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Manuel Mendoza
508 Tolteca Circle
Soledad, CA 93960

beckysark@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Zarabel Gonzalez
1617 Arnold Drive
Melbourne, Fl 32935

Zari1126@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Fleming
22340 Berry Drive
Salinas, CA 93908

riley_fleming@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tamrah Gutierrez
579 Echo Valley Road
Prunedale, CA 93907

casagutierrez@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel Hartnett
321 W. 3
Wayne, Ne 68787

Daniel_hartnett@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tammy Morgan
P.O. Box 9150
Midvale, u 84047

tammym@hct.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shannon Sanders
105 Skyview Drive
Lenhartsville, PA 19534

sdh3@ptd.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mel Heimann
977 Vossclare Drive
Breese, Il 62230

Myhei@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kurt Jefferson 504 East Bacon St.
Pottsville, Pa 17901

kdjsr56@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eileen Formeller
9018 Carmel Court
Spring Grove, IL 60081

eformeller@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ricardo Gonzalez
1617 Arnold Drive
Melbourne, Fl 32935

Rickcool1126@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sarah Kaelberer
4500 Wellington Lane N
Plymouth, MN 55442

Sarahk@business-estate.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Phyllis Gill
354 Kumquat St.
Fairhope, AL 36532

phyllisgill@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christ Kachiroubas 5803 Ethel Ave.
Crystal Lake, IL 60014

ckentpick@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Jensen
1040 Baywood Place 1040 Baywood Place
Salinas, Ca 93901

brokenfarmers@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Gawlik
1480 Lancaster Lane
Algonquin, IL 60102

drg63@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Scouten
5150 Highway 15 North Sumter, SC 29153

sscouten5150@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Coli
10003 Palmer Dr
Village of Lakewood, IL 60014

briancoli25@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Irwin
418 Patterson Street
King City, CA 93930

irwinkc@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Barry
224 Davis Ave.
Elkins, WV 26241

lcbarry49@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathy Hurst
1530 N Main Kingman, KS 67068

kathurst@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

donnie harmon
744 cr 3841 lamar, ar 72846

dharmon@entergycom

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennings Dobbs 968 Cliff Road
Russellville, AR 72802

jgdobbs@suddenlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Camp
52348 Silverleaf Ct.
Granger, IN 46530

Edwardfcamp@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Crystal Williams
7905 Pine Crossing Circle Apt. 718
Orlando, FL 32807

thecwilliams@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joe Clement
930 Walker St
Centerton, AR 72719

vikkijoe1@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brad Zittell
192 skokorat rd
Beacon falls, Ct 6403

Zittell@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janis Fraser
4480 N Territory Pl
Tucson, AZ 85750

jjfraseraz@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christopher Rand
1050 Twin Harbors Drive
Frisco, TX 75034

christopher.rand@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Murphy
505 magnolia ave
Brielle, NJ 8730

Murphy505@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Beatson
9100 Cascade Rd. SE
Ada, MI 49301

beatson@cideas.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bobby Bean
586 County road 3390
Clarksville, AR 72830

bbean@centurytel.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Valarie Smith
1731 N Linker Dr
Dover, AR 73837

Valariesmith2008@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Slover
4795 Quail Run Pl
Melbourne, Fl 32904

wkaslover@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Winterton
8730 Cedar Creek Rd
Louisville, KY 40291

David_winterton@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ellen Dunwoodie
4 Blair Ln
West Seneca, NY 14224

ewjdun@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Richards
1 Rainier circle
South Barrington, IL 60010

grichards1@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Earl Carlow
1911 W. Eastman Ct.
Anthem, Ar 85086

efc2005@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JoAnn Reynolds
2222 Pine Avenue
Gulfport, MS 39501

jljprint@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Bowey
39969 county road kill.5
Otis, CO 80743

Myjason1@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Bowey
39969 county road kill.5
Otis, CO 80743

Myjason1@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Bowey
39969 county road kill.5
Otis, CO 80743

Myjason1@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Danielle Schneider
30 Chantilly Pl
Fredericksburg, VA 22406

danibeat52@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Betchwars
17076 Deerwood Lane
Jordan, MN 55352

sbetchwars@frontier.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Sprafke
3777 Crow Mountain Rd.
Russellville, Ar 72802

ssprafk@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Jones
750 N. Ethlyn Rd.
Winfield, Mo 63389

bjones2244@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

C Skehan
Hc 33 box 47
Ronceverte, WV 24905

Skehanc@yahoo.co

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debra Brown
P.O. Box 130
Dallas Center, IA 50063

Debra.b14@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alice Thompson
10720 TrAfton Drive
Kettering, MD 20774

alicee301@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Gordy
411 Carpenter Lane
Philadelphia, PA 19119

lindag@childrensvillagephila.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Chuck Olson
116 Skyline Dr. Unit 4
Russellville, AR 72802

chuckaudrey@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Korsten
6265 SW 129PL 2302
Miami, FL 33183

djkorsten@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Teresa Kring
34 Ridgeline Drive West
Russellville, AR 72802

jogger232tk@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Todd
472 N. Pamela Wichita, KS 67212

bob.elaine@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stacy Phillis
1832 N Raven Circle
Mesa, Ar 85207

sphillis1@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jill Bissinger
982 Deer Run Rd
Centerville, OH 45459

jillbissinger@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carmen Korsten
6265 SW 129PL 2302
Miami, FL 33183

murphyjasper@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Adam Schwab
14277 Keyesport Landing
Fishers, IN 46040

adam.schwab@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

NANCY LININGER
271 Calle Higuera
CAMARILLO, CA 93010

nancy@liftburden.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shari ARMSTRONG
122 Charmont Dr.
Charleston, AR 72933

motherofnat@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Martha Schwartz
130 Tree Frog Ln
Santa Cruz, CA 95060

activist@cruzio.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Ward
823 Hollywood blvd
Crownsville, Md 21042

