General Comment

I am a year old retiree who has been trading options for several years in my retirement accounts after obtaining education on how to safely do so. Trading options has increased the value of my accounts, even though I take monthly withdrawals from my accounts to supplement my income. I strongly urge you to allow trading options in retirement accounts. Please believe that we seniors who trade options do so with proper conservatism and need to be allowed to continue to do so as we have accrued wisdom through the years and are not in need of "protection" in this regard. We are educated and of sound mind and the importance of continuing to trade options in our retirement accounts is of GREAT importance to us. Thank-you.
