Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ray holt
p.o. box 16553
albuquerque, n. 87191

cryingwolf_61@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laurie Sloane
28 Meggins Rd
Rockaway, nj 7866

lauriesloane@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Adrienne Schelberg
23 Gerry
Milford, NH 3055

AJSchelberg@Comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mathilda DeLorenzo
^6 Rose Ct.
Denville, NJ 7834

mathildadel@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Stewart
14329 W 89th St
Lenexa, KS 66215

rick.stewart@staples.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ron Lutz
476 Rolling Ridge Drive Suite 333
State College, PA 16801

RLUTZ@PFGINC.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Evelyn Columbia 923 Diana Street
Fort Morgan, CO 80701

EColumbia@AOL.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Owen Phillips
1470 Otoes Pl.
Saint Johns, Fl 32259

Owenphil22@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Alagna
2420 Warm Springs Lane
Naperville, IL 60564

jim.alagna@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Sulick
211 Sand Trap Drive
Bellefonte, PA 16823

patriciahs@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Friese
12672 Topaz Street
Garden Grove, CA 92845

nancy@frieseonline.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Roberson
PO Box 1045
Friendswood, TX 77549

pgr1944@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alison Evans
11606 Crossroads Place
Concord, NC 28025

evansalisonc@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Martin Sexton
5814 silver creek dr
Waxhaw, nc 28173

Martinfs@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Rowe
12830 Deer Path Ln
Hartland, MI 48353

roweutu1@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Bohlman
312 Vairo Blvd. Apt. F
State College, PA 16803

jbohlman@vicuscapital.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marcia Lancaster
11269 Lake Mandarin Circle E.
Jacksonville, FL 32223

Mklagrits@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brandon Dolin
135 North Walnut Street
Lewistown, PA 17044

bdolin@pfginc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Stover
101 E Sprague St
Winston-Salem, NC 27127

rdstover@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Becker
11904 Cornelius St.
Jacksonville, fl 32246

richardwbecker@hughes.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

MICHAEL DARANY
3070 BRISTOL Suite 500
Costa Mesa, Ca 92626

mad@m-darany.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dana Williams
2085 Quaker Street
Eureka, CA 95501

dankyn22@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Seelman
730 Mills
Muskegon, MI 49445

jseelman@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kelly Dicksion
PO Box 830
Hayden, ID 83835

kelly@doughertycpa.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Denise Nostrom
1355 N. Ocean Avenue
Medford, NY 11763

DFP1@AOL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amanda Arroyo
236 Teak Ln
Streamwood, IL 60107

blond8569@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Sweezey
58 Western Ave
Saugus, MA 1906

K1sweez@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sidney A Andrews
2812 18th Stret NW
Albuquerue, NM 87104

gracep2812@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

donald Gilin
5891 E. Lake Drive
Haslett, Mi 48840

gene@ofsadvisors.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Teresa Gendron
145 Winn Street
Woburn, MA 1801

teresa.gendron@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bonnie Jeffery
3337 Chalmette Ct
Forest Hill, Te 76140

r2913j@swbell.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin McLaughlin
10057 Glenstone Circle
Highlands Ranch, CO 80130

skivault@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cassandra Carvalho
244 18th Street Apt 2
Dracut, MA 1826

ccarvalho130@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Watson
2700-A NW 43rd St
Gainesville, FL 32606

Brianw@kossolinger.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dale Cupp
247 S. Sunset Drive
Broadway, VA 22815

mcarchitects@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tracie Heatherly
2301 Via Camino Ave
Carmichael, Ca 95608

Theatherly@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kasey Massatti
9520 Camelot St
Pickerington, Oh 0

kasey.lauderman@live.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joan Bennett
124a 220 n. Zapata hwy
Laredo, Tx 78043

Benootz@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marian Sears
14724 E Cerro Alto Dr
Fountain Hills, AZ 85268

searsvaile@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kim Brown
1404 Flora Vista Drive
Escondido, CA 92027

kcginger1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

k. elaine owens
p.o. box 14613
college station, tx 77841

kelaineowens@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sarah Procaccini
20 Clear Pond Rd
Lakeville, Ma 2347

Sarahprocaccini@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Benny Stockstill
211C Sones Chapel Rd
Carriere, MS 39426

bennystockstill@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steve Ransom
2438 N. Travis
Mesa, AZ 85207

sransom1@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Shamdosky
385 North Central Ave
Ramsey, NJ 7446

ncsgs@optonline.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathy Tyler
1853 William Penn Way
Lancaster, PA 17601

k.tyler@gsirep.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Minear
3633 N 124th
Kansas City, Ks 66109

minearbutch@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Bocelli
11 cleveland st.
MALDEN, Ma 2148

jimpat318@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Bocelli
11 cleveland st.
MALDEN, Ma 2148

jimpat318@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Bocelli
11 cleveland st.
MALDEN, Ma 2148

jimpat318@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

michael mcdermott 267 bennett st
muskegon, mi 49442

mikemcsr@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Ring
21 mulberry st   #1
Beverly, MA 1915

Jjring55@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Richards
18640 Lone Wolf Ln.
Lenore, ID 83541

jj4043l@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Ruff
2700 Kull Rd
Lancaster, OH 43130

ron@ronaldruffcpa.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Pamela Andrews
90 Webster St
Milford, NH 3055

pha156@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rick Burke
43 Dyer St
Billerica, MA 1862

rickburkejr@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Barbatti
632 Fairway Blvd.
Cape Girardeau, MO 63701

jbarbatti@semo.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Brooks
432 cabot rd.
Woodbury, Vt 5681

Tc6756@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ruth Kirstein
123 Woodward Ave
Buffalo, NY 14214

rgkirstein@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wayne Bell
28453 Rochester Blvd
Randolph, mn 55065

pairabells@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frederick Reynolds
9644 South 1835 East
Sandy, UT 84092

rickr@mwd1.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judy Richards
18640 Lone Wolf Ln.
Lenore, ID 83541

jj4043l@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ELIZABETH KNAPP
17053 KINGS CT
LAKEVILLE, M 55044

bettyknapp@frontiernet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Sullivan
P.O. Box 443
Shasta, CA 96087

paintmartoffice@c-zone.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

PERRY KNAPP
17053 KINGS CT
LAKEVILLE, M 55044

bettyknapp@frontiernet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Milton Bruce 569 Arrowhead Lane
Northfield, OH 44067

milt88@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Richardson
833 Eleanor St. N. E.
Grand Rapids, MI 49505

ccmlr1@comcast.nrt

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Ludwig
1390 Buffalo Road
West Des Moines, IA 50265

johnpludwig@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elburn Christy
130 Staysail Rd.
Salisbury, N. 28146

chrisandrachel2012@carolina.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Lefto
26305 Glen Oak Dr
Wyoming, MN 55092

jlefto@citlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Valerian Blatny
1115 Bates Street
Brandon, FL 33510

vblatny@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Summer Lindvig
11645 Wildwood Springs Dr
Roswell, GA 30075

summerlindvig@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tracy Stille
9216 92nd Circle No
Maple Grove, MN 55369

Tstillemg@embarqmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Culp
12815 W. 82 St
Lenexa, KS 66215

culpmk@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diane Wainright
1101 Winthrop Ct
Winter Springs, Fl 32708

rwainright@embarqmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Danny Guthrie
10873 Bryant Rd
Rockvale, TN 37153

kaptindan@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tracy Stille
9216 92nd Circle No
Maple Grove, MN 55369

Tstillemg@embarqmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margaret Kowalski
2721 W 107th Court #A Westminster, Co 80234

Kowalskipek@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rande Read
1025 Meadow Lark Lane
Weatherford, TX 76087

rkmread@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Carro
301 Mt Vernon st
Lawrence, Ma 1843

Fogfly@comcAst.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Julie Harrington
634 NW 5th. Ave.
Camas, WA 98607

julierae85@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Denise Reed
733 Montego Dr
St. Louis, MO 63126

denisestlouie@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Russell Garrison
9042 Spindletree Way
Jacksonville, FL 32256

okiruss@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Warnock
132 Western Ave
Kennebunk, ME 4043

ljwent@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Piligian
103 Brooksby Village Drive Unit 620
Peabody, MA 1960

d.piligian@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

SAndra Stickney
14 Kensington Park 3
Lynn, MA 1902

saquipo@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

LaKeitha Walker
1012 n Waller
Chicago, il 60651

lsw0371@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Young
8951 E. Scott Court
Wichita, KS 67210

jyoung27@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Schultz
545 Bohlken Drive
Hastings, Mn 55033

tomikes@icloud.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dan Van Haften
4390 Willow Lane Drive 4390 Willow Lane Drive
Grand Rapids, MI 49525

danjvanhaften@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Pacay
2262 Washington Drive
Northbrook, IL 0

Jpacay@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

michael martin
321 section line road suite C hot springs, ar 71913

mikemartinfs@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Berthiaume
1880 440th st
harris, mn 55032

berthiml@westinghouse.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert B. Schultz
60 Park Edge
Berkeley Heights, NJ 0

Rbssrs@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert B. Schultz
60 Park Edge
Berkeley Heights, NJ 0

Rbssrs@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sarah Thomas
1950 Upas Unit 106
SAN DIEGO, CA 0

smrthomas@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dianne Dumas
15 MacArthur Cir.
Peabosy, MA 1960

dumasdx@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Scavetta 3780 Kemper Lake St.
Las Vegas, NV 89122

cascavetta@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Capwell
12 Tabor Road
Enfield, CT 6082

cecapwell@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elizabeth Moore
1002 Hunters Lane
Ashland City, TN 37015

esmoore@alum.mit.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peggy Chen
456 Gleason Circle
East Rochester, NY 14445

peggychen2014@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dave Bower
609 E Greencreek Ct
EAGLE, ID 836163877

sdbower444@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ruby Gordon
2106 El Prado Avenue Lemon Grove, CA 91945

ruby_gordon02@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Croschere
104 w Turner ave
Spokane, Wa 99224

Tcroschere@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sarah Kaelberer
4500 Wellington Lane N
55442, MN 55442

sarahk@business-estate.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Darrell Hoag
POB 710
New Hartford, CT 6057

mdhoag1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Bottiglio
7 Valley Circle
781-221-2208, MA 1803

kmblab31@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Leah Haussmann
143 Dunham Ave. P.O. Box 247
Eagles Mere, PA 17731

hemlockeagle@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan O
519 25th Avenue North
St. Petersburg, FL 337042823

ogaras@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan O
519 25th Avenue North
St. Petersburg, FL 337042823

ogaras@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Walter Haussmann
143 Dunham Ave. P.O. Box 247
Eagles Mere, PA 17731

woh5@mail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diane LaPlace
8 Hummingbird Rd
Covington, La 70433

laplace31@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tony Wanket
3219 Danfield Drive
Columbia, SC 29204

twanket@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tony Wanket
3219 Danfield Drive
Columbia, SC 29204

twanket@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Westlund
8063 W. Chenango Place
Denver, Co 80123

knwstlnd@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Spencer
5353 arlington expwy Apt 7_b
Jacksonville, Fl 32211

Savannah2358@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karyn Toole
2880 Davis Rd
Terry, Ms 39170

Kbtoole@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lee-hua Chou 184 Maxwell Road
Latham, NY 12110

hbowks@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alice Bull
401 Zachary Lane N
Plymouth, MN 55441

alice@abscreenonline.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Kesler
7310 Apple Creek Dr
mint hill, NC 28227

bnkesler@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Xinia Novia
16 ACADEMY RD
TRUMBULL, CT 6611

xinia2k@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tacinca Davis
PO Box 452 800 N Main Street
Cascade, ID 83611

denali115@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Nangle
172 Davis Rd.Dracut Ma. 01826
Dracut, MA 1826

loisnangle@verizon.netD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

TIMOTHY MILLER
691 S. HARRISON ST.
PALMYRA, PA 17078

TSMILLER4@COMCAST.NET

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diane Greeson 9125 Weketa Circle crossville, tn 38572

gumby_dido@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rick Humphreys
1433 N 1400 E
Logan, UT 84341

humbiz1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Davis
PO Box 452 800 N. Main St.
Cascade, ID 83611

jdvs12@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Church
108 Corleys Lane
Locust Grove, GA 30248

churchpatricia@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

C.Richard Scranton
8228 Birchwood Ave
Jenison, Mi 49428

crrelease@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kurt Vanderah
1224 Flagstone
Dyer, IN 46311

kurtvanderah@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kurt Vanderah
1224 Flagstone
Dyer, IN 46311

kurtvanderah@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Neff
539 Klarich Way
Lewiston, Mi 49756

S29694@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vida Justice
906 E Windhorst Rd
Seffner, Fl 33584

Hpydj@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Conrad
7516 Emerson Ln
Flower Mound, TX 75022

mailacct2@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vickie Barnhill
10310 W Broadford Ct
Star, ID 83669

vicknits54@live.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Duff
46 Bartons Lane Milton, MA 2186

funnynana@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Feeny
1516 N Calle Noventa
Mesa, AZ 85207

lfeeny@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas Fletcher
803 W. Walter Ave
Pflugerville, TX 78660

doug@dfletch.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Slice 124 Saks Ave
Lexington, SC 29072

rslice62@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

reginald rogers
4031 lovvorn rd
carrollton, ga 30117

rrogers22@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

MaryTherese Connors
500 Belmont Bay Drive Unit 409
Woodbridge, Va 22191

Yramconnors@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patrick Martin
11809 W. Tioga Street
Boise, Id 83709

pat@pjm71.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

susan Van Arsdale
814 Summer ST.
Lynnfield, Ma 1940

meshva@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Robertson
1810 field rook lane
Mount airy, Md 21771

Karen.s.robertson@mcpsmd.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Parks
1203 Westmoreland Loop
The Villages, Fl 32162

S29694@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Thiessen
205 Whitaker Court
Woodstock, IL 60098

dthiessenb@dls.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Tozser
29 Kossuth St Whippany Actuation Systems
Haledon, NJ 7508

tozser@netzero.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dale Young
4145 Normandy Ave
Dallas, TX 75205

dyoung@yoursummit1.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gina Greenlee
416 Hickory Timber
Antioch, Tn 37013

alexgreeng@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rebecca Proske
27 riflkin court
Manalapan, Nj 7726

Bexkyproske@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Becker
11904 Cornelius St.
Jacksonville, FL 32246

richardwbecker@hughes.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Veronica Nabizadeh
8200 Presidential Dr
Jacksonville, FL 32256

veronica.nabizadeh@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jean Moriarta
123 MacDuff Circle
State College, PA 16801

jhm756@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Bentley
1602 Bent River Dr SW
Lilburn, GA 30047

glbsr45@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Catherine Fernandez
16222 Goose Lake Drive
Crest Hill, IL 60403

jo.fernandez@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janie Thornton
4143 Millers Rd
Waycross, Ga 31503

janie.thornton@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kelly Welti
262 East Wabasha St.
Winona, MN 55987

kellynn_23@htomail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Polvadore
4100 Galway Avenue
Fort Worth, TX 76109

jim.b.polvadore@lmco.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donnie Thornton
4143 Millers Rd
Waycross, Ga 31503

janie.thornton@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

PHILIP COTE
930 CRAB ORCHARD DR
ROSWELL, GA 30076

philipcote@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lucy Watson
8000 SW 96th Street
MIami, FL 33156

kl4watson@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brenda Chubb
725 Rockford Drive
Harrisburg, PA 17112

hairbiz6@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edwin Figueroa
1300 Roundhouse Ct
Severn, MD 21144

figueroaef@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Fred Woodworth
4929 Wickham Drive
Muskegon, MI 49441

fmwoodworth@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andrew Swoyer
1480 Rochingham
Rochester Hills, Mi 48309

aswoyer@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thu-Thuy Bui
1559 Tahoe Ct
League City, Tx 77573