Carolward2010@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Woolf
5069 Waters Edge Way
Cooper City, FL 33330

rwoolf@woolffinancial.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Vance
808 N. Main St. Unit 118
Salinas, CA 93906

pavance1947@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jamey Kruczek
3811 w Lake Shore Dr
Wonder Lake, Il 60097

jameykruczek@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mike O
110 River Street
Hastings, MN 55033

hastingsmoc@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Josephine Lomanto
16 Cramden drive
Monterey, Ca 93940

jolomanto@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Bencker
906 Woodlawn Dr.
Lansdale, pa 19446

porsche18@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vincent DiVincenzo
11 Spur Ct.
Streamwood, Il 60107

vincentdivincenzo6364@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Divincenzo
11 Spur Ct
Streamwood, Il 60107

barbaradivincenzo@comcast.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas Devall
117 McArther Drive
Troy, IL 62294

djdevall@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Corie Devall
117 McArthur Drive
Troy, IL 62294

cmdevall@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John McConnell
1108 Crestview Road
Sterling, Il 61081

Jdmac@alumni.duke.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Ellis
14761 NW Wendy Ln.
Portland, Or 97229

bob@kelandscapedesign.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nadine Galante
52 Carlisle Road
Wayne, NJ 7470

nadinegalante@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gerald & Linda Michael 6473 Jennifer Ct
Liberty Township, OH 45044

lwm161264@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

craig falzone
5124 isle ave. n. lake elmo, MN 55042

falzonezone@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ne Evans
2228 Wharton Road
Glenside, Pa 19038

Npevans34@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kim Hyde
734 N.Harvey Lane
Eagle, ID 83616

kimhyde@cableone.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margaret Heverly
705 East Bald Eagle
Lock Haven, PA 177452206

mheverly1@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Martha Kelley
1115 High Lake View
Colorado Springs, CO 80906

kelley64@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George Morrrison
641 N. Woodlawn #20
Wichita, Ks 67208

gmorrison11@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gail Becker
928 N Walnut Ave
Arlington Heights, IL 60004

megabecker@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Becker
928 N Walnut Ave
Arlington Heights, IL 60004

mbeckersart2@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peter Mitchell
443 W. Johnson Dr.
Gilbert, AZ 85233

pfm335@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Aileen Bailey
410 CAPOTE PEAK DR
GEORGETOWN, TX 78633

aileensmith@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karl Gray
322 W. lake Street
Barington, IL 60010

karl.gray@ccomcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ruthann Mann
2879 Valley View Dr
Bath, Pe 18014

ruthannmann@rcn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Melissa Nielsen
601 W. 11th Ave. #1010
Denver, Co 80204

melis_nielsen@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Bishop
17 Washington Street
Manchester, Ma 1944

tbishop@thebishopcompanyllc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tom Bishop
100 Cummings Center - Suite 442P
Beverly, Ma 1915

tomoct08@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joan Bishop
17 Washington Street
Manchester, Ma 1944

jbishop@thebishopcompanyllc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joan Bishop
100 Cummings Center - Suite 442P
Beverly, Ma 1915

bishop_9@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Yvette Barber
6162 Antique Ct
Burlington, KY 41005

yabarber@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Connie Nixon
1206 Woodland Park Dr.
Garland, TX 75040

cnixon@trinitychristian.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Koss
240 laurel Lane
Ponte Vedra Beach, Fl 32082

BillK@kossolinger.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Bobo
12626 Longview Dr W
Jacksonville, FL 32223

davidbobo@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steve Scott
1827 Deerhaven Drive
Crystal Lake,, IL 60014

brumson@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Tepper
6405 Coyote Ridge Ct. 6405 Coyote Ridge Court
Colorado Springs, CO 80923

tepps25@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Villa
13 Scheurman Terr
Warren, NJ 7059

Joev@njlc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Renee Pollock
522 Danielle drive
Hatboro, Pa 19040

Rjpollock1@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven L Hammer
20182 Beaver Lake Road
St Augusta, MN 55353

steve@hammerassociates.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Painter
135 Sackett Dr. None
Florissant, Mi 63033

redpainter01@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dale Elks
5 Bentley Lane
New Bern, NC 28560

dale@elksestateplanning.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Kruty
1444 West 10th Street Suite 108
Cleveland, OH 44113

rkruty@riverfinancialgroup.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jack Crump
2238 Columbus Cir
Warrenton, MO 633833265

jkcrump@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Arthur Strassle
16 Snowdance Lane
Nesconset, NY 11767

astrassle1@optonline.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Dix
404 S. High St. Box 244
Hutsonville, Il 62433

lldix@frontier.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Dix
404 S. High St. Box 244
Hutsonville, Il 62433

lldix@frontier.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Deborah Brand
3869 Forest Glen Road
Virginia Beach, va 23452

deborah.brand@chesapeakeregional.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Julian Good
3123 Desoto St
New Orleans, LA 70119

julianhgoodjr@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

DAVID BRANT
2100 ST. CHARLES AVE. UNIT 7-H
NEW ORLEANS, LA 70130

mrbnthecarol@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lois Gardner
5808 Leisure South Drive SE
Kentwood, MI 49548

gardnerbcp@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elaine Hollen
PO Box 236 853 GROVER NORTH RD
Grover, WY 83122

wyomingbound.hollens@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

john arnett
21351 hwy 140 #21
hesperus, co 81326

hesperusrn@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marie Loftus
2160 Dawn Pl
Granite City, IL 62040

loftusam@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kay Crump
2238 Columbus Cir
Warrenton, MO 633833265

jkcrump@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margie Fry
36 Bella Terra Ct
Sunrise Beach, Mo 65079

mfryprobe@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Curt Happold
42443 Redfern St
Canton, MI 48187

chappold1@provide.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Rastberger 1157 Silo Bend Dr.
Wentzville, MO 63385

chasjudyinwentz@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Dix
404 S. High St. Box 244
Hutsonville, Il 62433

lldix@frontier.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nicholas Tanner
2701 Brunswick Ave. N Apt#112
Crystal, MN 55422

nick.tanner1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eugene Filla
603 Nora Street
Washington, MO 63090

drthfilla@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wallace Hemingway 3116 E. Rocklyn Rd.
Springfield, MO 65804

wjh@independentprinting.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anne Grace
12449 Glasgow Dr
Romeo, MI 48065

dagrace50@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

maiva gwin
2725 Virginia st
Sioux City, IA 51104

lilpinky128@cableone.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Roy
564 Academy St.
Ferndale, MI 48220

mroy@mccemail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lance Marx
2320 n. 189 th circle w.
Colwich, Ks 67030

