General Comment

I am concerned about the potential restriction of individual's ability to buy/sell stock options in the IRA accounts. As an individual investor, I have been employing certain investment strategies involving options in my IRA account for more than a decade. Used properly, the options provides the ability to hedge my portfolio and to enhance the yield of my long term holdings.By taking away this valuable investment tool, it will limit individual investors' options to save and grow our retirement savings. Thanks for your consideration.