Bacthuy@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Catharine Chenoweth 2314 Bowersox Rd.
New Windsor, MD 21776

cathchen@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Reginald Benson
848 E. Hawk St.
Meridian, Id 83646

vters@rocketmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marianne Martin
1943 Radcliffe Drive North Clearwater, FL 33763

memartin1943@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ellen Nichols
606 NE 101st Street
Kansas City, MO 64155

NicholsEG@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marcia Woodworth
4929 Wickham Drive
Muskegon, MI 49441

fmwoodworth@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Carter
416 W MORASE
LEWISTOWN, MT 59457

FNPCARTER@GMAIL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Taylor
10749 High Crest Ct.
Howey in the Hills, FL 34737

taylorvie71@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

VonEsther Squires
264 Medina Court
Loveland, CO 80537

rvsquires@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Vesenmeir
5665 Arapaho Rd Apt 1636
Dallas, Tx 75248

Sharonvesenmeir@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Willie Grooms
2844 Woodhill Lane
Darlington, SC 29532

wmgrooms@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Julie F. Grooms
2844 Woodhill Lane
Darlington, SC 29532

jules67pt@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Vesenmeir
5665 Arapaho Rd Apt 1636
Dallas, TX 75248

sharonvesenmeir@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Annalisa Bon Lore
5470 Towanda Drive
Bethlehem, PA 18017

bonlore1@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marcus Young 1035 Sherman Drive
Cedar Hill, TX 75104

mtalmageyoung@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Johnnie Johnson
1460 Holly Brook Drive
Lexington, SC 29072

cjohnson05@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Crouch
2768 Palmetto Hall Blvd
Mt. Pleasant, SC 29466

rnacrouch@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stanton Niccolls
4232 N. Chatterton Ave
Boise, Id 83713

Sniccolls@cityofboise.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dan Rochon
12715 Knollbrook Drive
Clifton, VA 20124

dan@greetingsvirginia.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jenine Peters
167 Pennsbury Lane
Deptford, NJ 8096

jenine.brett2004@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Moffett Settle 10952 Main Range Trail
Littleton, CO 80127

moffettsettle@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

RONALD JOHNIKIN
9929 RIO SAN DIEGO DR #34
SAN DIEGO, CA 92108

MRJ6191@AOL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carolyn Roland
1024 Canterbury Trail
Desoto, TX 75115

roland4_1952@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeanne Tartaro
31 Peter Rd
North Reading, MA 1864

cardinal3@usa.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elizabeth Harding 9728 Kedvale Avenue
Skokie, IL 60076

elizabeth.harding@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Barrier
1230 E Mercer Lane
Phoenix, AZ 85020

ptbarrier@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Victoria Morlet
801 Coronado Ct. Apt B
San Diego, Ca 92109

victoriagracemorlet@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kelly Berg
1467 sigma circle
Cincinnati, OH 45255

BergerBrew@zoomtown.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Tischler
30016 Irons Knoll Rd
Millsboro, DE 19966

mids1982@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Scott Raymond
45 Bristol Road
Logan, Ut 84341

jsrmd2000@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anne Creo
330 Division St.
Clermont, FL 34711

annecreo@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kristine Allcroft 401 Henry St.
Riverside, NJ 8075

kdavisonallcroft@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ralph Power
2655 Crescent Hill Lane
Indianapolis, IN 46228

racegeekralph@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

SUZANNE CORMIER
33 ODD FELLOWS ROAD
EAST HAMPSTEAD, NH 3826

FOURPAWS3_2004@YAHOO.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

R. Walker Heagney
60 Wildwood Ave
Milford, CT 6460

Heagneyw@ceteranetworks.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eric Bowman
1210 Highview Drive
Annapolis, MD 21409

Ericbowman28@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerry DeBolt
1771 Marsh Wren Way
Palm Harbor, FL 34683

abcdbolts@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Cassidy
7247 Norman Rd
N Tonawanda, NY 14120

linjimcas@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Cassidy
7247 Norman Rd
N Tonawanda, NY 14120

Linjimcas@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven Read
4309 Stoddard Ln.
Batavia, OH 45103

steve.read@resonatecompanies.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alex Smith
12113 Topaz St
Clermont, FL 34711

alex@smithwell.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amanda Reineke
105 Cardinal Drive
Fairfield, IA 52556

amanda.reineke@cir2.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tanya Rodriguez
55 La Jolla Circle
Montgomery, TX 77356

Tlkrodriguez@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tony Montanari
1335 Valhalla Dr
Denver, NC 28037

tony.montanari@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Deborah Abelson
61 Ashworth Court
Amherst, NY 14228

dabelson@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

sarah campbell
309 old manchester rdw woodbury, tn 0

sarahcampbell1964@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Benjamin Phelps
2406 Eagle Vista Court
Fleming Island, Fl 32003

Benjamin.j.phelps@gmail

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Lowe
808 N 5th
Ottumwa, I 52501

mmlowe2010@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

michael emerson
909 w stratford dr
Peoria, IL 61614

mikeeemersonis@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Baute
204 Hidden View Cove
Benton, TN 37307

Judybaute@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steve Weiss
4084 Seneca Avenue
Camp Hill, PA 17011

brcewain@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

susan Cantrell
20644 beaver ridge rd montgomery village, md 20886

scantrell24@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Delores Rollins
146 Spence Creek Lane
Murfreesboro, Tn 37128

Drollins1010@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Caswell
1830 Hanley Rd.
Central Point, OR 97520

pcaswell@ceteranetworks.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Herbst
925 Burgess Hill Rd
Naperville, il 60565

davidcfp1@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Becky Gillen
755 N Main St Bangor, PA 18013

rbdelaney@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Seanna Phelps
2406 eagle vista court
Fleming island, Fl 32003

Ostrichs@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Teira
196 Village Green Ave
Jacksonville, Fl 32259

joeteira@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Webb
11209 Windsong Ct
Clermont, Fl 34715

billwe@digital.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jorg Schueler
20915 South Miles St.
Clinton Township, MI 48036

jorg007@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven Sartor
9122 Memorial Valley Drive
Spring, Tx 77379

championvet@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diane Schildknecht
775 Bennett Court
Carmel, IN 46032

dmsindy@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Beckstrom
11047 Hunting Hawk Road
Las Vegas, NV 89179

smbeck66@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas Beckstrom
11047 Hunting Hawk Road
las vegas, nv 89179

smbeck66@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Tobin
872 Media Street
Bethlehem, PA 18017

jmt872@rcn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Tobin
872 Media Street
Bethlehem, PA 18017

jmt872@rcn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Del Ericson
3131 Laurelwood Dr.
Twin Falls, ID 83301

delericson@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel Clock
10 Brush Hill Rd
Litchfield, CT 6759

dan@fnorthclark.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Brown
8948 Beautyleaf Way
Jacksonville, Fl 32244

r103ashift@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kris Beaver
342 Hoernerstown Rd
Harrisburg, Pa 17111

kebeav@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Matthew Harper
1313 W Carmen Ave 2N
Chicago, IL 60640

harperm1@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ron Beauregard
40627 N 6th Ave
Phoenix, AZ 85086

rwbeauregard@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kay Townsend
7440 HARBOUR ISLE
INDIANAPOLIS, IN 46240

sunkis2680@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Chris Finefrock
2157 Nolt Drive
Akron, Oh 44312

nwchris8@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tom Andresen
9 Foxwood Lane
Litchfield, NH 3052

twa1948@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Davidenko
3125 Sondra Dr. unit 102
Fort Worth, Tx 76107

sgdavidenko@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Craig Coit
6555 North Rockwell
Chicago, Il 60645

Craicoit@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tonya Weaver
6234 N 800 W
Royal Center, IN 46978

tonya.weaver@lpl.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John McCachren
3784 Deer Run
Denver, NC 28037

john_mc@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Rawers
5539 Safari Dr.
Liberty Twp., Oh 45044

anjenbr@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Lyons
1186 Gillespie Dr N
Palm Harbor, FL 34684

tlyonman@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lemuel Cox
2771 Fry Gap Road
Arab, AL 35016

juto@otelco.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Beverley Withrow
4688 Bradley Dr
Fairfield, OH 45014

bjwith@zoomtown.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

dan darr
5340 Winchester Pike Canal Winchester, oh 43110

danandarr@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephanie Norberg 10701 Cambridge Ct.
BURNSVILLE, Mi 55337

norberg.stephanie@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Eisenhaure
20 Goodhouse Road
Litchfield, CT 6759

eizie@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brenda Hollis
815 Meadowview Dr.
Loganspro, IN 46947

bhollis@logansportmemorial.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa Downham
841 Walnut Ridge East
Logansport, IN 46947

sales@midamericaradio.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dan Johnston
1220 E. Basenji
Meridian, ID 83642

djohnston@idahopower.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Paulson
2069 87 th st sw
Byron Center, Mi 49315

Orp1317@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jill Struyk
3110 Druid Hill Drive
Des Moines, IA 50315

jillstruyk@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Felicity Boyer
2164 Wexford Rd
Palmyra, PA 17078

fboyer1@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gina Warren
3800 Rosemont Blvd 113b
Fairlawn, OH 44333

gina.warren@valmarksecurities.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Grice
7237 Williams Rd.
Lansing, Mi 48911

gricegolf1@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anita Pully
7760 S Hope Ave
Yuma, Az 85364

mamaplpn@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anita Pully
7760 S Hope Ave
Yuma, Az 85364

mamaplpn@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Pierce
5210 Aldeburgh Court
Suwanee, Ge 30024

dpierce@catalystwealthmanagement.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Arthur
107 west st
laingsburg, mi 48848

edward.j.arthur@mwarep.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Lumpkin
5000 CR 4081
Scurry, TX 75158

cheryl0012@live.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Colleen Taylor
304 Quartermile Road
Greenville, PA 16125

crtaylor@wernerco.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Martin Weber
14590 119th Street North Stillwater, MN 55082

iceroses@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Bruner
8 Pineneedle Rd
Georgetown, MA 1833

donnasfabulousfinds@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Lafond
PO Box 77 N6322 lakeshore Dr.
Wakefield, MI 49968

william_lafond@financialgrp.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michelle Landis
483 N County Road 400 W
Logansport, IN 46947

mlandis@areafive.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Cummings
97 Thorndale Road
Slingerlands, NY 12159

jjcummings@nycap.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carolyn Earnest
1556 E. County Road 300 N.
Logansport, IN 46947

bcearnest92201@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Shannon
114 Plum St.
Greenville, Pa 16125

gmashannon3@neo.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janice Corley
4022 W.141st St Apt. #8
Hawthorne, CA 90250

jcorley59@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jacquelyn Ward
3935 Chicora Wood Place
Jacksonville, FL 32224

jaci.a.ward@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rosalind Henderson
12818 Grant St
Crown Point, In 463079123

roz@regionaldata.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Jones
8956 S Chicago St
Star City, IN 46985

dmj@pwrtc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shellie Boss
2993 W. South Slope Rd.
Emmett, ID 83617

sboss@blm.gov

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Foerman
9560 W. State Rd. 16
Royal Center, IN 46978

garyjfoe@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa Farrer
6891 W. Co. Rd. 325 N.
Royal Center, IN 46978

lisa@farrerstockfarms.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jacob Landis
4438 W 200 N
Peru, In 0

jake.landis3@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jacob Landis
4438 W 200 N
Peru, In 0

jake.landis3@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Guillette
62 Skidmore Road
Winter Haven, Fl 33884

dguillette@polk.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Pat McGuire
11246 S. Talman
Chicago, IL 60655

mcgwof20@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anna Pfau
67 Burr Street
West Hartford, CT 6107

anna.pfau@cbre.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

vicki lassiter
7832 ridgeview lane
logansport, in 46947

lrodvick@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

marcia caulkins
9409 drake ave evanston, IL 60203

marcia.caulkins@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Eason
18268 N. Franklin Blvd
Nampa, ID 83687

beason@micron.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven Moore
3208 Hilltop Dr.
Danville, IL 61834

stekimo78@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Harmon
4838 E Co Rd 1000 N
Lucerne, In 46950

slw1955@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mindy Scott
5150 COHAY DR
HORN LAKE, MS 38637

jklmfamily@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lou Scott
5150 COHAY DR
HORN LAKE, MS 38637

jklmfamily@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

thomas carney
315 N CO. RD. 700 E.
logansport, in 46947

tomc8825@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Phillip Miller
1127 Lake Ridge Rd.
DanvilleIl, Il 61832

smiller@acton-snyder.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

albert harnicar
102 woodruff st
litchfield, ct 6759

afharn@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Chris Murphy
4686 252nd St
Wyoming, mn 55092

smurphsbagged49@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Robichaud
11606 Louisiana Ave N
Champlin, MN 55316

hamdonut@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

CHRISTOPHER BOWMAN
608 SOUTH BROWNLEAF RD SHERWOOD FOREST
NEWARK, De 19713

DELPARK1@AOL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janis Pszwaro
133 Jefferson St.
Mt. Laurel, NJ 8054

www.Calljanis@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David McCullough
2929 Granada Ave
San Diego, Ca 92104

mcc29@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Masatake Kawamoto
11538 e. banyan rim dr.
whittier, ca 90601

mas@maskawamoto.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Scott
4542 Colorado Ave N
Crystal, MN 55422

scottbork@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Brown
3068 Kent Road Unit 504
Stow, OH 44224

richard.brown216@yahoo.mail

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Grady Paul
148 Timber Ridge Rd
Hummelstown, Pa 17036

ghpaul@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Scott
4542 Colorado Ave N
Crystal, MN 55422

scottbork@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathryn Brown
3068 Kent Road Unit 504
Stow, OH 44224

richard.brown216@yahoo.mail

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Scott
4542 Colorado Ave N
Crystal, MN 55422

scottbork@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Young
323 Princeton Ave
Hubbard, Oh 44425

Rqy1959@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

SHEILA DeARMENT
229 CLINTON ST
GREENVILLE, PA 16125

erielady47@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brenda Smith
2237 Raven Trail
West Columbia, SC 29169

brendasmith63@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Kingston
1408 E. Emerson Street
Bloomington, IL 61701

kingstonfinancial@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynn Gossfeld
8377 Stone Creek Drive
Chanhassen, MN 55317

lgossfeld@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anne Laverty
57 Otis Street
Melrose, MA 2176

alaverty@rubinrudman.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel Weintraub
2417 W. 18th St.
Wilmington, DE 19806

dlw213@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carrie Sigler
20 Burning Tree Drive
Hilton, NY 14468

bluebell2482@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Huber
22999 Medley Lane
Oakland, Il 61943

thuber@consolidated.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Snyder
734 west cherry street
Palmyra, Pa 17078

Iluvlitehouses@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elizabeth Chilcott
501Main St P O Box 61
Burnettsville, IN 47926

lizziejane55@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George Weller
1220 N. Logan Ave 1220 N. Logan Ave
Danville, IL 61832

gweller33@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Francis Degrado
13153 sage court
homer glen, il 60491

fjdegradoil@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diane Kulas
2121 Heron Lake Drive #302
Punta Gorda, FL 33983

nrk230@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Deborah Records
107 Old Point Rd
Wilmington, DE 19803

records54@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Calli Dye-Schmidt
8743 Balsa St
Rancho Cucamonga, CA 91730

callid@purposechurch.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Moosbrugger
1090 Pinellas Bayway South Sunset Watch Condo C-5
Tierra Verde, FL 33715

mcmoos@icloud.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Moosbrugger
1090 Pinellas Bayway South Sunset Watch Condo C-5
Tierra Verde, FL 33715

mcmoos@icloud.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debbie Wickham
3690 S. Como Ave.
Meridian, ID 83642

debbie@wickhamrealtors.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Hertel
32 Gunnison Road
Boxford, Ma 1921

Richard.hertel@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Hertel
32 Gunnison Road
Boxford, Ma 1921