Kcc201@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Campion
25655 LARKINS ST
SOUTHFIELD, Mi 48033

michael.campion60@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sherill Glassmaker
5193 F Avenue
Marcus, IA 51035

sglassmaker@midlands.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

steve lageson
1481 white ash drive painesville, OH 44077

stevelageson@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joanne Rose-Johnson
144 Quincy Avenue
Long Beach, CA 90803

joanne@educationaladvisors.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

PEGGY RAMSEYER
1972 E DIVOT DRIVE
TEMPE, AZ 85283

PJRDDS@YAHOO.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kristin Little 1453 s gateway
Yuma, Az 85364

Kristin.little@azwestern.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Neal Smoyer
7 Yearling Chase
Mount Laurel, NJ 8054

nssmoyer@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Heather Zehm
547 A Beluga Ave
JBER, Ak 99505

Ahhzehm@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Rundle
3488 Village Circle Dr.
Traverse City, Mi 49686

lgrundle@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Ekstrand
402 Temmera Ln.
Glendora, CA 91740

ekstrands@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrew Gottlieb
4012 44th St
Sunnyside, NY 11104

gottliebandrewc@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Barr
26274 Florence Way
Madera, CA 93638

dbarr@jesusanswers.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Nonnewitz-Marston
15117 Patrick Ct
Lake Elsinore, CA 92530

elinvesti8@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lewis Marola
2311 Algonquin Road
Niskayuna, NY 12309

babbo70@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bradford Wade
box 545 3472 High Country Dr.
Heber, AZ 85928

azdesertratnsc@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Glasson
PO Box 243
Vail, CO 81658

carolaglasson@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrew Metelski
1220 alder ct
Chesapeake, Va 23320

Andrewmetelski@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Rex
7304 Oak Ridge Dr
North Richland Hills, TX 76182

david@rexfinancials.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Merrill
4013 Imperial Dr
West Linn, OR 97068

michael.merrill@thefinitygroup.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Mayes
8551 E. 35th Street
Yuma, AZ 85365

e.mayes1990@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Eikermann
642 Peebles Point
Cape Fair, MO 65624

eikluann@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles DeMuth
4149 Brookpointe Ct.
Sarasota, Fl 34238

crdemuth@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Catherine Roybal
306 Calle Sierpe
Santa Fe, NM 87501

samandcatherine@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Pearson
1788 Crimson Oak Drive
Draper, UT 84020

dave@peakfns.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michelle Collum
7760 s hope ave
Yuma, Az 85364

Mcollum84@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Marston
15117 Patrick Ct
Lake Elsinoreq, CA 92530

elinvestig8r@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Arbucci
65 Durham Rd. #2G
Bronxville, NY 10708

bobarbucci@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Benjamin Muniz
396Ricketts Road Unit C
Monterey, Ca 93940

Benrun123@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lilly Seals
5625 Brights Pike
Russellville, TN 37860

lilseals@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Blakemore
2432 Lindsay Lane
Grand Blanc, MI 48439

abercr@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

joseph abdilla 7205 audubon algonac, Mi 48001

jabdilla@uhigroup.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ray Seals
5625 Brights Pike
Russellville, TN 37860

rayseals@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Virginia Ann Welker
2958 Ribbon Court
Fort Myers, FL 33905

vawelker@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Petersen
3940 Comanche Ct.
Sioux City, IA 51104

rpetersen@cableone.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Shaulis
94 Brittany Manor Way
Stafford, VA 22554

shaulis.scott@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard L. Goodin
29625 Water Street
Highland, CA 92346

rgoodin@valleyoffice.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barry Matas
1342 W Oak Ave
Fullerton, CA 92833

bgm5555@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stefanie Bashore
6661 Jackson Drive
San Diego, CA 92119

steffagan@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Danna Henningfeld
17135 305th
SIoux City, IA 51109

danna.henningfeld@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Montgomery
8300 E Dixileta Dr Unit 247
Scottsdale, Ar 85266

desertsmoke@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Kempisty
42108 Merrimac Circle
Clinton Township, MI 48038

nanstevekemp@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Leidel
439 Harvest lane
Frankenmuth, Mi 48734

Sharonleidel@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ruth Wilson
1353 Mountain View Ave
Longmont, CO 80501

ruthaw1353@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steve Macfarlane
3809 Jones Street
Sioux City, IA 51104

steven.macfarlane@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

MAX RUSH
487 SYLVANIA DRIVE
McMURRAY, PA 15317

madmax9536@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas Kinsman
2176 Golden Ave
Long Beach, CA 90806

ddkinsman@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynnda Kramper
305 Gill Ave
Jackson, Ne 68743

Lynndakramper@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joyce McDonald
210 s. Bellevue ave. Apt. 2
Langhorne, Pa 19047

Joycemcdonald48@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

platt perdue
11 countryside drive po box 594
treynor, IA 51575

ph.perdue@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Suzanne Hunter
3504 Eldorado Way
South Sioux City, NE 68776

sue.hunter@ibcins.biz

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Martin Wild
20501 Goshen Rd
Gaithersburg, MD 20879

mgwild08@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas Zopfi
14385 Knightsbridge Dr
Shelby Township, MI 48315

d_zopfi@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christina Julius
4230 Hickory Lane #932
Sioux City, IA 51106

neeniebell@Qq.co

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nica Hodge
547 Lake Vista Drive Rainbow City, AL 35906

nicahodge13@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Swavely
153 Timber Ridge Road
Hummelstown, Pa 17036

taswavely@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

platt perdue
11 countryside drive po box 594
treynor, IA 51575

ph.perdue@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Donnelly
246 Charles Street
Reading, MA 1867

kdonnelly@investorscapital.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wayne Johnson
2355 Avenida Otono
Thousand Oaks, CA 91362

wjpoohawk4@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Perdue
11 Countryside Drive
Treynor, Ia 51575

dm.perdue@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ray Widiger
2424 Clayton Pointe Court
Chesterfield, Mo 63017

