SUBJECT : New Publication -- Improving Career Outcomes for Youth: Lessons from the U.S. and OECD Experience

1. Purpose. To announce the Department of Labor, Employment and Training Administration publication: Improving Career Outcomes for Youth: Lessons from the U.S. and OECD Experience.

2. Publication. Improving Career Outcomes for Youth: Lessons from the U.S. and OECD Experience compares new directions in youth policy in Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) countries and identifies ideas to test in the U.S. The report includes a description and comparative analysis of different countries' approaches to youth unemployment and weak career preparation, and identifies the types of problems, policy or programmatic responses, their success in addressing the problems, and the nature of the institutions involved in providing services. The publication also identifies and discusses promising approaches to be tested in the U.S. in both demonstration projects and current youth programs.

3. Distribution/Additional Copies. Copies of this publication have been sent to all addressees under separate cover. Additional copies can be obtained through the Office of Policy and Research, Dissemination Unit, Room N5637, 200 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20210 or through contacting the