Richard.hertel@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Erin Grace
12449 Glasgow Dr
Romeo, MI 48065

EDG.62317@GMAIL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dennis Mantel
10651 Schneider PL.
St.John, IN 46373

djmant50@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Campbell
5 Patricia Circle
Enfield, CT 6082

dpprcampbell@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Coles
2352 E. Hypher Dr
Meridian, Id 83642

jcoles@designwestid.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Reimold
10 Callahan Rd.
Greenville, Pe 16125

jreimold@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Gatlin
1350SanBernardinoRd. #29
Upland, CA 91786

bgatlin6@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gloria Taylor
1133 Brandy Lake View Circle
Winter Garden, Fl 34787

glo1015@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lorraine Maceno
320 Lincoln Hall RD
Elizabeth, Pa 15037

lmaceno@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nicholas Panchyshyn 12040 Nevada Court
Champlin, MN 55316

npanch@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Martha Mantel
10651 Schneider Pl
Saint John, In 46373

Mjmant53@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wanda Page
4 Woodmere
Middletown, PA 17057

wjpage@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lester Hawkins
2948 South County Road 125 West
Logansport, IN 46947

les0899@icloud.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eric Barthel
16577 Maplegrove St
Riverside, CA 92503

eric@cbcis.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

MARVIN RUNDELL
25 N 5TH ST
CAMBRIDGE, ID 83610

MLROCKY@AOL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Rhodes
300 S First ST
Conneaut Lake, PA 16316

crhodes@zoominternet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sara Nixon
3430 N Coolidge Ave
Wichita, KS 67204

madamatom@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Keryn Shipman
8311 E Via De Ventura #2042
Scottsdale, AZ 85258

wx1girl@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marco White
735 Michaels Creek
Evans, GA 30901

marcojwhite@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gabriel J Nixon
3430 N Coolidge Ave
Wichita, KS 67204

darthgaber@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Heidi Cameron
136 W. 800 S.
Burley, ID 83318

cameronrh@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kip A Nixon
3430 N Coolidge Ave
Wichita, KS 67204

madamatom@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Garry Hollis
815 Meadowview Dr.
Logansport, IN 46947

hollisgb@frontier.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Randy Greiner
4425 Jamestown Dr.
LOGANSOPRT, In 46947

greiner.rj@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Cameron
136 W. 800 S.
Burley, ID 83318

cameronrh@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rose Grimes
4939 Tall Oaks Drive
Monrovia, MD 21770

rgrms@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Grimes
4939 Tall Oaks Drive
Monrovia, MD 21770

rgrms@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Wilson
507 Pointe of Oaks Rd.
Summerville, SC 29485

richardwilson@jwaluminum.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barry Gleason
13000 E. Ogara rd.
Harrison, Id 83833

bgleason50@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Terry Flanley
1432 Wind Hill Rd.
Coopersburg, PA 18036

jwflan2@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dana Humphreys
1253 North Street
Suffield, DT 6078

sdhhumphreys@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Winkelman
1703 West St
Yankton, SD 57078

Slwinkelman@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

brad rozzi
200 4th st
logansport, IN 46947

brozzi31@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gregory Sacco
415 Winterberry Dr
Middletown, De 19709

Grsacco@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anna Lee Shank
11834 Daniel
Boise, ID 83713

castlehuntress@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anna Lee Shank
11834 Daniel
Boise, ID 83713

castlehuntress@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Shank
11834 Daniel
Boise, ID 83713

urock@cableone.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Teresa Morgan
8408 S CR 300 E
Walton, IN 46994

terimorgan@kitchellagency.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian O
11505 South Marathon Lane
Plainfield, IL 60585

briankokeeffe@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lyle Curtis
10214 W 99th Terrace
Overland Park, KS 66212

lylewcurtis@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paula linehan
8679 Craigston Ct
Dublin, OH 43017

paula@paulagroup.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vernon Ricker
1323 Concho Drive
Allen, TX 75013

vardad@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marcia Sacco
415 Winterberry Dr
Middletown, DE 19709

Msacco914@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard A. Reed
4301-35 Avenue No.
St. Petersburg, Fl 33713

deerrahn@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Hawkinson
350 SW 17th Street
Boca Raton, Fl 33432

amy.hawkinson@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margie Rose
5509 Prairie Schooner Dr.
Colorado Springs, CO 80923

margie.rose@cambridgeresource.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roger Post
2612 Alice Bell Road
Knoxville, TN 37917

rogerepost@bellsoouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Kalembkiewicz
5284 Christie Ave SE
Kentwood, MI 49508

mjkale13@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Shepler
720 Erie Ave
Logansport, In 46947

dshepler@sheplerconstruction.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Nofi
2096 Evans Prairie Trail
The Villages, FL 32163

nofiner@technicalassociates.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Benjamin Rotz
543 W 83rd Place
Indianapolis, In 46260

therotzfamily@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charla Buatte
5434 S Pegasus Way
Boise, ID 83716

charbuat1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

melanie salyer
5814 simmul circle
indianapolis, In 46221

ms83336@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Max Alkire
112 Laurel Ln
Saint Marys, WV 26170

maxalkire@frontiernet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

pamela salyer
360 amherst bend
dayton, oh 45440

pamela.salyer@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Becky Elswick
12903 Magnolia Pointe Blvd
Clermont, FL 34711

rcelswick@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

bert salyer
360 amherst bend
dayton, oh 45440

salyerbert@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Faye Berger
7810 Winnetka Heights Drive
Golden Valley, Mi 55427

bergers11@netzero.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dale Southam
1303 W. 9th Street
Wilmington, DE 19806

lin.dale@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frances Colter
5519 N 73rd Dr 5519 N 73rd Dr
Glendale, AZ 85303

fcolter@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frances Colter
5519 N 73rd Dr 5519 N 73rd Dr
Glendale, AZ 85303

fcolter@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel Ho
302 Ocean Blvd W Supply, NC 0

hoho@atmc.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Downham
841 Walnut Ridge East
Logansport, IN 46947

fleetwood52@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

paul widmayer
4565 greenbriar rd
williamsville, ny 14221

paw4565@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Baumler
19856 E. Union Drive
Centennial, CO 80015

tombaumler@assetonellc.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

kathleen widmayer
4565 greenbriar rd
williamsville, ny 14221

klw4565@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Just 142 Pine Tree Road
Bloomingdale, NJ 7403

nancyjust@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Delsman
13189 w. Bluebonnet ct.
Boise, ID 83713

jwdelsman@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Palmieri
7440 Islander Lane
Hudson, Fl 34776

palmieri4109@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Allen Schieber
2530 High Street
Logansport, IN 46947

roots56@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frances Colter
5519 N 73rd Drive
Glendale, AZ 85303

fcolter@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Atwood
8835 Donnybrook Drive
Boise, ID 83709

ddatw@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anne Peterson
3443 West 138th Terrace
Leawood, KS 66224

aepeterson@tgfsi.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Murrell Jay Eichelberger
13917 Lamont Dr
Orlando, FL 32832

lin-jay@jay-e.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Victor Zwierlein
205 cedar dr
Grand prairie, Tx 75052

Dazzzzzs@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Maged
302 McKibben Street
Rossvillw, IL 60963

tmaged@nwcable.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christine Williamson
219 Pontiac Ct
Logansport, IN 46947

christinebw52@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Arthur Efron
123 Woodward Ave
Buffalo, Ne 14214

efron@buffalo.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sabeen Minns
583 Corbett Ave
San Francisco, CA 94114

sabeenster@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Swoyer
2520 north 30th st.
boise, id 83703

sswoyer1@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Adcock
2030 C.R.108
Carthage, Tx 75633

adcockd16@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

russell decker
731 cook road rural hall, nc 27045

russelldecker@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marvin Stallman
100 Thompson De SE Unit 306
Cedar Rapids, IA 52403

marvinstallman@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

michael stephens 3593 mill road gainesville, ga 30504

mike_stephens62@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Chelsea Atchison
6220 Poppleton Ave
Omaha, NE 68106

matchison01@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Boger
125 Wind Forest Ct
CLARKESVILLE, Ge 30523

nancykbig@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

grace berry
514 n. wilmette ave westmont, il 60559

graceberry26@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephanie Abelson
2603 Juniper Ave
Boulder, CO 80304

stephanieabelson@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Petrucci
6345 Tanglewood Dr NE
St. Petersburg, FL 33702

scottpetrucci@cs.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jason Nelson
8156 Leeshore Drive
Maineville, OH 45039

jason.nelson@fuse.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Leonard Knopp
12540 Barranger Drive
Farmington, AR 72730

rebelmule12@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol P Seltzer
8150 Indigo Ridge Ter University Park, FL 34201

carolpseltzer@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gisele Nze
1631 Sierra Ridge Dr.
Orlando, fl 32820

gisele@winchesterinsurance.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Beryl Reinking
4606 High St
Logansport, In 46947

tworeinkings@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Virginia Burgess
508 Ginger St
Bloomfield, NM 87413

reading_hound@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathrine Berger
1437 Thistlewood Wat
Carmichael, CA 95608

toobusytowork@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

E Pfeffer
3800 Powell lane
Falls Church, Va 22041

Pfeffere@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dave Cohen
5230 Carroll Canyon Rd #318
San Diego, CA 92121

dave@hochmancohen.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Martin Barkalow
501 Rosetta Ave
Miamisburg, OH 45342

martybarkalow@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Cohen
3290 Avenida de Sueno
Carlsbad, CA 92009

dcohen@1stallied.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ruth Schoening
6137 W, Ken Caryl Place
Littleton, CO 80128

ruthschoening@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Walker Heagney
60 Wildwood Ave
Milford, CT 6460

Heagneyw@ceteranetworks.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Walter Sachs
3313 Cherokee Ridge Trail
Tallahassee, FL 32312

wahoofsu@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ronald salica
6005 n. Invergordon paradise valley, az 85253

njbaron2001@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rey Descalso
2946 Park Meadow Drive
Apopka, FL 32703

rey@privadawealth.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Becky Cholewka
4783 E. Cloudburst Ct.
Gilbert, AZ 85297

Becky@gilbertlawoffice.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Jordan
400 Holt St.
Flomaton, Al 36441

donaldfjordan@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Beard
10160 Trails End Road
Chanhassen, MN 55317

pbeard@skywatersearch.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Chisholm
5 Drummond Court
Danvers, Ma 1923

patriciachisholm23@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Timothy Brennan 1724 Elmwood ave
wilmette, il 60091

tbrennan@pinnaclefinancial.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Guy Blakey
321 Coble Drive
Longwood, FL 32779

guyblakey@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Walt Keaton
645 Yardarm Drive
Apollo Beach, Fl 33572

longgonegator@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dwight Raymond
14752 Hillside Road
Leavenworth, ks 66048

dlljjb@kc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

VIRGINIA BAKER
519 E 350 N
LOGANSPORT, IN 46947

ginnyb44@icloud.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Victor Tanguy III
1013 N Plum ST
Plymouth, IN 46563

detanguy@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Timohty Jenkins
2084 Ft Harrods Drive
Lexington, KY 40513

tim.jenkins@keystoneky.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Hugh Eddy
211 E. Oak St.
Caldwell, Id 83605

keddyheddy@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ernest Johnson
9225 Warbler Ave.
Ocean springs, MS 39564

rickil@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Whitley
8925 Clark av
parkville, MO 64152

mike.whitley@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ken Hicks
25 Mariner Cove Buena Park, CA 90621

kmhicks@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary VonDerheide
1306 N Raccoon Hill Rd
Peru, IN 46970

gpvonderheide@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frank Santo
4442 San Juan Dr
Hernando Beach, FL 34607

fasanto@tampabay.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Harold Lewellyn
14934 Midway rd
Nampa, ID 83651

arrow262@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Troy Wooten
7115 Stellhorn Rd
Fort Wayne, IN 46815

troy1@epcoins.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Terry Werden
PO Box 278
Orient, NY 11957

Ptwerd@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Hutchinson
410 Lake of The Woods Dr
Venice, FL 34293

jrcmhutch60@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jim Thomson
2228 George St.
Logansport, In 46947

asksmokey1@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

R. Boltz Schultz
60 Park Edge
Berkeley Heights, NJ 0

Rbssrs@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Thomson
2228 George St.
Logansport, In 46947

asksmokey1@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Keith Rauterkus
9153 SW 70th Loop
Ocala, Fl 34481

krauterkus@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Ammirati
5750 Herons
Viera, FL 32955

mammirati@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

gary pelletier
24 strafford lane bedford, nh 3110

gary.pelletier@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Denise DeFranco
2309 Glenbrook Way
Las Vegas, Nv 89117

defranco2@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thad Pugmire
3727 Waco Street
San Diego, CA 92117

tspugmire@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Gorgone
28 Chase Street
Danvers, MA 1923

lindawgorgone@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Keaton
645 Yardarm Drive
Apollo Beach, FL 33572

longgonegator@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wendy Fehner
2405 CR 108
Carthage, TX 75633

Wfehner@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Schafer
1378 N State Road 25
Logansport, IN 46947

swschafer@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Kirkwood
1915 Chieftain Row
Logansport, IN 46947

bkirkwd52@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Irish
4149 Thousand Oaks NE
Grand Rapids, MI 49525

richardirish@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Hodgman
4507 Rowe ave
Farmington, NM 87402

bhodgman_2@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ian Friedlander
3215 Woods Edge
Walworth, NY 14568

iodif@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mildred Norton
724 Surrey Drive
Lowell, IN 46356

mjnorton@bardensanimalclinic.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Wong
1535 Lidstrom Pl E
Port Orchard, WA 98366

purltwoknitone@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brent Pahnke
5858 cobblestone lane waunakee, Wi 53597

retiresoon@gsirep.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Hank Cleare
147 Harbor Drive
Tavernier, Fl 33070

hcleare@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

KATHRYN Study
18322 W WILLIAMS BEND DR
CYPRESS, TX 77433

kstudy@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lauren Ivie
6 Road 3333
Aztec, NM 87410

livie@sjrmc.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debra White
1020 Sunset Bay Ct.
Granbury, TX 76048

Debrafw@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert B. Schultz
60 Park Edge
Berkeley Heights, NJ 0

rbssrs@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sarah Smith
9 Old Prestwick
Sapphire, N 28774

sarahkate822@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Matthew Owens
2242 Van Dorn St
Lincoln, Ne 0

mmowens82@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bain Nickels
140 Sleepy Fawn Park
Columbus, MS 39702

bain.nickels@lpl.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jack Allman
125 Butterfly Pass 125 Butterfly Pass
Martindale, TX 78655

Sadiegirl125@Yahoo.Com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jack Allman
125 Butterfly Pass 125 Butterfly Pass
Martindale, TX 78655

Sadiegirl125@Yahoo.Com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Rauterkus
9153 SW 70th Loop
Ocala, Fl 34481

prauterkus@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gerry Gibbs
8663 Fremont Ave N
Brooklyn Park, MN 55444

gerry.gibbs@brooklynpark.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

LINDA STEVENS
9840 RED RIVER CIRCLE
FOUNTAIN VALLEY, CA 92708

LINDASTEVENSCA@GMAIL.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shanna Clark
1717 S. Cypress, #1122
Wichita, KS 67207

Shannac@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Grisetti
35 Cochran road
Fredonia, Pa 16124

bobbyg61@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ruth Pancoast
301 W. Roselawn 301
Danville, IL 61832

ruthp4@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jacqueline Cayer
586 Hill St
Bristol, CT 6010

jacayer@snet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Victor
187 Bayou Bend Rd
Groveland, FL 34736