Rwidiger@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

michael anderson
9750 siesta key drive portage, mi 49002

cmfkazoo@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amber Siegle
121 Crestview Drive
Burlington, IA 52601

Imasam7@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ellen Walter
10018 Haegers Bend
Algonquin, Il 60102

ellenw@rdengineering-mfg.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Frohock
126 W. Chelsea Ct.
Southern Pines, NC 28387

jtfrohock@nc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ryan McKee
18140 Friendly Lane
Riverside, CA 92508

rmckee76@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Timothy Donnelly
231 Lear Ave
Buda, TX 78610

tpdonnelly@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peggy Layhee
291 Levee Trail
Dakota Dunes, SD 57049

playhee2@longlines.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

GEORGE SCHMIDT
220 MERRIMAC DR
SLIDELL, LA 70460

gaschm@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Duane Doran
2112 Villa Avenue
Sioux City, IA 51103

bjdrd111@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joyce Scheideman
1706 S. 14th St.
Burlington, Ia 52601

Joyceandal@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brock Renner
145 Horizon Ave
Fairfax, IA 0

brock.renner@premieriowa.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bruce Soderberg
1418 Golf Canyon
San Antonio, TX 78258

msoderberg3@satx.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dung Trinh
8625 17th ave
Brooklyn, NY 11214

dungsta72@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eric Obaugh
2551 W Main St
Waynesboro, Va 22980

eobaugh@charlieobaugh.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carmen Amaro
985 Mozart Drive
Orlando, FL 32825

csamaro@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Anderson
2329 S Phillippi St
Boise, ID 83705

And1957@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Leslie Stempel-Riche
12 Gladstone Ave.
West Islip, NY 11795

leslieesr@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Ann Goodson
121 Chesterville Road
Tupelo, MS 38801

mag5@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eduardo Font
62 Mallorn Dr
Aliso Viejo, CA 92656

efont11889@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Young Jr.
6397 Chalmers Court
Summerfield, NC 27358

rjmrj5859@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Earl Straw
6017 Kohlberry Ct.
Riverside, ca 92507

earlstraw@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Hock
7118 Autumn Leaf Lane
Frederick, MD 21702

cj-hock@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joyce Scheideman
1706 S. 14th St.
Burlington, Ia 52601

Joyceandal@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Maschmeyer
8590 Winthrop Cir
Florence, KY 41042

mlmaschmeyer@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eric Lantrip
333 Woodlake Dr.
Brandon, MS 39047

elantrip@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Neal Meyer
336 Stags Leap Lane
Lincoln, Ca 95648

nealmeyer@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeanne Young
6397 Chalmers Court
Summerfield, NC 27358

jeanne.young@gilbarco.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Allan Wilson
1353 Mountain View ve.
Longmont, CO 80501

askw1960@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cindy Hock
7118 Autumn Leaf Ln
Frederick, MD 21702

cj-hock@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

harold salsgiver
1592 evergreen drive
Upland, Ca 91784

haroldandjean@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alane Young
11270 Middle Road
East Concord, NY 14055

emeraldlade@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marcy Herman
6196 Port Au Prince
Riverside, CA 92506

marcywhiting@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Norton
826 Spring Brook Dr
Winona, MN 55987

m.norton633@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debra Hammer
12513 Diamond Ridge Court
Clive, IA 50325

dhammer24@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel Blackledge
7521 Old Canton Rd
Madison, MS 39110

danw27@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roger Birt
3310 n 39th street
Boise, ID 83703

roger.birt@albertsons.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Hunter
13020 Waconia Ct NE
Blaine, MN 55449

mhunterx4@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debra Hammer
12513 Diamond Ridge Court
Clive, IA 50325

dhammer24@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jillian Free
10414 W. Esthner Cir.
Wichita, KS 67209

jchodak@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Angela Tullar
1426 Ruger Ave.
Janesville, WI 53545

atullar@retirementplanadvisors.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mike Wertz
1200 Fort Pickens Road 5E
Pensacola Beach, FL 32561

wertzmr@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharyn Olin
2557 S View Pkwy
Yuma, Ar 85365

sharynolin@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Wonka
609 Sesame Street
Buffalo, WY 82834

wonkar@ceteranetworks.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Darlene Widiger
2424 Clayton Pointe Court
Chesterfield, Mo 63017

Rwidiger@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rhonda Menin
2210 Seneca Way
Sioux City, IA 51104

emrtc@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George F Francis III
19333 Greenwald Dr
Southfield, MI 48075

george_francis@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kitsi Tams
2412 s. Marion Ave.
Yuma, AZ 85365

kitsi.tams@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barry Todd
3031 S. 47th Ave
YUMA, AZ 85364

bdtodd@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas Lund
115 La Don Dr
Huntsville, AL 35811

dscottlund@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Dreyer
1575 Glen Oaks Dr
West Des Moines, IA 50266

mdreyer@dreyermktg.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brent Phar
2674 S 30th Dr
Yuma, AZ 85364

275rgr@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Watson
7923 Beechwood Court
Urbandale, IA 50322

drwilliamrwatson@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Edgin
204 W Ivy St
San Diego, CA 92101

kedgin@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debra Hammer
12513 Diamond Ridge Court
Clive, IA 50325

dhammer24@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Johnson
601 N. Martha
Dearborn, MI 48128

pjjohnson@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Long
39988 Dequindre Rd
STERLING HEIGHTS, Mi 48310

Longman@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Duane Plueger
1468 110th Street
Sioux City, IA 51108

dplueger@cwsuter.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laila Bridges
3740 Countryside Lane
Long Beach, CA 90806

