General Comment

I'm concerned that this rule is being delayed because it's important to my husband (a retired Federal Employee) that since he was encouraged to roll his TSP into a managed fund; it would be nice to know how much money that investment advisor is making from his rollover and if there is a better place to put his funds (now that he's taken it out of his TSP and learned that investment advisors may have been more interested in their benefits instead of his).