Mikevictorranch@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Starr
126 E. Sycamore Ave.
Bloomfield, NM 87413

skstarr@sjrmc.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Dohle
31 Road 2785
Aztec, NM 87410

jdohle@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Casey Berecka
2834 Canyon Drive
Grapevine, TX 76051

burntblue53@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Fred Bauer
552 Shadow Lane
Simi Valley, CA 93065

fredambauer@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peggy Peterson
5679 Pond Pine Pt
Oviedo, FL 32765

peggy@winchesterinsurance.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jessica Strycker
2852 E. Santa Rosa Dr.
GILBERT, AZ 85234

jessica.clara.lee@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jim Rogne
11385 Preserve Ln N
Champlin, MN 55316

jrogne4580@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Mireles
3241 Reeves Canyon Rd
Redwood Valley, CA 95470

sananncole@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Harriet Arvey
344 W 24tg St.
Houston, Tx 77008

Harrietarvey@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dan Wilburn
1251 Diamond Blvd
Valparaiso, In 46385

dbwilburnws@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jonnelle Hollins
3502 Arbor Street
Houston, Tx 77004

Jabcin@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marcus Hagenah
4267 W Quail Ridge Dr
Boise, Id 83703

mbhagenah@cableone.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mindi-Kim Schrum
2116 Tierra
Farmington, NM 87401

mkswrites@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven Jacobs
0 N. 630 Courtney Lane
Winfield, IL 60190

sjacobs192@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary A Galindo
32610 Westwood Square West Dr
Magnolia, Tx 77354

Magalindo9@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

jim wilson
210 e. south street
danville, Il 61832

wilsauto2@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

W Gillan
PO Box 1101
Goldthwaite, Tx 76844

Wb.gillan@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Melinda Garrett
108 Whipple Drive
Bellaire, Tx 77401

mhg1003@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Clyburn
372 FM 3277
Livingston, Te 77351

ronc77351@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Lipman
321 6th Avenue, Apt 403
Asbury Park, NJ 7712

Jethrotash2@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Louise Polkinghorn
11109 Christensen Cove
Austin, TX 78739

lmpolkinghorn@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Magann
937 E. Potter Dr.
Phoenix, Az 85024

Lindaqm06@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Magann
937 E. Potter Dr.
Phoenix, Az 85024

Lindaqm06@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Workman
102 West Wood St.
West Lafayette, IN 46947

katie.workman94@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Paskman
680 Cheoy Lee Circle
Winter Springs, FL 32708

kpaskman@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Wilson
7639 Halleys Dr
Roxborough, Co 80125

rileydog@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anthony Sciortino
1217 Walsh
Rio Rancho, Nm 87124

ajsciortino@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anthony Sciortino
1217 Walsh
Rio Rancho, Nm 87124

ajsciortino@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jack Schmitt
10904 Trails End Rd.
Leander, TX 78641

jkschmitt@austin.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carl Wetzel
7430 State Route 154
Tamaroa, Il 62888

carl_wetzel_016@nwcable.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ROBIN KAGAN
1025 12TH ST
BELLINGHAM, WA 982256637

RLKAGAN@KW.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jean Roselle
605 Heidman Rd
Columbia, Mo 65203

bedecked@live.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dallis Bowditch
2607 Hillside Drive
Logansport, In 45947

dnb1220@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Pevey
3524 Bodega Ct
Sacramento, CA 95864

pevey@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Colleen Springman
4025 Marquette st
Houston, Tx 77005

Coll_20002000@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jean Bazar
10904 trails end road Same
Leander, Tx 78641

Jbazar@austin.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Perry
4 Lemere Drive
Pelham, NH 3076

mperry422@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mike Mammini
7945 Purple Sage
San Diego, CA 92127

mike@mammini.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mike Mammini
7945 Purple Sage
San Diego, CA 92127

mike@mammini.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Craig Webber
11165 Tioga Street
Boise, ID 83798

craigfw6@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Krider
8950 Hunt Valley Dr. West
Jacksonville, Fl 32257

krider@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jason Knox
701 Northwestern Avenue
West Union, IA 52175

jasonknox@allenknoxassociates.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Valjean Lloyd
4732 E. Brisa Del Sur
Tucson, Az 85718

valnbob4@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Lutz
915 S. Prince St.
Palmyra, Pa 17078

randjatprince@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peggy Dunbar 2922 Bluebell Circle
Antioch, CA 94531

peggydunbar@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shirley Firmin
347 river Village Dr
Fallon, Nv 89406

firminscottjoyce@cccomm.nett

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ron Gordon
1742 W Delaware Rd
Logansport, IN 46947

ronkatgordon@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marsha Kearns
900 W Sierra Madre Ave. # 179
Azusa, CA 91702

marsha.kearns@dmghvac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Buehler
2920 Newport Circle
Plano, TX 75075

sn00ky1@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Chris Bouckaert
760 San Martin
Thousand Oaks, Ca 91360

FlikaSailor@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Deborah Piercy
1652 E CR 300 N
Logansport, IN 46947

debbye1652@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Leslie King
6024 Fair Haven Rd
Rhine, GA 31077

gal0464@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Matson
3016 Van Buren Ave
Ogden, Ut 84403

lmatson@parklandrep.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Johnston
2325 triple peak dr
Canyon lake, Tx 78133

Gardner.jognston@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Lash
512 Broadway
Hillsboro, IL 62049

rlash4@consolidated.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Larson
P O Box 307
Carson, Io 51525

scotkath22@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gloria Lutz
915 S. Prince St.
Palmyra, Pa 17078

randjatprince@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rex Piercy
1652 E CR 300 N
Logansport, IN 46947

rdpiercy1997@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Webber
6141E. Morningview Dr
Anaheim Hills, Ca 92807

bobwebber@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George Donner
99 Coal Bank Road
Greenville, PA 16125

georgedonner@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

randell roberts
24661 seth circle
dana point, ca 92629

rrober2@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jon Brandt
4200 W Memory Dr #2
Wasilla, AK 99623

jon.brandt@countryfinancial.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

kenneth ashfeld 177 halsey ave se buffalo, mn 55313

kashfeld@maplegrovemn.gov

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Aaron Bates
2337 S 122nd Ave
Omaha, NE 68144

aaron9287@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Flaherty
1250 Oakmead Parkway, Suite 210
Sunnyvale, Ca 94085

bflaherty@lumetasolar.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Strait
2075 S Pebblecreek Ln
Boise, ID 83706

mrstrait@cableone.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sarah Tatum
4800 Old Lehmann Rd
Kingsbury, TX 78638

saraht@hwtx.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Raymond Madray
13293 113th Ave
Largo, FL 33774

Madrayfoundation@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George   R Killingsworth
4806 Ethel st county road 107E
Pearland, Tx 77584

Hunter674@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Harriet Haas
368 Tintoretto Dr.
Osprey, Fl 34229

gkhh2000@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stefanie Mann
5030 Bayou Blvd
Baytown, TX 77521

smann441@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Phelps
18649 W. Lodge Dr.
Goodyear, AZ 85338

mphelps3@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

karen crouse
423 Adelma Beach Road
Port Townsend, WA 98368

kcrouse@olympus.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Bittel
8 South Merecr Street
Greenville, PA 16125

steve@bittel-co.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tod Groff
1550 Pleasant Hill
Logansport, IN 46947

groffb@frontier.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Borders
1406 Rice
Rosenberg, TX 77471

johnborders0793@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Wilson
507 Pointe Of Oaks Rd.
Summerville, SC 29485

cwilson013@sc.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robbie Shipman
205 White St
Hillsboro, IL 62049

rshipmanpmff@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JOSE CHANG
6431 NE 22 AVE
FORT LAUDERDALE, FL 33308

jchang954@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Herbert Moyer
51 Westside Drive
Exeter, NH 3833

herbert.moyer@prudential.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Mullins
9125 Landreth Rd
Litchfield, IL 62056

Mully2001@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gale Konkle
2169 Burlington Ave
Logansport,, IN 46947

gkonkle@frontier.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jacqueline Corley
12939 Whittington Dr 210
Houston, TX 77077

jcorley@houstonisd.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Allen Marfell
903 big four aveHillsboro
Hillsboro, Il 62049

amarfell@consolidated.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Chad Mullins
9125 Landreth Rd
Litchfield, IL 62056

chdmullins@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary J Bannamon
3500 N Butler #7101
Farmington, NM 87401

marybannamon@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

nina kauder
1809 N PALMWAY
Lake Worth, Fl 33460

kaudernina@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Jacobson
4100 greenriar # 365
Houston, Tx 77098

Brian.jacobson1226@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Baker
360 Valley Stream Circle
Hollister, MO 65672

suzqchick@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Louis Graham
25851 Avatar
Laguna Niguel, CA 92677

legraham2@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Moore
301 Via Presa
San Clemente, CA 92672

kath2you@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jan Acerro
654 W Lane Ave
Lima, OH 45801

Janacerro@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Timothy Way
1945 Stony Garden rd
Kintnersville, pa 18930

ltstridor02@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Conrad
2678 E. CR 200N
LogansportIN, IN 46947

bconrad816@Comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elvin Cloyd
7208 west dickman rd.
Melba, Id 83641

Unac61@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margaret Fort 18 Bennett Lane
Stony Brook, NY 11790

pfort22002@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debra Rimmer-Mayorga
16515 Creeksouth
Houston, Tx 77068

Drayo4now@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard J Padgett
5083 Seachase St
San Diego, CA 92130

fsconcierge@san.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robin Snitofsky
19510 Franz Road
Houston, TX 77084

robins53@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Una Cloyd
7208 W Dickman Rd Melba
Melba, Id 83641

unac61@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elvin Cloyd
7208 west dickman rd.
Melba, I 83641

Unac61@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cathy Wood
22215 SE Heidi Ln
Damascus, Or 97089

ec-wood@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard J Padgett
5083 Seachase St
San Diego, CA 92130

fsconcierge@san.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Earl Wood
22215 SE Heidi Ln
Damascus, Or 97089

ec-wood@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frank Tomkinson
253 W Hernley Rd
Manheim, PA 17545

tomkinson@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Enid Callaghan
1204 Glenwick Dr
Logansport, IN 46947

lilac14@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cathy Wood
22215 SE Heidi Ln
Damascus, Or 97089

ec-wood@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Felicitas Garza
4846 Hummingbird Street 4846 Hummingbird Street
Houston, Tx 77035

jgarza4846@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel Garza
4846 Hummingbird Street 4846 Hummingbird Street
Houston, Tx 77035

dgarza4846@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard J Padgett
5083 Seachase St
San Diego, CA 92130

fsconcierge@san.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marilyn Martin
1304 Spring Tree Ln
Kilgore, Te 75662

etxmouse@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

bruce dobson
115 winthrop st unit 1 winthrop, ma 2152

dobson5147@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Curtis Afflerbach
603 W. Cleveland
Cuero, Tx 77954

afflercg@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David LeDonne
4981e. C.R. 600s.
Walton, In 46994

Dcl4981@frontier.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sibyl Hardeman
579 Pine Ranch East Road
Osprey, FL 34229

sibylhy@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Catherine Casimiro
104-20 68 drive
Forest hills, Ny 11375

Casimirocc@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Russell
14611 Quail Creek Ct.
Houston, Tx 77070

kenneth.russell@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Feigert
2770 S Fox-North Rd
Hubbard, OH 44425

kfeigert@zoominternet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ed crampton
411 walnut st. #10374
green cove springs, fl 32043

erampton@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roxanne Jesionowski
504 Oberdick Drive
McKeesport, PA 15135

dr.j.androx@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rolando Magallanes
104-20 68 drive
Forest hills, Ny 11375

Rpmjr98@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Dishman
574 Lake Road
Hadley, Pa 16130

bdishman@windstream.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Benjamin Jacobson 3323 Winnsboro Ct.
Sugar Land, TX 77478

Fortbendagg@neo.tamu.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joan Crampton
411 Walnut st. #10374
green Cove Springs, FL 32043

joancrampton9@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Doug Day
131 N. Morse Ave.
Liberty, MO 64068

dday@harmonyvineyard.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nina Dervan
8 Oak Hill Road
Haverhill, MA 1830

peterninadervan@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David and Deborah Johnson
1109 villa francea
Palm Springs, CA 92262

mysndbox@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rolando Magallanes
104-20 68 drve
Forest hills, Ny 11375

Rpmjr98@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Trinoskey
2130 North St
Logansport, In 46947

Trinoskey1@frontier.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Catherine Casimiro
104-20 68 drive
Forest hills, Ny 11375

Katticat61@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cecile Sison
311 E 75th St. Apt. 3A
New York, NY 10021

cesison@cs.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ed Crampton
411 Walnut st. #10374
Green Cove Springs, FL 32043

ecrampton@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Clark Walter
144 Landa St. # 251
New Braunfels, TX 78130

cwaltertx@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janie Webb
6003 Meadowdale Road
Arlington, Tx 76017

jmwebbie@swbell.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven Loggans
3057 N. 3Rd Street
Desert Hills, AZ 85086

Stevenloggans@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ellen Houtkooper
325 S DeKalb St
Redwood Falls, MN 56283

cslundtrucking325@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JoAnn Holzman
21834 Belgian Ct
Mt Dora, Fl 32757

joannholzman@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Troas Mantooth
3631 malibu dr
Lima, OH 45807

mrs_madeuce@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marty Stabley
241 Hilltop Road
Hummelstown, PA 17036

stabley@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Wallace
5468 Main Rd.
Sweet Valley, PA 18656

SILVERFOXPA33@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Holzman
21834 Belgian Ct
Mt Dora, Fl 32757

joannholzman@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharron Lund
325 S DeKalb St
Redwood Falls, MN 56283

cslundtrucking325@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Andre de Florias
3914 W. Soft Wind Dr.
Phoenix, AZ 85310

newellde@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gilbert Spinnell
733 Verona Drive
Melville, NY 11747

gilspinn@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

L Reid Fillmore
947 Canyon Breeze Lane Draper, UT 84020

lrfillmore@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Thibedeau
2714 Lake Court Drive
St. Paul, MN 55112

tthibedeau@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Schilz
PO Box 261
Kirtland, NM 87417

lkschilz@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jamez Kitdy
208 e cypress at 941 204 9512, Fl 34266

Jkdiving@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jamez Kitdy
208 e cypress at 941 204 9512, Fl 34266

Jkdiving@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Hansa Patel
5602 Dairybrook Cove
Sugarland, Tx 77479

patelhansa722@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Spencer
2063 Fuerte St.
Fallbrook, Ca 92028

Kc6mie@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Corinne Lock 15021 Kimberley ct.
houston, TX 77079

cvlock47@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dolores deManuel-Kraus
20 Croyden Rd.
Mineola, NY 11501

ddeman@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

john Turner
4215 Balsam Lane
Jackson, Wy 83001

jturner@mwfbi.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lowell T. Currie
99 Landreth Lane
Litchfield, IL 62056

tjcurrie@consolidated.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

George Kraus
20 Croyden Rd.
Mineola, NY 11501

gk90@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kristi Mushinski
3119 a Saddle Ridge Ct
Richmond, Tx 77406

Krmushinski@sbcglobal.ney

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gilbert Toon
2718 Pete Thomas Rd
Pittsboro, NC 27312

gibt42@embarqmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gar Kelly
7482 carson st
Boise, Id 83709

Gark50@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Debra Gordon-Smith
1518 W. Main Street
Belleville, IL 62220

Dgordon_smith@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

jeff sowards
5089 Wyndham Ct
Bettendorf, IA 52722

jeffrey.n.sowards@mwarep.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bob Pifer
PO Box 251 216 E. Center Street
Royal Center, IN 46978

bobpifer@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas Hathaway
12302 Rebecca Lane
Santa Ana, CA 92705

joandoughathaway@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judy Sayers
11865 W Bowmont St
Boise, ID 83713

jjakt5@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kelly Cunningham-Shank
461 Shorewood Ln
Waterloo, NE 68069

centerstagedanz@csdanz.omhcoxmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