Lailab1964@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linwood Wells
1342 Prospect Drive
Pomona, CA 91766

linwmog@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Carroll
2122 Placido Ct
Carlsbad, CA 92009

carroll.ch1950@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

richard lennerth
2705 fairway view dr valrico, fl 33596

llennerth@tampabay.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Schmittling
30749 Ramblewood Club Drive
Farmington Hills, Mi 48331

mschmittling@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dennis McKelley
9414 w Erie trail
Shelby, MI 49455

Mckeld76@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Chris Chick
12970 echo lane
Apple valley, Mn 55124

Chickchris88@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debi Chestnut
37865 Lakeshore
Harrison Township, MI 48045

debichestnut@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Leopoldo Delucca
804 Kenyon Road Suite 200
Fort Dodge, IA 50501

ledeluccamd@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

SUSAN SENDERLING
577 MILFORD WARREN GLEN ROAD
MILFORD, NJ 8848

susangrace4@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cynthia mc atee
1011 lakeshore
brooklyn, ia 52211

cmcatee@netins.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Toni Schmittling
30749 Ramblewood Club Drive
Farmington Hills, Mi 48331

tschmittling@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Brown
6 Holiday Drive
Hopatcong, NJ 7843

idatom@optonline.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eddie Griffin
150 Bane Rd
Starkville, MS 39759

griffjon@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eric Messner 20956 Gill Rd.
Farmington Hills, MI 48335

ericwmess@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carlos Drouaillet
25211 Alta Vista Drive
Moreno Valley, CA 92557

cdrulet@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Catherine Hagen
7602 hunt club road apt. k101
columbia, sc 29210

chagen@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gail West
11108 Promise Land Drive
Frisco, TX 75035

westgmg@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edwin Martin Gaddis
4597 Arundel Road
Meridian, MS 0

mmgaddis@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eugene Elliott
1153 Burr Oaks drive
West Des Moines, IA 50266

gene@elliottequipco.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Kay
419 Morning Star Road
Soso, MS 39480

hatak0247@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Toni Houghton
1832 Lakewood Circle SE
Olympia, Wa 98501

Houghton.toni@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JANET CHAPMAN
2101 KELSO WAY
PAHRUMP, NV 89060

jan_2468@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Christopherson
1208 East 56th Avenue
Hutchinson, Ks 67502

m.j.christy@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jorge Pierola
5950 Buckingham Parkway, Unit 408
Culver City, CA 90230

jorge.pierola38@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alma Shackleford
4808 Montane Court
Fort Worth, TX 76137

ajs1210@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marilyn Kennedy
1010 Margaret ct
Hazlehurst, Ms 39083

Goldielocks04@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Beth Schoening-Hudson
4705 80th Place
Urbandale, IA 50322

proferaone@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jean Corzine
8004 CR 466
Princeton, Tx 75407

jcor1228@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Deborah Campbell
3500 E Sweet Grass Trl
Sahuarita, A 85629

campboot321@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elaine Price
30382 Canyon Estates Rd
Vista, CA 92084

Priceproperty@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dennis Boots
3500 E Sweet Grass Trl
Sahuarita, AZ 85629

campboot321@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Raymond Marino
98 Armstrong Dr
Clark, NJ 70662213

email4raym@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

charles doherty
4224 garnet drive middletown, md 21769

dohertycj@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Welsh
258 Whittier Ave
Dunellen, NJ 8812

lawelsh258@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margy Rosenbluth
3851 Diamante Place
Encino, Ca 91436

mlrosenbluth@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ANNE CASHMAN
1210 E OAK ST
ANAHEIM, CA 92805

ANNE@THEPEARLYGATES.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joshua Dillon
641 Weyburn Dr
Concord, NC 28027

ncinsuranceguy@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Erick Carpenter
561 McMullin Drive
Grand Junction, Co 81504

erick@carpenter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Ann Schubert
3002 Meade Avenue
Louisville, KY 40217

maryannschubert99@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laurie Welsh
258 Whittier Ave
Dunellen, NJ 8812

lawelsh1129@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary ann Walker
2013 N. York
Dearborn, Mi 48128

Rmawalker@wowway.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jason Berger
4312 161st Street
Urbandale, IA 50323

jberger@naminerals.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Allan Rosenbluth
3851 Diamante Place
Encino, Ca 91436

mlrosenbluth@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Doran
2112 Villa Avenue
Sioux City, IA 51103

bjdrd111@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Julie Matulia
190 Manor Drive
Fayetteville, GA 30215

julie@jmfpllc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sondra Fries
9337 Oyer Court
Waynesboro, PA 17268

class1127@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Ann Sedlacek
1451 Regency Drive
Jefferson Hills, PA 15025

tandem4us@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

tom matlock
11584 monte vista ave chino, ca 91710

tom.matlock@matlockassociates.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dena King
12820 Crown Point Avenue
Omaha, NE 68164

yesdena@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

elizabeth kirby 1789 tutwiler avenue memphis, Tn 38107

eakirbye@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frank Genuise
12868 De Cook Dr
Sterling Heights, Mi 48313

boffalette@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mitchell Bloom
9745 Marshall Way
Westminster, Mi 80021

mitchbloom@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Teresa Potterton
12629 West Oak Dr
Mt Airy, MD 21771

Teresa_M_Potterton@mcpsmd.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Crouch
466 West Mckinley Ave
Pomona, Ca 91768

chelluh@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Crouch
466 West Mckinley Ave
Pomona, Ca 91768

chelluh@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kyle Pflum
2412 Florence Ave.
Burlington, IA 52601

hpflum@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Timothy Kurtz
23 Schwartz Drive
Ottumwa, IA 52501

tkurtz@orhc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debra Breeden
330 Evergreen Drive
Sullivan, MO 63080

bbreeden@fidnet.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Enrique Blanco
697 William Bliss Drive
New Milford, NJ 7646

