General Comment

As a person who manages his own IRA removing tools that I use to help safely grow my retirement is not your decision to make. People are adults, treat them (me) as such. If I want to trade options, and I do, regularly that is my decision. Is there risk in this? Of course, but of done correctly it lowers the risk of just owning stocks and hoping the market is good to you. Please remove the language from the proposal that limits my ability to continue to trade options.