C.L. Avants
2905 Toler Rd
Rowlett, TX 75089

clavants@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cleo Cassidy
413 Dearborn St. Apt 9
Hillsboro, Il 62040

cdc6@consolidated.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Ehresamnn
10793 Greenfield Road Greenfield, MN 55357

bobe@hannalind.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerry Sayers
11865 W Bowmont St
Boise, ID 83713

jscrf250@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Person
3022 Winslow
Houston, TX 77025

krdp@swbell.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kristi Person
3022 Winslow
Houston, TX 77025

krdp@swbell.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robin Riggs
10 Janes Way
Raymond, IL 62560

rsriggs80@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Liebner
132 W. Co. Rd. 200 N.
Logansport, IN 46947

margoliebner@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Julia Rix
310 Marvin road
Elkins park, Pa 19027

Jwayrix@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Connie jones 400 garden st. golden, co 80403

forrestnconnie@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Matheis
16010 Metcalf
Overland Park, KS 66085

Susan@coffeecreekinteriors.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Feances Soule
#14 204 E. First Avenue
Post Falls, ID 83854

fransoule@frontier.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jack Meisel
350 W. 51st Street
New York, NY 10019

jkmyzl@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Clive Cowell
91-1312 Keoneula Blvd #202
Ewa Beach, HI 96706

cowelltravel3@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frank Korszoloski
43 Adelphi Trail
Hopatcong, NJ 7843

Fak4@optonline.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Butts
14944 E Archer Cir
Aurora, Co 80012

ronb747@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Nicodemus
5610 Hayworth Ave
Sioux City, IA 51106

ma_nicodemus@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Loretta Sandoval-Schrader
3003 N Carlton Ave
Farmington, NM 87401

lorsandoval@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paige Cullison
PO box 602 11 Cullison Lane
Hillsboro, IL 62049

pcullison@hillsboroschools.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Bauer
4600 N Shady Lane
Logansport, IN 46947

jimvickibauer@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Ammerman
2094 90th St.
Somerset, WI 54025

ockshar@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gloria Ollila
6511 154th. Lane N.W.
Ramsey, Mn 55303

glokyll@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sue Brown
140 14th St.
Clermont, Fl 34711

scbmdb29@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jean Sernik
95 N 3RD ST
GREENVILLE, PA 16125

jeans127@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

joan sorensen
5930 schumann dr.
fitchburg, wi 53711

joandsorensen@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

LEIGHTON BUSH
4535 BATON ROUGE DR
HERMITAGE, TN 37076

leighton@bushins.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Williamson
8670 N 95 E PO Box 50
Burrows, IN 46916

daisies@tds.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Johnson
8027 Watson Rd
Lantana, TX 76226

trey.johnson@lpl.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rhonda Wenger
1323 E Murray Dr
Farmington, NM 87401

haybud25@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Georgia Hertzke
10960 County Road 320
Rifle, CO 81650

ghertzke@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ellen Coolidge
300 Birchall Ln 101
Hoover, Al 35226

eelcoolidge@apl.co

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Otto
3435 Fox Run Road #217
Sarasota, Fl 34231

patricia.otto@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Eckhardt
22 Carriage Lane
Newark, DE 19711

eckhardt@udel.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brenda Whelan
3690 Singletree Road
Hartsel, CO 80449

bjwhelan58@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lonnie Gates
12061 Westover Road
Omaha, Ne 68154

lonnie.gates@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Terry Burton
2369 fairhill road rear
Sewickley, PA 15143

TBurton@InvestorsCapital.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Willie Johnson
2903 Wuthering Heights
Houston, Tx 77045

maejohnson4563@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Angela Nicodemus
5610 Hayworth Ave
Sioux City, IA 51106

ma_nicodemus@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda E Rehart
4428 Shady Hollow Loop
Lehi, Ut 84043

lindarehart@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margarit Strasser
P.O. Box 547
Bearsville, NY 12409

Margarit.Strasser@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JOSEPH FINN
805 E. TYLER AVE
LITCHFIELD, IL 62056

bassan62056@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marilyn Parker
4859 W. Slauson Avenue No. 326
Los Angeles, CA 90056

Wowlandm@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marilyn Parker
4859 W. Slauson Avenue No. 326
Los Angeles, CA 90056

Wowlandm@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

diana conrad
5931 North County Road 900 East
Peru, In 46970

djconrad@umail.iu.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Bingham
5151 North Kain Ave #44
Tucson, AZ 85705

luvmath03@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patsy Svare
3917 Mission Hills Rd
Northbrook, Il 60062

pjsvare@chatfieldgroup.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Faye Bryant
2111 Welch St. A328
Houston, TX 77019

fayebryant@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Bolenbaugh
16631 State Route 190
Fort Jennings, OH 45844

barbb@unverferth.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

dan harpst
6715 twp rd 212
findlay, oh 45840

dharpst@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Creel
4200 southwest 24 street
Fort Lauderdale, Fl 33317

Dcreel@facchina.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Cook
2612 Okeechobee Ln
Fort Lauderdale, Fl 33312

whitemarln1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Jones
144 Edgewater Dr
Noblesville, IN 46062

ssjjhj@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Palumbo
37 Star St
Ansonia, CT 6401

sandra.palumbo@ctf70.navy.mil

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mitchell Arlington
106 N. Pearl St.
Spencerville, OH 45887

mitchellarlington@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Melanie Uzzell
6513 Imogene St.
Houston, TX 77074

m-uzzell@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Martha Cotner
810 Hilltop Lane
Logansport, IN 46947

mart101@frontier.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Krebs
724 15th Ave. N.W.
Clinton, IA 52732

bkrebs@kraftfoods.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Clark
13030 N 7th Ave
Hillsboro, IL 62049

slc_jec@hughes.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Noyes
18 Westwood Dr.
Hillsboro, IL 62049

mnoyes@fcbhillsboro.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Laird
515 west St. John
Litchfield, Il 62056

Blaird1984@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Virginia Lyons
7 Devon Place
Eatons Neck, NY 11768

gngrat7d@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sheila Fischer
1118 South Prairie
Barrington, IL 60010

sheilafischer@ymail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Sessa
41 Olde Maple Farms
Enfield, CT 6082

ssj@snet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ernest Orsinger
57 Plummer McCullough Rd.
Mercer, PA 16137

eso@zoominternet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Garza
11763 N. Evelyn Circle
Hou, Tx 77071

sgarza_2002@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Herbert Karpicke
7717 Oldhaven St
Houston, TX 77074

hkarpicke@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Marlett
4930 Rabbit Mountain Ct.
Colorado Springs, CO 80924

jmarlett@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gerald Long
232 Bahia Ave
Hershey, PA 17033

longr55@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jayrajsinh Sindha
6468 Garden Ct.,
West Palm Beach, FL 33411

sindhajay@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alex Ricciuti
8 ponderosa dr
Melville, NY 11747

Tennispro1211@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alvin Freeman
68 West Pines Drive
Montgomery, Tx 77356

alf819@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Khushboo Barot
6468 Garden Ct
West Palm Beach, FL 33411

sunshinekhush@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jon Vogt
10303 Burnt Store Rd Unit# 120
Punta Gorda, FL 33950

jw612sfvogt@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Merrell
15035 Westpark Dr 801
Houston, Tx 77082

dsmerrell5348@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Merrell
15035 Westpark Dr 801
Houston, Tx 77082

dsmerrell5348@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alan Shank
461 Shorewood Lane
Waterloo, NE 68069

ashank8@coxz.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Foutz
105 Pine Ct
Logansport, In 46947

lfoutz105@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marcus Hagenah
4267 W Quail Ridge Dr
Boise, Id 83703

mbhagenah@cableone.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Danny Rose
323 Greenwood Road
Marion, Va 24354

danny.rose@ceterais.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rex Horrocks
1826 Atlantic Ave
Fernandina Beach, FL 32034

rhorrocks@investorscapital.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sondra Faul
25339 Canary Ln
Porter, TX 77365

skfaul@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

RICK CRUSE
303 SOUTH ST PO BOX 224
MORRISONVILLE, IL 62546

RCRUSE@WRIGHTAUTOMOTIVE.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gene Hogan
4751 Butler Ter.
Lane, Ks 66042

hoganhill2@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elizabeth Michael 38 Nye Road
Hershey, PA 17033

bettymichael@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

ELSIE CARPENTER
3911 COUNTRY CLUB DR
FARMINGTON, NM 87402

ECARPENTER@SJRMC.NET

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Davis
106 Wood Lake Lane
Hillsboro, IL 62049

eickhoff@consolidated.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Langevin
270 oakbrook Lane
Torrington, Ct 6790

nlangevin270@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Keith Cressman
29682 Jarrett Circle
Laguna Niguel, CA 92677

keith.cressman@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Plecinoga
166-A Ocean Ave West
Salem, Ma 1970

eplec@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Grossi
3290 Shiloh Drive
Lima, OH 45801

pgrossi@woh.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bonnie Carpenter
15725 St Rt 67
Wapakoneta, OH 45895

carp1@bright.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gwendolyn Myers
5695 West Co. Rd 50 North 5695 W. co. rd. 50 N.
Logansport, IN 46947

gwendolyn.myers04@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Norman Hines, SR
3117 Homewood Pkwy.
Kensington, MD 20895

nrhines@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lynda Wicke
914 bent creek court
Richmond, Tx 77406

Lynwicke@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Maxine Chapman
608 Chamiza Ave
Aztec, NM 87410

maxine.65@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Myers
5695 West Co. Rd 50 North 5695 W. co. rd. 50 N.
Logansport, IN 46947

myersrg@wildblue.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Plecinoga
166-A Ocean Ave West
Salem, Ma 1970

eplec@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bobby Eanes
6791 Franie Ln
Arlington, Tn 38002

Eanesb@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dennis Holliman
919 Tuckaho Dr
Columbus, MS 39705

dennis.holliman@lpl.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Case
3010 community center dr
Venice, Fl 34293

Donkc30@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marian Wimsatt
4400 Hannon Dr.
Farmington, NM 87402

mwimsatt3@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alan Doyle
2362 . S. San Miguel Ddrive
Grand Junction, Co 81507

dylchrs@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Barol
109 Edgehill Road
Bala Cynwyd, PA 19004

DBarol@keyams.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Julie Tevis
119 E. Center Street P.O. Box 66
Royal Center, In 46978

julietevis3@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Melvin KUIPERS
5156 POTTER RD
DEMING, WA 98244

melkay2@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Krista Zehder
1447 Marble Canyon Way
Chula Vista, CA 91915

hello_krista@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Randall Hori
406 La Quinta Dr.
Banning, CA 92220

rhori514@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Sigrist
2786 Eastcliff Way
Lincoln, Ca 95648

ssigrist@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gail Roll
3515 Kenora Dr.
Spring Valley, CA 91977

groll@firstallied.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rebecca Burrell
16619 East Lake Drive
Lakeville, MN 55044

burrellra@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Franc Mendicino
72 E Cox Ln
Midvale, Ut 84047

Francnz@gmsil.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Matthew Wochos
5724 East Tierra Buena Lane
Scottsdale, AZ 85254

mwochos@mhennefin.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Leanne Smith
4424 E 55th Ave
Spokane, Wa 0

lozainesmith@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peter Brogniez
Suite 219 1885 FM 2673
Canyon Lake, TX 781334765

brogpetc@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Walker
325 Marymeade Drive
Summerville, SC 29483

Robert.V.Walker@mwarep.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Welker
7854 W State Road 16
Royal Center, IN 46978

welker269@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Mills
5055 Filarees Circle
Colorado Springs, CO 80917

jdlmills@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Manning
3807 Elm Street
Ellenton, Fl 34222

Wmanning@tkbowmanpa.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Borneman
17 Ladysmith Court
Hamilton, VA 20158

joeyb558@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Homler
2312 North Western Avenue
Farmington, NM 87401

nanhomler@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Josh Naylor
1390 blue ridge blvd elm grove, Wi 53122

joshnaylor88@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Salvador Rodriguez
336 Heather Way
South San Francisco, CA 94080

Salvador.Rodriguez@CeteraFS.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

david grabner
4103 Halifax Ct.
Glenarm, Md 21057

david@grabnerfinancial.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margaret Goodwin
1518 Suburbia Drive
Shreveport, LA 71105

pdsmargaret@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Valerie Jerrils
313 E 1000 N
Alexandria, IN 46001

vjerrils@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph A (Drew) Goodwin
1518 Suburbia Drive
Shreveport, LA 71105

mardrwg@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Heather Dorner
8723 North Stone Mill Road
Sylvania, OH 43560

heather.dorner@rockets.utoledo.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lyn Buerkett
204 W. Kinkead Rd.
Hillsboro, IL 62049

lbuerkett@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Greg Huber
7916 Main Street box 83
Old fort, Oh 44861

pathuber@ymail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Samantha LeRette
939 Abbington Drive
Crystal Lake, IL 60014

lerettes@ceteranetworks.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Paskman
680 Cheoy Lee Circle
Winter Springs, FL 32708

kpaskman@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Penny Thiessen
4 Abbey Rd
Perrysburg, OH 43551

penny.thiessen@utoledo.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Toon
137 William Fdgewater, Fl 32141

jact1@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Paskman
680 Cheoy Lee Circle
Winter Springs, FL 32708

kpaskman@mac.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marie Hipple
134 Shoshone Trail
Mercer, PA 16137

husk134@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Maynard Porter
1726 Grandview Blvd
Sioux City, Ia 51105

maynardporter@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Edwards
5720 Shadow Pines Court
Lincoln, Ne 68516

bandkedwards@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas Propeck
2604 W 141st St
Leawood, KS 66224

dougpropeck@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Brothen
1565 Devils Lake Dr.
Mora, MN 55051

Jbrothen286@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeffrey Pocock
6090 County Road 175
Bellevue, oh 44811

pokey@woh.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lois Burgher
401 Skipper Ct.
Union, Oh 45322

bartend35@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Melinda Gillum
6882 E SR 218
Camden, IN 46917

spillumis@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Balaban
PO Box 485
Broadalbin, NY 12025