Elbmcb@optonline.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Betty Shelley
546 NW 63rd PL
Des Moines, IA 50313

bs4231@mchsi.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathy Smith
32594 Fox Ave.
Sioux City, IA 51109

Kathylohry2@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Billings
3037 E Bighorn Ave
Phoenix, Az 85048

bob_b97@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ellen Post
71 Vreeland Ave
Bloomingdale, NJ 7403

mikeandel@optonline.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Anargyros
37927 Hazel st.
Harrison Twp, Mi 48045

canargyros@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jane Woodworth
1148 Tennyson Lane
Naperville, IL, IL 60540

ja3wood@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Abarr
33 Woodlawn Ave.
Hampton, GA 30228

abarr@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Cherry
9554 Hwy YY
New Haven, MO 63068

lkc3@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jesse Harvey
10291 rd 246
Union, Ms 39365

ctylmts@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Bisenius
211 Davenport St.
Holstein, IA 51025

abisenius@mvaoschool.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Shelley
546 Nw 63rd PL
Des Moines, IA 50313

bs4231@mchsi.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Jones
13624 Hartsbourne Drive
Germantown, MD 20874

crjtech2000@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Hurban
33592 nandina ln
Murrieta, CA 92563

Paulhurban@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carrie Fellon
31 Blenheim Dr
Easton, PA 18045

carrie@lifestagefinancial.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Garry Sparks
146 Church Rd
Madison, MS 39110

gmsparks@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laurie Rezagholi
42059 N Moss Springs Rd
phoenix, az 85086

lrezagholi@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laurie Rezagholi
42059 N Moss Springs Rd
phoenix, az 85086

lrezagholi@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sherry Harbison
609 S Blair St
Morning Sun, IA 52640

collects@louisacomm.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynn Monthomery
236 Bridgeford Blvd
Ridgeland, MS 39157

Lynnmontgomery@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

karen rose 1311 Greenview dr
bethlehem, PA 18018

karenrose521@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

KATHY WAUSON
105 PARKVIEW DRIVE
ALBIA, IA 52531

KWAUSON@GMAIL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christine Devore
140th Avenue
Williston, FL 32696

cardamomtechie5@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michelle Young
1321 N Colorado St
Salt Lake City, UT 84116

michelle@peakfns.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynda Thorfinnson
11852 Waterford Rd
Eden Prairie, MN 55347

lthorfinnson@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Helen Corbe Lacelle
2819 Marilyn Drive
St. Joseph, MI 48095

helencorbe.lacelle@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jonathan Baker
500 Chuck Wagon Dr
Brandon, ms 39042

jbaker50051@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shirley Dunlap
3800 Bradford St. Spc 56
La Verne, Ca 91750

snbdunlap@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ferrol Mayfield
7130 Hwy. 54
Sharpsburg, GA 30277

mayfieldcarpets@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Julaine McMillan
2100 E. Forest Street
Appleton, WI 54915

julainemc@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joyce Mayfield
7130 Hwy. 54
Sharpsburg, GA 30277

atomsmom@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dane Price
31499 Orchard Ln
Murrieta, Ca 92563

danerprice@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrea Sisler
91 dogwood trail east
Senioa, GA 30276

Sislersix6@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynn Monthomery
236 Bridgeford Blvd
Ridgeland, MS 39157

Lynnmontgomery@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Hugh Frederick
6330 Prestonshire Lane
Dallas, Te 75225

bo@upperextremitycare.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

DARLENE KURISCAK
3601 mere
ANCHORAGE, AK 99502

LacyTreasuresTatting@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bonnie Garner
5459 Lake City Road
Yazoo City, MS 39194

bonniegarner@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Beatrice Calaway
7761 W. Myrtle av.
Glendale, Az 85303

dapachey@yahoo.comj

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Ayers
24 Polo Ridge Circle
Columbia, SC 29223

jjayers@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tammy Dunaway
8010 Kings Ct.
Rowlett, TX 75089

tdunaway@dallascowboys.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael LaBrie
34 Rockaway Ave
Marblehead, Ma 1945

mjlabrie1@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Todd Tastad
2919 Pierce St
Sioux City, IA 0

tjct007@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

MARY DEMPLE
4806 RAVEN RUN
BROOMFIELD, Co 80023

mdemple@crossview.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Malone-Bequette
71 Anna Maria Drive
Camdenton, MO 65020

barbarabequette1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Parr
8712 Lambach Lane
Louisville, Ky 40220

Soxparr48@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Milana Cook
97 Woodstone Drive
Buffalo Grove, IL 60089

sundancemila@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry P Dunn
9003 Walker Road
Niwot, CO 80503

lpkadunn@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sue DeKoekkoek
2924 CRESTVIEW AVE
KALAMAZOO, Mi 0

sjdk64@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Totten
758 GILCREST LN
CINCINNATI, Oh 45238

mrtotten758@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Totten
758 GILCREST LN
CINCINNATI, Oh 45238

mrtotten758@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Keelen-Cain
5408 S Garrison St
Littleton, Co 80123

Karen@chairrentaldenver.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brenda T. Luckie
1100 Browns Bridge Rd.
Hattiesburg, Ms 39401

bmluckie@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Benjamin Botts
4244 Savoy Lane
McHenry, IL 60050

bbotts@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

susan slowiak
2237 s Emerson
Mesa, AZ 85210

azesjay@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bryan Anderson
9811 W Charleston Blvd 2-311
Las Vegas, Nv 89117

Banderson132@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

chris streets
405 W. Washington St. P.O. Box 513 elk point, sd 57025

streets_chris@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Kaufman
1120 A Vincent Street
Redondo Beach, Ca 90277

amyjkaufman25@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Devlin Flamm
802 N Lincoln St
Post Falls, ID 83854

devlindougherty@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Middlewood
5562 Canoga Ln
Haslett, MI 48840

mtmiddlewood@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

harry ramseyer
1972 E. Divot Dr.
Tempe, AZ 85283

harrylmd@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wm. Marcus Luckie
1100 Browns Bridge Rd.
Hattiesburg, Ms 39401

bmluckie@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Wallace
22411 Corteville
Saint Clair Shores, mi 48081

jimalan@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marcel Van Daele
59540 Romeo Plank Road
Ray, MI 48096

mvandaele8492@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jane Casto
5160 Novak Avenue North Stillwater, MN 55082

