General Comment

I understand that the labor department is wanting to eliminate option trading in IRA accounts. This would create a terrible situation for me as I'm a very active (and I might also say very successful option trader in most of my IRA's). To eliminate this source of income for me would be unconscionable at best and cruel at worst. It would devastate my retirement portfolio. I also want to let you know that I have never worked with any kind of financial advisor or broker. I make all of my own decisions and that will never change. Hopefully you will eventually see the lunacy of this action.

Sincerely,
Carter D, Kelley