Bklynbrn@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jay Clark
5811 Kylie Pl
Farmington, NM 87401

jbirdybird@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Walker
315 E Broadway St
Alexandria, IN 46001

cjwalker2656@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Hilda Gentry
4035 Levonshire Drive
Houston, TX 77025

hagentry3@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Berecka
2834 canyon dr
Grapevine, tx 76051

chickencoop3@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Greg Bartel
4920 Harriet Ave
Minneapolis, Mi 55419

gbartel@blakeschool.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Hipple
134 Shoshone Trail
Mercer, PA 16137

rhipple@zoominternet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christine Muller
2155 W. Pinnacle Peak Road Suite 120
Phoenix, AZ 85027

christinem@edbergperry.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rieko Haggerty
25 Calvert court
Piedmont, CA 94611

masajomama@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diann Mellott
67 Victory Road
Howell, NJ 7731

dmell@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Willie Gentry
4155 Levonshire Drive
Houston, TX 77025

hagentry3@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Anderson
1650 Truchard Ct.
Crown Point, IN 46307

linda.anderson@mikeandersonchevy.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Glorie Kemper
54 City View Drive
Valparaiso, IN 46383

glorie29@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Angie Lum
526 7th Avenue
San Francisco, ca 94118

alum@advent.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan DeCoste
156 Pleasant St.
Watertown, MA 2472

susand549@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Norma Springer
1658 North Cove Blvd
Toledo, OH 43606

normaspringer@ceteraadvisors.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gordon DiRenzo
28 Deer Run
Newark, DE 19711

dir2728@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brandan Bassett
130 Pond Lily Drive
Bozeman, MT 59718

brandan.bassett@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Clint Combs
129 Springgate Rd
Arkansas City, KS 67005

clintcombs@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jessica Sledzinski
47 Road 2581
Aztec, NM 87410

jessledzinski@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Leroy Lee
PO Box 205
Fruitland, NM 87416

lerl_lee@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Martha Parke Gibian
1603 Foulkeways
Gwynedd, PA 10536

ppgppg1@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Straus
5633 Amber fields Drive Shingle Springs, CA 95682

strausg@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

PHILLIP FILTER
1010 MORSE ROAD
LIVE OAK, CA 95953

filterframs@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Smith
811 Walnut Ridge E.
Loganport, IN 46947

dlsmith1927@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christine Beck
9264 Peony Lane North
Maple Grove, MN 55311

cbecklar@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lu Lumbirt
13935 Luxor Chase
Fishets, IN 46038

lalumbirt@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

D. Michael Bowditch
1136 W. 9th Street
Rochester, IN 46975

dmbowditch@consolidatedunion.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Eddilene Shaub
2008 Ursinus Ave
Lancaster, PA 0

eddieg5951@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Jones
10 Hickory Lane
Logansport, In 46947

larry.butch.jones@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dawn Wilson
1463 Scheffer Ave
Saint Paul, MN 55116

dwilson1463@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patrick Doyle
1429 Valley Creek Drive
New Richmond, Wi 54017

effie@frontiernet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Geiger
285 E London Grove Rd
West Grove, Pe 19390

jimg14@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

DANETTE SAMSON
120 W. HUDSPITH ST
VALLEY, NE 68064

drsamson@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Betty Emery
1660 North Cove Blvd
Toledo, OH 43606

betty.emery@ceteraadvisors.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christopher Armacost
5009 Bruce Avenue
Edina, MN 55424

carmaco@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Radovic
5307 Brandenburg Court
Dallas, TX 75287

joeradovic@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lee Martel
2059 Domador
San Clemente, CA 92673

dogofred49@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Philip Jach
106 Parmelee Drive
Hudson, OH 44236

jach@gwis.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ken Lovko
8367 Codesa Way
Indianapolis, IN 46278

buzzlovko@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

shirley smith
203 fleming dr.
staunton, il 62088

sjs@madisontelco.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Allen Laya
12585 Raintree Path
Huntley, IL 60142

atlaya@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Hansa Patel
5602 DairyBrook Cove As above
Sugarland, Tx 77479

patelhansa722@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christine Frey
2005 Linden Lake Rd
Fort Collins, CO 80524

rockfrey@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bret Robinson
1189 Hwy 3101
Eastland, TX 76448

bret@kennedy-financial.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Randy Stiles
200 S. Oaklawn St
Eastland, TX 76448

rkstiles@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bill Ryder
504 Carrriage Lane
Hudson, WI 54016

williamdryder@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Wott
3889 C.R. 175
Clyde, Oh 43410

wottie@myfrontiermail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Williard
44 Carriage Road
Palmyra, PA 17078

bjlw99@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas White
37 Deerwood
Aliso Viejo, ca 92656

doug.white1@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Beverly Williard
44 Carriage Road
Palmyra, PA 17078

bjlw99@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jerry Adams
9074 Rocky Road Dr
Conroe, Texas 77302, Tx 77302

Jerryadams916@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Steel
7271 W. Cascade Dr.
Boise, ID 83704

steelmn@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rebecca Hickenbottom
3478 Catclaw Dr. 262
Abilene, TX 79606

rebeccahickenbottom@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sulochana Sherman
4540 Bee Ridge Rd. Apt. 111
Sarasota, FL 34233

sue@shermanhome.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen German
10357 Harvester Drive
Boise, ID 83709

steve_german@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Neer Jr
7402 Treeline Dr
Naples, Fl 34119

edneerjr@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Hickenbottom
3478 Catclaw Dr. 262
Abilene, TX 79606

rebeccahickenbottom@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Bultman
3516 Jarrettsville Pike
Monkton, MD 21111

kevin@thetenetgroup.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Rhodes
642 W. Maple St.
Clyde, Oh 43410

respect1665@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jane Spencer
2063 Fuerte Street
Fallbrook, CA 92028

lksnana@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Thompson
19334 CR 17
Mt.Blanchard, OH 45867

jthomp52@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Adrienne Neer
7402 Treeline Dr
Naples, Fl 34119

yoadrienneneer@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rosa Molina
4200 W. Peterson Avenue #140
Chicago, Il 60646

rosa.molina@thealdennetwork.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Scott Ellard
5835 Oakland Dr.
Portage, MI 49024

scott@scottellarddentistry.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

sonya hamman
44271 260th street
Remsen, IA 51050

jhnhamman@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

sonya hamman
44271 260th street
Remsen, IA 51050

jhnhamman@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Propeck
4444 S Davidson Dr Independence, MO 64055

jimpropeck@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frederick Nelson, Jr.
74 Fuller Pond Road
Middleton, MA 1949

fnel@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tim Graham
110 Tandberg Trail
Windham, ME 4062

Eagletkg@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Carbin, Jr.
9 Ole Ironside Lane
Scarborough, ME 4074

kcarbin@cascobaywa.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Sanger
1585 Calle Camille
La Jolla, CA 92037

tomsanger@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Phyllis Donner
10 Hemlock Dr
Greenville, Pa 16125

phyllisdonner@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Donner
10 Hemlock Dr
Greenville, Pa 16125

phyllisdonner@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diane Warner
662 Cindy Lane
Buffalo, NY 14224

Dmw662@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Veronica Ford
30996 crepe Myrtle dr Unit43
Millsboro, DE 19966

Gullgirl43@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Brunnemer
4792 Rabbit Mountain Rd.
Broomfield, CO 80020

delandnancy@me.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donovan Smail
500 W Fairground
Hillsboro, IL 62049

dcsmail@consolidated.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Todd Magrum
601 Grant Street
Port Clinton, OH 43452

todd_magrum@live.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carl Metzgar
253 Carol Jean Way
Branchburg, NJ 8876

ametzgar@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Ryden
1062 E. Harcourt Dr.
Boise, ID 83702

rryden4115@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

DEANNA J LAMB
1028 E. DEL MAR AVE.
ORANGE, CA 92865

nanadeanna@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shaun Tessmer
836 Stonebridge Lane
Crystal Lake, il 60014

stessmer@exemplarfn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tuan Michael Nguyen 3661 Newton St.
Torrance, CA 90505

mike-nguyen@live.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roxane Mitchell
822 S.W. 10th St.
Faribault, MN 55021

roxie.mitchell@msad.state.mn.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Orion Taylor
3719 Radnor Ave
Long Beach, CA 90808

ttoktaylor@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tom Taylor
3719 Radnor Ave
Long Beach, CA 90808

ttoktaylor@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Ryden
1062 E. Harcourt Dr.
Boise, ID 83702

rryden4115@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lance Gale
401 Church Street
Springfield, Co 81073

galedruginc@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christine OBrien
10453 Dunsford Dr.
Lone Tree, Co 80124

Chrisobriensong@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Banner
626 Kenilworth Lane
Ballwin, MO 63011

rbanner29@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Newhouse
3226 W Catalina Ln
Boise, ID 83705

chas.newhouse@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Juanita Hunter
1339 Pleasant Hill 10
Logansport, IN 46947

jhunter1922@g-mail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Willaim Korth
801 E. First Street Suite B #108
Cle Elum, WA 98922

bkorth@suncadia.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jim Waggoner
221 counrty club
Brandon, sd 57005

jwaggoner@vpadvisor.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lori Rolfes
31268 University Rd
Vermillion, SD 57069

accounting@carddiva.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Georgina
1213 E. 18th St
Farmington, NM 87401

normgeorgina4051@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Whitehead
7927 Rolling Creek Court
Charlotte, NC 28270

amyorsinger@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Rankin
1100 Tarpon Ctr Dr Unit 402
Venice, Fl 34285

rdivot3510@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Ratliff
6789 S Queen Rd
Littleton, Co 80127

Lratliff@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Geoffrey Whitehead
7927 Rolling Creek Court
Charlotte, NC 28270

amyorsinger@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol Fieger
5274 Camargo Rd
Littleton, CO 80123

cfieger@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Nay
5612 S. Crows Nest Rd.
Tempe, AZ 85283

cherylanay1@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patty Swearingin
216 Lee
COLLINSVILLE, Il 62234

pattyscoot2@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patty Swearingin
216 Lee
COLLINSVILLE, Il 62234

pattyscoot2@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patty Swearingin
216 Lee
COLLINSVILLE, Il 62234

pattyscoot2@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margaret Nies
1317 E Market Street
Logansport, IN 46947

pewani@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alexis Bruno
2930 Calle Frontera
San Clemente, CA 92673

lexibash76@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joshua Stewart
206 Yellowtail Ct
Oceanside, CA 92058

joshua.o.stewart@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brett Kusske
6466 157th St West
Apple Valley, MN 55124

bskusske@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Newhouse
3226 W Catalina Ln
Boise, ID 83705

chas.newhouse@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas McManus
108 Tatham Rd
Bensalem, PA 19020

tmcmanus01@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dianne Stanford
4508 Pine St
Bellaire, TX 77401

dfstanford@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kimberly McManus
108 Tatham Rd
Bendalem, PA 19020

tomkim01@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

EILEEN GEE
1002 GRASSMEADE WAY
SNELLVILLE, GA 30078

mrsehg@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tracy Hensler
14007 Swanee Beach Fenton, MI 48430

tmgdmny@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Maureen Steck
257 North Lane
Grand Island, NY 14072

steckmaur@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alan Flater
732 1st AVE SW
FOREST LAKE, MN 55025

AJFLATER@YAHOO.COM

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Leta Jasmantas
9056 W county road 50 N
Logansport, IN 46947

Letajazz@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dustin Abels
2061 River Road
Forest City, IA 50436

dustyabels@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Dahlin
PO BOX A 21 Shields Lane
Novato, CA 94947

ddahlin@peak.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Steck
257 North Lane
Grand Island, NY 14072

nstarmach@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kelly Hurlbutt
4655 St Croix Lane
Naples, FL 34109

kelllykoool@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sue DeBruin, CLU, ChFC, CEBS, ACS, LUTCF, ACS
7006 Fortune Drive
Middleton, WI 53562

sue.debruin@cunamutual.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Cann
9618 Sound View Avenue
Las Vegas, NV 89147

jmcann4@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Dreier
730 Long Dr
Quincy, IL 62305

bd123@everestkc.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jonathan Spanier
4681 N. Villa Ridge Way
Boise, ID 83703

jkspanier@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sheri Kuyper
1423 Central Ave N
Faribault, Mn 55021

sherikuyper@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Shafer
249 crestview dr
Transfer, Pa 16154

Jimsunder90@live.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jon Dorsey
1623 Crescent Dr
Henderson, NC 27536

jdorsey@lincolninvestment.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lawrence Hesse
525 sw urish rd. suite 2 topeka, Ka 55515

larry@hessefinancial.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Snyder
5831 deer crossing dr sugar hill, GA 30518

dinasnyder@twsworks.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jason Boehler
12676 N. Hornsby Road
Litchfield, IL 62056

jasonboehler@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

karen oneill
1180 evansburg road collegeville, pa 19426

koneill1951@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edwin Huber
651 Woodlawn St.
Hillsboro, Il 62049

ehuberfamily@consolidated.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stewart Jacobson
3323 Winnsboro Ct. Suite 590
Sugar Land, TX 77478

stewart@jacobsonclan.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Don Mayhan
310 Cecilia Drive
Memphis, TN 38117

dondozer@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Earl Meier
4 Westwood
Hillsboro, IL 62049

emeier1@consolidated.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Pruett
2114 North Lake
Denton, Tx 76201

robert7411@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brian Walker
3161 Dalton Court
Monticello, MN 55362

bwalker@walker-instore.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christine Huber
651 Woodlawn St.
Hillsboro, Il 62049

ehuberfamily@consolidated.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Pruett
2114 North Lake
Denton, Tx 76201

robert7411@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Evelyn Becenti
2418 E. Hwy 66 # 232
Gallup, NM 87301

becentie@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Penn Rettig
5180 Miramar
Eugene, OR 97405

Pennrettig@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Shelhamer 164 Bandor Circle
Hillsboro, IL 62049

cshel21@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Penn Rettig
5180 Miramar
Eugene, OR 97405

Pennrettig@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

kathryn busch
7162-A Calabria court
San Diego, Ca 92122

buschklb@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeanna Merkle
5810 Lone Cedar
Kingwood, Tx 77345

Jjpois@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Evan Merkle
5810 Lone Cedar
Kingwood, Tx 77345

Merkle516@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Timothy Seifert
2150 N. Lincoln Park West #1312
Chicago, IL 60614

tmseifert639@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Pasciak
7869 Ella Terrace
Rockford, MI 49341

dpasciak@vpfgroup.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Matson
333 Orchard Street
Millis, MA 2054

robert.matson@lpl.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Earl Blackburn
5020 Rosedown Lane
Bossier City, LA 71112

earlmblackburn@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Egan, CPA
4504 Brownsville Road
Pittsburgh, PA 15236

billecpa@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Tumlinson
7821 W Edgeridge Ct
Tucson, AZ 85743

ktumlinson13@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elizabeth Cataldo
510 Cataldo St.
Donaldsonville, La 70346

esc510@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kent Williams
22 katlyn Dr.
Fremont, OH 43420

krw67@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nancy Williams
22 katlyn Dr.
Fremont, OH 43420

knwilly@woh.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bertie Simmons
3112 Albans
Houston, Tx 77005

bsimmon1@houstonisd.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jody Detillier
15 Elmwood Court
Destrehan, La 70047

Jdetillier@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Calvin Crutch
208 Catalina Dr
Defiance, OH 43512

cccrutch@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas Barger
5003 Barnsby Ln
Cincinnati, Oh 45244

dbarger@advantagebenefitsgrp.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sharon Koonce
3112 Albans
Houston, Tx 77005

skoonce41@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Brown
6224 Bartz Road
Lockport, NY 14094

mbrown@wsfg.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ruben Castaneda
5757 Rancho Hills Dr
San Diego, CA 92139

queruca@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Maurine Brown
1214 Alvarado Dr NE
Albuquerque, NM 87110

mjbrn07@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Denise Bernard
422 W Ivanhoe Road
Spokane, WA 99218

dbernard@uhscu.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tina Folse
322 St. Nicholas Street
Luling, LA 70070

tpfolse@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Krystina Gooch
2302 W Carlisle Ave
Spokane, WA 99205

KGooch@uhscu.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peggy Wolny
5217 N Lincoln St
Spokane, WA 99205

npdaveandpeg@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joan Gaudet
216 Pecan Street
Hahnville, LA 70057

Gaudetjoan@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charlotte Nemec
16507 E 24th Lane
Spokane Valley, WA 99037

charlotten@spokanefederal.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Betty J. Harrington
34 E 8th Ave Apt 207
Spokane, WA 99202

pwhitesp2@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mara Southorn
1930 Coach Dr
Naperville, IL 60565

mht3333@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cindy Fitzgerald
6202 E Marilyn Rd
Scottsdale, AZ 85254

cfitz43@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rachel Champagne
P. O. Box 3564
Paradis, LA 70080

rachelc@lasmag.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shelly Roberts
1032 S Harmony Rd
Spokane Valley, WA 99016

shellyr@spokanefederal.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Neil Cook
20783 Eastway Court
Richmond, MN 56368

karylandcook@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karyland Cook
20783 Eastway Court
Richmond, MN 56368

karylandcook@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa Juneau
815 east nezpique
Jennings, La 70546