Casto4@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Blanchard
5006 S Umitilla Ave
Boise, ID 83709

jb300zx@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Clain Jaques
642 E 5720 S
Murray, UT 84107

cjaques@peakfns.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jason Chocron
11414 N. 67th Street
Scottsdale, AZ 85254

jason05241972@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kristine Turner
3230 Candlewood Lane
San Antonio, TX 78217

krysgturner@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Irene Ufest
2750 Northampton Drive Unit C1
Rolling Meadows, IL 60008

iufest@interiorinvestments.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

james walesa
1460 renaissance dr park ridge, il 60068

jtwalesa@ampcfamily.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Kennedy
8774 Bajado Court
Rancho Cucamonga, CA 917330

dbrentk@live.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dennis McConaghy
1525 California Street
Oceanside, Ca 92054

damcconaghy@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vyvyan Burns
145 Forest Street
New Canaan, CT 6840

vyv.burns@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tracy Ulewicz
49340 BAYSHORE
Chesterfield, MI 48047

TracyUlewicz@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diane Decker
2710 Woodbine Ave
Portage, MI 49002

dianeldecker@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Teresa Eberlein
1977 Worcester Drive
Oxford, MI 48371

eberlt02@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steve Mitchell
3741 Kinross Drive
Birmingham, AL 35242

steve.r.mitchell@gsk.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Maingot
8743 E Jaeger St
Mesa, Ar 85207

g.maingot@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert L Golden
1614 Monocacy Street 1614 Monocacy Street
Bethlehem, PA 18018

rlgolden1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathryn Stromberg
2000 S. Logan St.
Denver, CO 80210

kathryn.stromberg@natplan.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Fred Gregory
615 Wyngate Drive
Frederick, Md 21701

fred.gregory@mwaa.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Phillis Farmer
124 Cambridge Drive
Madison, MS 39110

Phillisfarmer@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

D Green
115 Barrington Ct
Summerville, SC 29485

dellis143@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christine Cary
5834 Billings Ct
Lincoln, NE 68516

cary.christine@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amabda Mayo
2905 Isabella St
Sioux City, IA 51103

MNorbs26@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth & Shuna Lee
136 Highland Drive
Florence, MS 39073

kenny_a_lee@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jon Vessey
1402 Towland Road
Holtville, CA 92250

jack@vessey.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joel Hallas
54 Colony Road
Westport, CT 6880

jrhallas@optonline.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas Lane
46957 Skyview Drive
Big Bear City, CA 92314

Doustelan@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frederick Chodyniecki 4621 Frel Rd.
Louisville, Ky 40272

fccchod4@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dolores Lopez
14308 NE 101st Way
Vancouver, WA 98682

dodie5353@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Smith
829 Michael Lee Way
Lawrenceville, Ga 30032

Billandkori@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carolyn Smith
545 Medina Rd
Wayzata, Mi 55391

mngypsy545@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Neuenswander
629 E 300N
Pleasant Grove, Ut 84062

John@peakfns.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sheri Duncan
193 Woodlands Green Dr
Brandon, MS 39047

sison@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Halina Gazdowicz
6 Deer Run Rd
Southwick, M 1077

halinag@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Rabie
2330 Commonwealth Avenue
St. Paul, Mn 55108

arabie@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Toma Thouma
429 Washington St.
Glenview, IL 60025

tom_thouma@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lexie Kurovski
2618 SW 32nd street
Ankeny, Ia 50023

Lexiehagerty6@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Schmitz
22 Dream Lane
Richmond, ME 4357

scelty1@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Hekler
3588 Sandal ln
Cincinnati, Oh 45248

yellasub99@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nestor Otazu
2619 So Bedford St
Los Angeles, Ca 90034

notazu@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roland Castillo
119 Wilson Way Blairsville, Ga 30512

castlemoat@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth & Shuna Lee
136 Highland Drive
Florence, MS 39073

kenny_a_lee@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard McAuley
12931 Miriam Place
Santa Ana, CA 92705

rick@aztecgrp.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Gipple
2343 Cromwell Circle
Davenport, IA 52807

steve.gipple@mchsi.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dianne Holmes
6618 Candle Ridge Cove
Austin, Tx 78731

Tholmes466@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judith Bender
2355 N Country Club Dr
Flagstaff, AZ 86004

jbender@coconino.az.gov

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandy Davis
102 meadow woods lane
Eatonton, GA 31024

Coolsandy@icloud.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandy Davis
102 meadow woods lane
Eatonton, GA 31024

Coolsandy@icloud.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kat Diffin
13885 Lincoln rd
Montrose, Mi 48457

Katdif@prodigy.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lester Dzuik
201 Thames Circle
Nicholasville, KY 40356

lmkdzuik@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brett & Lishelle Leonhardt
841 W Charles Drive
Kaysvile, Ut 84037

brett@peakfns.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

CATHRYN VAUGHT
221 Sawgrass Way
Fayetteville, Ge 30215

vcathryn@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Ditsworth
3856 E Dewberry Ave
Mesa, AZ 85206

tditsworthnetval@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Paulsen
440 N. Retreat DR.
Show Low, AZ 85901

spaulse1@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dennis Eckerd
1023 W. Sandra Terrace
Phoenix, AZ 85023

djoele@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Milligan
6828 Kalgan Rd NE
Rio Rancho, NM 87144

ricksdroid@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Travis & Chery Morgan
635 W 200 S
American Fork, UT 84003

travis@peakfns.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joni Smith
2640 E. Vogel Ave.
Phoenix, Az 85028

joni.k.smith9@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dan & Shanole Palmer
388 E 4220 N
Provo, UT 84604

dan@peakfns.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Byron Emehiser
3216 west robin ln
Phoenix, Az 85027

azhdrdr01@live.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Martin
1412 East Laguna Drive
Tempe, AZ 85282

michaeltempe@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sondra Affolter
5335 County Rd 37
Hemlock, NY 14466

affolter111@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

keith chodak
6100 Avery Drive Apt. 1202
Fort Worth, TX 76132

kwc356@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dave & Sheri Palmer
2095 S 130 E
Orem, UT 84058

palmerd@peakfns.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

CA Jack Culwell Jr
364 hidden pine dr
Grants Pass, OR 97526

CJC11OO@Hotmail.Com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Connie Guethle
15040 W Highland Ave
Goodyear, Az 85395

Cguethle@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dave & Sheri Palmer
2095 S 130 E
Orem, UT 84058

palmerd@peakfns.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Beverly N Miller
2009 E. Paradise Ln
Phoenix, Az 85023

Nmiller1815@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Earl Smith
2640 E. Vogel Ave.
Phoenix, Az 85028

early2020@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Casey & Tonya Walker
493 E 700 N
Tooele, UT 84074

casey@peakfns.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rosalee Lugo
2857 W Angela Dr
Phoenix, Az 85053

Rosalielugo@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandrs Muehling
2841 N Alderwood Circle
Mesa, Az 85212

Smuehling@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steve & Marie Lloyd
1391 Vestry CIrcle
Draper, UT 84020

lloyds@peakfns.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Holyfield
1033 Tuesday Ln
Byram, MS 0

cd1182@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheri Caldwell
868 live oak drive
Angels Camp, CA 95222

candjcaldwell@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ryan Boswell
1070 W 400 S
Layton, Ut 84041

ryan.boswell@peakfns.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sam Milligan
5742 Keshena Drive
Hamilton, OH 45011

tbird5@fuse.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ray Burzota
174 NW 18th St
Ontario, OR 97914

rburzota@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

phyllis bruce
1532 Matthew Talbot road
forest, va 24551

phyl1crm@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

phyllis bruce
1532 Matthew Talbot road
forest, va 24551

phyl1crm@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Neuenswander
8525 S Kolby Lane
Midvale, Ut 84047

mark@peakfns.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dean Jacobson
50 East Rd
Delray Beach, FL 33483

djacobson@bodeansbaking.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Ricotta
7916 Willow Creek Dr
Middleton, ID 83644

ricottad@peakfns.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joan Aquilina
677 Kaymar Dr.
Amherst, NY 14228

JoanAquilina23@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carolyn Williams
6315 Campbell Rd #510
Dallas, TX 75248

plan4future@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Morse
100 Shire Ln
Swedesboro, NJ 8085

tropoplt@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Muehling
2841 Alderwood cir.
Mesa, Az 85212

Johnlmuehling@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tim Giest
3756 E Acoma Dr
Phoenix, AZ 85032

poltergiest1@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynda Carpenter
561 Mc Mullin Dr
Grand Junction, CO 81504

Lynda@Carpenter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Stephan
4323 Shadeway Rd
Lakewood, CA 90713

nr.step@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

d.f. lent
7324 e. azalea ave mesa
mesa, az 85208

dfcmlent@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Michels
6320 NE 27th Ave
Altoona, IA 50009

janetmichels@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debra Roberts
8232 West San Juan Ave
Glendale, AZ 85303

ddr7014@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Benjamin Romer
8226 E. Berridge Lane
Scottsdale, AZ 85250

benjromer@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lorraine Milligan
6828 Kalgan Rd NE
Rio Rancho, NM 87144

lzmilligan53@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Crawley
19095 Grandview Ave
Yorba Linda, CA 92886

johnc@jcainsure.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Crawford
3640 Country Club Ct.
Lewiston, ID 83501

crawfin@cableone.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Jefferies
9957 Wyatt Ranch Way
Sacramento, CA 95829

tjeffer293@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Betty Mullenhour
211 E Butler Dr
Phoenix, Az 85020

Bettsmoe@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Meinken
1711 Flora Ave.
Cincinnati, OH 45231

jmmeinken@zoomtown.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dan Kotinek
3803 N. Red Sky Circle
Mesa, Az 85207

pazwick@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Darrell Belknap
1155 65th St
WEST DES MOINES, Io 50266

panddbelknap@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven D. Piper
820 S. Topaz Trail
Prescott, AZ 86303

svpiper@cableone.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel Jenkins
2240 Almar Road
Florence, MS 39073

danieljenkins@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Bowman
1021 N. Blaine 1021 N. Blaine Wellington, KS 67152

lbowman1@sutv.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Parker
10606 Borwick St.
Bellflower, Ca 90706

sharon10606@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rory Kraft
6539 W. Misty Willow Ln.
Glendale, Ar 85310

imskier2@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Hill
7195 Harbour Landing
Alpharetta, GA 30005

ncyhill@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

d.f. lent
7324 e. azalea ave mesa
mesa, az 85208

dfcmlent@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dawn Ostrowski
5 Palmdale Drive
Buffalo, NY 14221

dawnostrowski@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Murray
22618 Corteville
St Clair Shores, Mi 48081

Leschenaux@comcast.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven Michels
6320 NE 27th Ave
Altoona, IA 50009

stevenmichels@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karol McBride
1403 24th Street Same
Lewiston, ID 83501

kmcbride@stonebrakermcquary.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Goerner
2349 Cherry St.
Denver, CO 80207

lindagoerner@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa Smith
1818 Birch Ave
Lewiston, ID 83501

lsmith@stonebrakermcquary.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gordon Lavers
27870 Lauren St E
Harrison Twp, MI 48045

gordonlavers@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dan Fauth
2087 W. 13th Lane
Yuma, Ar 85364

fauthd@ctt.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elaine Anderson
8010 N Timber LN
Hayward, WI 54843

meanderson15@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Haas
8060 Dawn Drive
Rockford, Mi 55373

jhaas@jrafinancial.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Neale Hegarty
24 Drumlin Rd
West Simsbury, Co 6092

neale.hegarty@pacresbenefits.com