Lisa.juneau@jdpsbk12.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gerry Cloncs
402 W 6thSt
Alexandria, IN 46001

mgcloncs@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Taffy McCoy
2024 E 9th Ave
Spokane, WA 99202

tmccoy@uhscu.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

nancy stack 128 razor strap rd north east, md 21901

nstack24@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Aysenne
4445 Highway 309
Napoleonville, LA 70390

saaysenne@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Dunaway
42404 hwy 933
Prairieville, La 70769

katjune@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alycia Lovell
5720 N Moore ST
Spokane, WA 99205

alycialovell@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Aysenne
4445 Highway 308
Napoleonville, LA 70390

saaysenne@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Ansley
668 REED RD
GENEVA, NY 144569735

mansley827@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Desseri Anderson
5019 N Northwood Drive
Spokane, WA 99212

desseria@nbservicecenter.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alvin Legleu
3245 hwy.308
Napoleonville, La 70390

aplegleu@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Fitzpatrick
2254 Sul Ross
Houston, Tx 77098

snit54@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roberta DeField
156 Rd 3950
Farmington, NM 87401

Halfullme2@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jason Ryan
764 Merchants Road
Rochester, NY 14609

jasonryan4@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeanie McMonigal
9901 Lower River Road
Louisville, KY 40272

tucmac911@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bruce Rubin
16 Samanthas Way
Pittsford, NY 14534

Rozbruce@email.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roslyn Rubin
16 Samanthas Way
Pittsford, NY 14534

Rozbruce@email.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

HEATHER WEBSTER
4903 N ADAMS ST
SPOKANE, WA 99205

hwebster@uhscu.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dnald Kurrasch
1740 Highland Meadows Drive
Prosper, TX 75078

don.kurrasch@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Harrington
3416 Ridgewood Path
The Villages, FL 32163

patharr777@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carmen LaPierre
1053 Blackfoot Drive
Evans, GA 30809

carmie@cheerful.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Ronngren
51 Gray Rd
Pullman, WA 99163

jenniferronngren@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JENNIFER FUSELIER
18521 LAKE TULIP AVE
BATON ROUGE, LA 70817

grannyj29@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Bernecker
PO Box 197 3409 Retsof Rd
Retsof, NY 14539

karenb@evergreenfcu.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Kesselmayer
103 Greenbank Way
Harleysville, PA 19438

mkesselmayer1@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stacy Finafrock
32413 N Cedar Road
Deer Park, WA 99006

Stacyf@spokanefederal.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Sweeney
237 Robert E Lee Way
Eufaula, AL 36027

sweeneyjohn@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Showalter
3025 Wentworth Avenue
Louisville, KY 40206

lshowalter@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

gary ford
3416 ridgewood path
the villages, fl 32163

garyford666@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edward Bender
673Treasure Cir.
Webster, NY 14580

ewb1943@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Melissa DesHotel
PO Box 243
Jennings, LA 70546

melissa.deshotel@jdpsbk12.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

linda hlavac
533 n.th st.
david city, ne 68632

lindahlavac@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Vetter
130 2nd Ave SE
Harmony, Mn 55939

jrvetter3260@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Burke
5201 Collin McKinney Pkwy Apt 4108
McKinney, TX 75070

Bobcatz18@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Edwin Keeler
3330 Atlantic Ave
Penfield, NY 14526

ekeeler@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Vetter
130 2nd Ave SE
Harmony, Mn 55939

jrvetter3260@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lori Pennison
955 Hwy 1011
Napoleonville, LA 70390

lpennison@assumptionschools.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jimmie Bettis
18648 Middlesex
Lathrup Village, MI 48076

Jimmiebettis17@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephanie Cigna
3977 walworth ontario road
Walworth, NY 14568

Smcigrr@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anita Montgomery
17346 Palm Ridge Drive
Diberville, Ms 39540

anitaemontgomery@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ruth Vetter
1302nd Ave SE
Harmony, Mn 55939

jrvetter3260@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Bourgeois
311 Back Project Road
Schriever, LA 70395

dalebourgeois@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephanie Cigna
3977 walworth ontario road
Walworth, NY 14568

Smcigrr@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Monica Baker
6992 S Sunset Blvd
Macy, IN 46951

nyonalake@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Wolf
4016 LLano Drive
Bourg, La 70343

wawolf@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Tooley
7604 Glenhill Cove
Austin, TX 78752

ktooley1@austin.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard J Padgett
5083 Seachase St
San Diego, CA 92130

fsconcierge@san.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Wrobleski
15218 Nashua Circle 15218 Nashua Circle
Westfield, IN 46074

richard.wrobleski@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Dale Bourgeois
311 Back Project Road
Schriever, LA 70395

dalebourgeois@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kandi Kraemer
105 Autumn Ridge Drive
Thibodaux, LA 70301

kkraemer@assumptionschools.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Arter
4160 Eastwood Drive
Sarasota, FL 34232

PatArter@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

HaiDera Hollins
672 Camden Ct
Rochester Hills, Mi 48307

hollinsh@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Albert Lies
1321 S Rotchford drive
Spokane Valley, Wa 99037

allies@spokanebanner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard J Padgett
5083 Seachase St
San Diego, CA 92130

fsconcierge@san.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Pagan
207 Diana Dr
Gray, Lo 70359

rypjr@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tracie Merriman
5056 NC Highway 581
Sims, MI 27880

bigtim2u@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard J Padgett
5083 Seachase St
San Diego, CA 92130

fsconcierge@san.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sheryl Garrett
803 County Road 317
Eureka Springs, AR 72632

Sheryl@GarrettPlanning.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Nathan Boonstra
O-11520 Woodgate NW
Grand Rapids, MI 49534

nboons0317@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tom Polkinghorn
11109 Christensen CV
Austin, TX 78739

tom.polkinghorn@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gerald Williams
8375 N. 35 Rd.
Manton, MI 49663

williamsg819@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Jacobson
812 Lakewood Dr.
McKinney, TX 75070

ckjaco1@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard J Padgett
5083 Seachase St
San Diego, CA 92130

fsconcierge@san.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard J Padgett
5083 Seachase St
San Diego, CA 92130

fsconcierge@san.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kate Holland
4021 E Center Rd
Mead, WA 99021

dkjwholland@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Nealey
56 Forest Edge
Plymouth, MA 2360

rhyn@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lola VanDyke
1822 State Rd 25
Logansport, IN 46947

vandykel@frankfort.k12.in.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tyler Capecci
81 Prospect St
Wellesley, MA 2481

tylercapecci@outlook.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kate Shivaraju
1221 thornapple River dr se
Ada, Mi 49301

Leblanc.kate@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tivon Thurman
15442 Auburn
Detroit, MI 48223

tivonkt@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven Haney
4346 N. Tattenham Way
Boise, ID 83713

steven_haney@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tonya Landry
112 Shane Street
Pierre Part, LA 70339

tlandry@assumptionschools.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Priscilla Madan
5 Water Street
South Easton, MA 2375

pmadan@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Smith
4429 NW 43 ST
Coconut Creek, FL 33073

jbs2658@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lavern Kramer
20205 st.
Omaha, NE 68130

remark91854@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Hunt
PO Box 24385
Detroit, MI 48223

bobhunt725@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard J Padgett
5083 Seachase St
San Diego, CA 92130

fsconcierge@san.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Barbara Khachadoorian
575 VFW Drive
Rockland, MA 2370

Barbara.Khachadoorian@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

jerome norman 1702 n. hodges ln. 1702 n. hodges ln.
spokane valley, wa 99016

jjnorman@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Bruton
4 Jane lane
High bridge, Nj 8829

C.bruton4@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Bowman
11140 Lu Wista Lane
Brooksville, FL 34601

kob1053@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elizabeth Owens
830 Robert Bob Hicks Street
Bogalusa, LA 70427

elowens2004@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Holt
35 Redwine Overlook Newnan GA 30263` Newnan, GA 30263

zack.holt@piedmont.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donald Bowman
11140 Lu Wista Lane
Brooksville, FL 34601

dlb1153@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jay LaBarre
2 N. Tamiami Trail Suite - 400
Sarasota, FL 34236

jay.labarre@gsirep.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steven Meeske
808 Westwood Dr
Ormond Beash, FL 32174

s2meeske2@cfl.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Watsky
508 Manchester Lane
LaPlace, Lo 70068

lamheart.creations@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kimberly Bushman
448 Ruth Court
Harleysville, PA 19438

dhkkushman@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Hudson
14338 Carolcrest
Houston, TX 77079

jhudson@dearborncreggs.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jolene Schneider
1025 Riverstone Rd. #6
Farmington, NM 87401

joleneschnd@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

bobby hardin 630-40 fairington oval aurora, oh 44202

hardincyndi@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judy Conaway
1617 E. 27th St.
Farmington, NM 87401

heyujude21@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Vivian Tuazon
9549 Paramount Blvd.
Downey, CA 90240

vivian_vvn@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Armando Orozco-Silva
206 Derrick Drive
O, il 62269

ajorozco82@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Adler
2360A Santa Fe Dr.
Longmont, Co 80504

Adlermm@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Goodman
1001 City Ave. #WA809
Wynnewood, PA. 19096, PA 19096

goodman5020@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michele Ludwig
9713 NW 4th St
Coral Springs, Fl 33071

Micheleludwig@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bryan Beach
1640 Coppersmith Ct.
Lutz, FL 33559

bryan.beach@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Pat Thynge
321 Hampton Road
Wilmington, DE 19803

lthynge@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rollie Thomason
17873 Coyote Grade Box 415
Genesee, ID 83832

rthomason@stonebrakermcquary.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jamie Griffiths
1200 Big Sur Parkway
Algonquin, IL 60102

jgriffiths@exemplartax.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ross Lukeman
14422 Cypress Falls Dr.
Cypress, TX 77429

Ross.Lukeman@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Thompson
19334 CR 17
Mt.Blanchard, OH 45867

jthomp52@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Penelope Jurick
235 Mackintosh Drive
Glen Burnie, MD 21061

jurick.penny@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cathy Borlee
3806 Van Lanen Rd
Green Bay, wi 54311

L0vebugnanna@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bill Krazinski
128 brown rd
Horseheads, NY 14845

Wkrazi@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jenean Kadletz
2270 Hopf Lane
De Pere, wi 54115

jenkadletz@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Mothersell
5493 Crossett Rd P O Box 1
Geneseo, NY 14454

duchesspat@frontier.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ellen Sorensen
13 West Hollow Road
Naples, NY 14512

ebsoren@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Denis Gallagher
163 Spring St.
Windsor Locks, Co 6096

denybaileyx@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

andrea labbe 5701 camp st
new orleans, la 70115

friendandrea@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kevin Jones
2537 Bittersweet Ave
Green Bay, wi 54301

kjones@broadwayautomotive.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Andrews
917 S. Sterling Ln.
Pueblo, CO 81007

bethandrewslcsw@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Steve Sanders
411 bales avenue
Picayune, MS 39466

picayune.polecat@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Peter Theunissen
P. O. Box 16
Lacassine, LA 70650

p.theunissen@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

katherine wysocki 3014 buck road warsaw, ny 14569

kwysocki@letchworth.k12.ny.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brent Hudson
13847 Graham Dr.
Shelby Township, MI 48315

bhudson@flexibleplan.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Karen Sirmon
199 North Oak Court
Luling, LA 70070

joettesirmon@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marjorie Johnson
8406 E. Calle Buena Vista Dr.
Scottsdale, AZ 85255

Sess3rd@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bethany Feuerstein
5 Oak St.
Geneseo, NY 14454

blfeuerst@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Terri Seitz
2444 Wilder Street
Green Bay, WI 54311

terricseitz@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Daniel kraus
118 battery way peachtree city, GA 30269

dkrausatc@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Timothy Leonard
383 Birchbark Drive
Hanson, MA 2341

leonardscoop@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Grabert
105 Hackberry Avenue
Houma, LA 70360

susangrabert@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Terri Rieb
6615 Las Casitas Ct NW
Los Ranchos, NM 87107

tlrieb@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Henry Peters
3 Charter Oaks Dr
Pittsford, Ne 14534

hpeters@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bree St.George
27 Curtis Ave
Attleboro, Ma 2703

bst.george1@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tom Graffeo
2326 Comet St.
New Orleans, LA 70131

goman2@cox.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

richard lucito
104 tillou andrus opelousas, la 0

number1lsufan@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

brenda hawkins
19474 Lennane
Redford, Mi 48240

brendahawkins13@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Crooks
565 CR 242
Fremont, Oh 43420

markcrooks_43420@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

brenda hawkins
19474 Lennane
Redford, Mi 48240

brendahawkins13@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Sundberg
105 Macomber Ave
Springfield, MA 1119

Mksun@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Sweeney
3253 Pineview Drive
Walworth, NY 14568

msweeney1@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Caruso
505 Cedar Avenue
Hershey, PA 17033

pcaruso@hbghomes.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Reynolds
44 Tannon Dr. N
Fairport, NY 0

sreynol1@rochester.rr.con

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joseph Calabrette
309 Eagle Mountain Dr
Hickory Creek, TX 75065

j.calabrette@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

brenda hawkins
19474 Lennane
Redford, Mi 48240

brendahawkins13@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

brenda hawkins
19474 Lennane
Redford, Mi 48240

brendahawkins13@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Ourso
1112 Mill St
Donaldsonville, La 70346

m_ourso@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marjorie Johnson
8406 E. Calle Buena Vista Dr.
Scottsdale,, AZ 85255

Sess3rd@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Marilyn Ourso
1112 Mill St
Donaldsonville, La 70346

m_ourso@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Prange
8367 Washington Woods Dr
Washington, MI 48094

Dmprange@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

brenda hawkins
19474 Lennane
Redford, Mi 48240

brendahawkins13@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

brenda hawkins
19474 Lennane
Redford, Mi 48240

brendahawkins13@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

brenda hawkins
19474 Lennane
Redford, Mi 48240

brendahawkins13@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

brenda hawkins
19474 Lennane
Redford, Mi 48240

brendahawkins13@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

brenda hawkins
19474 Lennane
Redford, Mi 48240

brendahawkins13@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

brenda hawkins
19474 Lennane
Redford, Mi 48240

brendahawkins13@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

brenda hawkins
19474 Lennane
Redford, Mi 48240

brendahawkins13@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

brenda hawkins
19474 Lennane
Redford, Mi 48240

brendahawkins13@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

brenda hawkins
19474 Lennane
Redford, Mi 48240

brendahawkins13@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

barry woodman
211 peaked hill rd bristol, Nh 3222

alpinerepair@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Shirley Salter
114 Timberwood Dr.
Gray, Lo 70359

jsalter_sw1@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judith Fox
107 Gaslight Drive Apt 11
So Weymouth, Ma 2190

jfox2005@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kayla McKay
4430 Hwy 1130
Elton, La 70532

Kayla.mckay@jdpsbk12.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Clayton
PO Box 61
Lacassine, LA 70650

bayouace@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Clayton
PO Box 61
Lacassine, LA 70650

bayouace@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jared Hagen
3203 Acoma Trl.
Fort Worth, TX 76177

jared.a.hagen@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

donald coleman
2513 Westwind dr
Soddy Daisy, Tn 37379

coleman.donald96@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Casandra Trahan
107 Felicity Dr
Houma, LA 70363

Sandy70363@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Trabulsie
21 Merritt St
West Bridgewater, Ma 2379

b51trab@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kimberly Vincent
1300 Avenue Lacroix
Covington, LA 70433

bkvinc@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kayla McKay
4430 Hwy 1130
Elton, La 70532

Kayla.mckay@jdpsbk12.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patricia Hansen
20230 Cardinal Ave
Clear Lake, IA 50428

patjhansen@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jay Taintor
110 Brookside Drive
Uxbridge, MA 1569

beej3@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth Campbell
500 Lavaine Lewisville, TX 75056

kenc55@earthlink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Walker
925 Chicago
Greenville, IL 62246

cocean7@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Hansen
20230 Cardinal Ave
Clear Lake, IA 50428

billdaveh64@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Francis Belanger
10 Willow Circle
Scituate, MA 2066

Belangerfp@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Margery McIlwain
6095 West 100 South Rensselaer, IN 47978

margem@saintjoe.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathryn Laws
19691 FM 315
Palestine, TX 75803

lawskathy@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Stanford
408 Bower St.
Welsh, LA 70591

Amy6631@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Newell
4 Bennett Ave
Bloomfield, NY 14469

Rgnewell@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amy Abels
2061 River Road
Forest City, IA 50436

amymaire81@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JERILYN JOE
PO BOX 4931
SHIPROCK, NM 87420

jjoe@sjrmc.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Clifford Miller
5812 N. Elgin St.
Spokane, WA 99205

millerce53@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janet Crow
1605 E. Ashford Circle
Mount Pleasant, IA 52641

crowbird@mchsi.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Angela LeBlanc
215 EMILE DRIVE
Lockport, La 70374

angieleblanc75@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kris Laugen
19374 460th St.
Lake Mills, IA 50450

laugen@wctatel.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frances Phillips
203 S. Moss Dr.
Houma, LA 70360

plexusbeth@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Parley G George
5316 W Boone Ct.
Boise, ID 83705

gparley@q.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Paul Ofield
9811greenwillow
Houston, Tx 77096

Piosso@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Pictor
30 Maryvale Drive
Webster, NY 14580

rpictor@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Bernhardt
PoBox 197
Raymond, Il 62560

glbern@consolidated.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Darrell Dorr
1490 Wesley Avenue
Pasadena, CA 91104

sojourner48@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Aupied
P.O. Box 282 151 Eds Circle
Boutte, LA 70039

luejaupied@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cecile Babin
406 Broadmoor Ave.
Houma, LA 70364

cvbabin@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Shook
7307 Clipper Court
Maumee, OH 43537

flounder7@bex.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William McMillin
4012 Honduras
Pasadena, TX 77504

lydia_instexas@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cassidy Juneau
815 E Nezpique
Jennings, LA 70546

cassidy.juneau@jdpsbk12.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Graves
65 Hidden Valley Rd
Rochester, ny 14624

cgraves002@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

DAVID Crockett, JR
1771 Calle Del Arroyo Apt/Suite
Lake San Marcos, Ca 92078

dacrockettjr@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Cross
2845 Biddle Ave.
Wyandotte, Mi 48192

Rick2474@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Brent Nash
8749 Southwestern Blvd. Apt. 4306
Dallas, TX 75206

bcnash10@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Reynolds
31 Log Ln
Irving, IL 62051

cdhawkspoint@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Seth Miller
2021 Libertyville Rd
Fairfield, IA 52556

ibrooster@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christine Rowe
3885 S. Idalia St.
Aurora, CO 80013

shellseekr50@msn.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kelsey Smith
8749 Southwestern Blvd Apt 4206
Dallas, TX 75206

kelseysmith.kls@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Linda Faulkner
95 E Randell
Boise, ID 83733

Linstockcourt@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gerald J. Waguespack 329 Wayne St.
Gramercy, La 70052

lsupap@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Stacy
95 Balmoral Dr.
Fairport, NY 14450

jstacy4@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Irish
114 Taramac Road
Centerville, MA 2632

misha4him@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Maureen FitzPatrick
47 Town Line Rd
Morris, CT 6763

maureenfitzpatrick@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Clark Cummings
7044 Constitution Drive
Watauga, TX 76148

fabcsc@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Najah Allen
21428 beaconsfield ave Apt 5
St Clair shores, Mi 48080

allennaj@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Blake
41Blackthorn Path
Forestdale, Ma 2644

capewoody@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rickie Boudwin
441 N Pine St.
Gramercy, LA 70052

boudwinrj@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Rickie Boudwin
441 N Pine St.
Gramercy, LA 70052

boudwinrj@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Barr
9632 Westpark Dr.
Benbrook, TX 76126

jbarr2@prodigy.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa DeJean
123 Michael Dr
Des Allemands, LA 70030

Ldejean@stcharles.k12.la.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jean Wetherbee
1029 Elm St.
Medina, NY 14103

jwetherb@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

David Clements
1705 Johnson St.
Logansport, In 46947

dwpkc@frontier.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sarah-Ellen Hinkebein
11924 LA CHARLES AVE NE
ALBUQUERQUE, NM 871114041

qm1@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Combs-Williamson
2961 W. Rock River Ridge Rd
Crawfordsville, IN 47933

cdi121212@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Phyllis Ashton
2018 Teakwood Place
Sugar Land, tx 77478

Pashton_99@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

DAVID W BECKWITH
2848 S.N.NORMAN AVE.
ARCADIA, FL 34266

mbeckwith@centurylink.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elva Roe
401 Holly St. #8
Nampa, ID 83686

eroenampa@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kym Griffiths
1200 Big Sur Pkway
Algonquin, IL 60102

kym0815@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Beck
3413 N. 15th Ave.
Litchfield, Il 62056

cbeck@consolidated.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wayne Guest
15318 Hugh nTorance P)kwy
Huntersville, NC 28078

cwguest@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Beck
3413 N. 15th Ave.
Litchfield, Il 62056

cbeck@consolidated.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JERRY ANGEL
6721 ROLLING HILLS DR
NORTH RICHLAND HILLS, TX 0

jerry.angel60@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Diane Nevotti
2131 Ascot Lane
Sugar Land, TX 77479

drnevotti@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary Karaway
3210 Hereford Circle
Manvel, Tx 77578

mkaraway@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Sandra Brooks
627 siesta key circle #3112 deerfield beach, fl 333441

sbrooks@atcepoxy.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jared Barol
109 Edgehill Road
Bala Cynwyd, PA 19004

barol.j@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Angela Silbernagel
714 S 2nd St. Apt 4
Milwaukee, WI 53204

angela.silbernagel@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kelly Cavasin
1562 Goldenrod Circle
Lino Lakes, MN 55038

Kcavasin@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Patty Fujiwara
1310 Leonard Avenue
Pasadena, CA 91107

pjfuji@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Saundra Cummings
7044 Constitution Drive
Watauga, TX 76148

saundrajo@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kalana Cooper
3294 Leslie St
Detroit, MI 48238

kalanacooper@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Amanda Lenz
1025 J Street
Centralia, WA 98531

amanda.lenz26@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jill Kigerl
11105 William Plz
Omaha, NE 68144

jill1599@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jean Wetherbee
1029 Elm St.
Medina, NY 14103

jwetherb@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jean Wetherbee
1029 Elm St.
Medina, NY 14103

jwetherb@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Magee
14583 Wilson Magee Rd
Bogalusa, LA 70427

susanmagee24@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Janell Cunningham
108 Tiger Den Dr.
Houma, LA 70364

igormech1@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lillian Migliorini
2000 East Bay Drive Lot 120
Largo, FL 33771

lillianhm4@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Therese Yglesias
348 Hillcrest
Grosse Pointe Farms, MI 48236

tyglesi1@wcccd.edu

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kelly Trabulsie
275 Neck Street Unit B1
Weymouth, Ma 2191

ktrabulsie@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Barr
7670 Chablis Circle
Navarre, Fl 32566

afcc93@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

JEAN BOWMAN
1228 Marks Road Apt. A Valley City, OH 44280

djbow@zoominternet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lowell Varney
11705 Township Hwy. 29
Carey, Oh 43316

ltv667@roadrunner.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Laura Abels
2858 Merced Dr
Des Moines, IA 50310

hoffman784@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carolyn Borne
331 Cherry Street
Labadieville, Lo 70372

carolynborne@att.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Charles Conrad
25 Browns Ave
Scottsville, NY 14546

chas.conrad@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Deanna Joseph 331 Julie Street
Gray, LA 70359

dfrank73@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gerald Griffin
49 Sedge Fern Drive
Hilton Head Island, SC 29926

grifimages@hargray.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Thomas Mailander
211 1/2 Main St.
North Easton, MA 2356

grammyandpapacool@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Judith Ward
907 Archie Parrott Ln
Palmyra, NY 14522

jward2@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Skinner
6715 Jefferson Street
Twelve Mile, IN 46988

skinnerfam58@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gina Mycka
625 Timber Rd
Dakota Dunes, Sd 57049

gigim@cableone.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gina Mycka
625 Timber Rd
Dakota Dunes, Sd 57049

gigim@cableone.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Harold Polle
1388 Beadle Rd.
Brockport, NY 14420

hpolle@frontiernet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anita Stefano
3855 Pennemite Rd
Livonia, NY 14487

jstefano2@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Earl Adams
370 Jefferson Ave. Bldg. 16-1
Fairport, Ne 14450

efadams@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Joanne Reen
2098 North Shore Dr SE Apt 201
Grand Rapids, MI 49508

jmreen@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lisa Royer
814 Magnolia Drive
Jennings, LA 70546

terryroyer@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tyler Abels
2858 Merced Dr
Des Moines, IA 50310

tylerabels@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carol C. Oathout
16 Fowler St.
Bath, NY 14810

caroloathout@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Megan Shover
2708 W Westover Rd
Spokane, WA 99208

megans@spokanefederal.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Tommy Salter
261 Sycamore Street
Raceland, L 70394

Tsalter@tpsd.org

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Hausle
1032 Peck Road
Hilton, NY 14468

jhausle@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Stephen Arnone
114 Eastman Estates
Rochester, Ne 14622

cap1steve4@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kathleen Beadling
480 Seneca Park Avenue
Rochester, NY 14617

klb480@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kim Dellinger
3829 Jones Street
Sioux City, Io 51104

kldellinger@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Raus
10 Riesling Court
Fairport, NY 14450

bobraus@frontiernet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Raus
10 Riesling Court
Fairport, NY 14450

bobraus@frontiernet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Reginald Dyas
14053 brook dr
Redford, Mi 48239

Rdyas3532@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Pierce
1407 Acadian Drive
Jennings, LA 70546

dbpierce47@charter.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Angela Kelly
36795 Mckinney apt. 103
Westland, Mi 48185

angkel@detroitmi.gov

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ramona Malbrough
626 High St.
Houma, LA 70360

Malbroughscoons@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Cheryl Arnone
114 Eastman Estates
Rochester, NY 14622

capra115@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

WITHHELD

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Keitha Martin
67 Leith Lane
Hilton, NY 14468

kmartin51@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lori Harrison
17342 Ilene
Detroit, MI 48221

hlori3566@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Roy Harris
1218 Kimberly Dr.
Jennings, LA 70546

Royinla1@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Penny Weaver
200 E Caley ave
Littleton, CO 80121

penelope9309@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Wayne Gailis
2343 N. Southport Ave.
Chicago, Il 60614

wgailis@sbcglobal.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

James Schwartz
168 Dean Road
Spencerport, NY 14559

jsroch@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Robert Lincoln
3844 Highgate Road
Norton Shores, MI 49441

RobertAbeLincoln@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Bernhardt
4342 Ridge Rd
Williamson, NY 14589

jbernhardt1120@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frances Robertson
2713 N. Nobile St.
Paulina, LA 70763

zendawgs2@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mark Haggerty
25 Calvert Ct.
Piedmont, CA 94611

seaspeed59@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Carter
204 Pine Hill Road
Spencerport, NY 14559

gcarter1@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Susan Coleman
6414 Ward Road Sanborn, NY 14132

csusan429@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Norman Worsham
45 Katie CT.
Brigewater, MA 2324

Normanworsham@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jodie Mapes
104 Finch Ct.
LaPlace, LA 70068

jmapes@stjohn.k12.la.us

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jason Lockhart
2307 Saint Mary Drive
Camp Lejeune, NC 28547

lockhart77@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ronald Abels
45032 70th Avenue
Thompson, IA 50478

abelsron@wctatel.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Douglas McArthur
610 Stone Canyon Circle
Inverness, IL 60010

mcgeneral@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Richard Landry
4520 Larry St
Napoleonville, LA 70390

riclan@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Greg Geraci
2376 Las Lunas St.
Pasadena, CA 91107

greg.geraci@cbre.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Bernard Cybulski
5380 Ivy Ct.
Howell, MI 48843

Busterjc@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Randi Mercier
31276 cooper rd
Bogalusa, La 70427

Randilambert2003@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christie Theriot
143 Noe Street None
Pierre Part, Lo 70339

ctheriot@assumptionschools.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

William Ebener
1056 Rebecca Drive
Leesville, SC 29070

billebener@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Burkett
217 Grape
Fostoria, OH 44830

B50larr@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Allison Gordon
16105 Kirsten dr
Prairieville, La 70769

Allicullen@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Christie Theriot
143 Noe Street None
Pierre Part, Lo 70339

ctheriot@assumptionschools.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

John Sloop
22416 Lakeview Heights
Sonora, CA 95370

jsloop@mlode.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Moscato
137 Olde Harbour Trail
Rochester, NY 14612

mjmos26@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jenifer Niles
24 Deer Run Road
Kingston, MA 2364

Jeniferniles@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Larry Burkett
217 Grape
Fostoria, OH 44830

B50larr@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeff Hannold
5110 Wild Cinnamon Dr
Melbourne, Fl 32940

Hannoldjeff@gmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Mary m Stallone
4 Crossett Rd.
Geneseo, Ne 144541358

mmstallone@aol.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Frank Bader
5440 Brockport Spencerport Rd.
Brockport, NY 14420

fbader@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Kenneth McCrank
18960 Kaibab Road
Apple Valley, CA 92307

kjm_2@verizon.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Elaine Sloop
22416 Lakeview Heights
Sonora, CA 95370

el_sloop@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Pamela Sloop
22416 Lakeview Heights
Sonora, CA 95370

prs@mlode.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Alvie Kidd
1190 Wellington Drive
Victor, NY 14564

Akidd@frontiernet.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gary Zollinger
9592 W. Hills Gate Drive
Star, id 83669

jmzollinger@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Fonner
307 Onalee Dr.
Cridersville, OH 45806

mfonner@bright.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jeannette Zollinger
9592 W. Hills Gate Drive
Star, id 83669

jmzollinger@yahoo.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Lelani Williams
17 Old Oak Ave
Cranston, RI 2920

Lwilliams@thekingscathedral.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Michael Hoskins
401 East Washington Street
Hoopeston, IL 60942

jhoskins1@hotmail.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Petet Perrien
426 Moonraker dr
Slidell, La 70458

Pperrien@bellsouth.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Gwendolyn Flowers
48733 Chelmsford Court Chesterfield, MI 48047

gwendolynflowers@juno.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Anne Poole
700 Cluster Pines Rd Ladson, SC 29456

apoolepresto@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Carole Kohler
1181 Hidden Valley Trail
Webster, NY 14580

Ckohler@rochester.rr.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Donna Yazzie
3602 North Carlton Ave.
Farmington, N 87401

donnayazzie@live.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jean Moorhouse
36 Springwood dr.
Webster, Ne 14580

jmoor83@frontier.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Ann Rilatt
1543 Hickory run ct
Elizabethtown, Pa 17022

arilatt@comcast.net

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

Today, I can choose to work with my trusted financial advisor and make informed decisions regarding my investments. I can choose to pay for retirement services through a commission or a fee. I can receive guidance from a personal financial advisor or through a web-based platform. I have access to a wide range of investment options, just like other investors, whether the account is an IRA or not. I fear, however, that the DOL proposal, as currently written will restrict these choices, increase my costs, and potentially jeopardize my current relationship with my financial advisor. Without my advisor, I`ll be ill-equipped to plan for retirement on my own.

Saving for retirement is already difficult enough. As a concerned retirement investor, I urge you and your staff to work with financial advisors like mine to make changes to the current proposal so that it will protect my right to choose how and from whom I receive critical retirement advice and services.

It is my savings and my choice.

Jennifer Beach
3814 Saddlebag Way
Richmond, Tx 0

jennybeach@live.com

Tuesday, September 01, 2015

Thomas Perez
Secretary
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

RE: RIN: 1210-AB32

Dear Secretary Perez:

I am writing to you today as a hard-working and concerned investor. I believe the recent Department of Labor (DOL) rule proposal will eliminate the choices currently available to me in my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and that alarms me. It should alarm you too.

